

Ceremonies Sunday Recall 1940 Battle Of Britain

There is no doubt that for a few days the fate of democracy hangs in the balance. Yet the intangible courage of these gallant men triumphed and the free nations which to re-arm and eventually crush the forces bent on our destruction," said Mr. J. Watson MacNaught, M. P., Parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Fisheries, at stirring ceremonies commemorating the Battle of Britain held yesterday at Memorial Square, Summerside.

Group Captain W. H. Swetman, D.F.C., D.F.C., commanding officer of R.C.A.F. Station Summerside, introduced Mr. MacNaught after a few brief remarks in which he stated "Today, together with all other R.C.A.F. units throughout Canada, Station Summerside is proud to remember those members of our service who played a part in the Battle of Britain—men who paid the supreme sacrifice."

The parade, consisting of the band, a firing party, one flight of officers, two flights of pilots, a flight of ground crew, the Summerside base, and the No. 53 Summerside Air Cadet Squadron, lined a hollow square in front of the Cenotaph at Memorial Square where a large number of spectators turned out to witness the ceremonies in very favorable weather.

Mr. MacNaught said "Another year has gone by and once more we are gathered here in this square to commemorate the Battle of Britain. It is altogether fitting and proper that once a year we should recall the events of that year."

"The years have gone by so quickly that it is difficult for us, an older generation to remember that a new generation has grown up—a generation that has no knowledge of those grim days except what has been told to them or what they have read in the old pages of history. These young boys and girls are today asking themselves why is this commemorative service being held and what purpose does it serve? We are met to do honor to the memory of the gallant band of young men who day after day took to the air to do battle with the pride of the Nazi airforce. If it had not been for the heroism and fortitude of these gallant band of heroes, our free way of life would be but a memory. There is no doubt but that for a few grim days the fate of democracy hung in the balance. Yet the indomitable courage of these gallant men triumphed and the free nations were given the precious months in which to rearm and eventually crush the forces bent on our destruction. It is therefore only right that we should honor the memory of those who triumphed in the Battle of Britain."

"The second question, however, is a little more complex and more difficult to answer. I think that this service gives us an opportunity to remind ourselves that if we are to preserve our democratic way of life we must be ever vigilant—we must be ever prepared to make the sacrifices and we must be prepared to defend to the utmost the peace that was won by such an appalling cost. I think it has become more and more apparent during the last year or so, that the only way that we and those who share our ideals can bargain with those who desire to destroy us and our ideals is from strength that is why Canada, a nation that abhors war and all that the war connotes, today has a navy, an army and an airforce several times larger than there ever even been in any year of its peacetime history."

"Those who are in a position to know advise us that the international situation is somewhat better."

"A STAR IS BORN" CAPITAL SUMMERSIDE
Judy Garland, one of the most celebrated motion picture luminaries of our times, makes her long-awaited screen appearance in "A Star is Born," a Transcona Enterprises production for Warner Bros. in CinemaScope and Technicolor. The much-heralded film offering begins its local engagement today at the Capitol Theatre.

Since her last picture, Judy has been on an international stage tour. Her live appearances were received with fabulous acclaim. They were the first of any importance she had done since signing her original film contract at age 12. They revealed that Judy Garland in person is as magnetic an entertainer as Judy Garland in films.

ter today than it was a year ago. If we remember this precept that the only way to negotiate with those who wish to destroy our way of life is from strength and that we must be prepared to make the sacrifices necessary to maintain that strength, then the Battle of Britain shall not have been in vain and we can look forward to the future with confidence."

At the conclusion of Mr. MacNaught's inspiring address members of the official party placed wreaths at the foot of the cenotaph. Included in the official party were Group Captain Swetman, Mr. MacNaught, His Worship Mayor Henry W. Wedge, Mr. William Young, representing the Summerside Wing R. C. A. F. Association, Mr. Lorne Monkley president of the Summerside Branch of the Canadian Legion and Squadron Leader Murray Shanks, Officer commanding No. 53 Summerside Air Cadet Squadron and Flight Lieutenant P. A. Townley, station adjutant.

Four F-86 Sabre jets from the Chatham air base made two fly passes over the Cenotaph at the conclusion of the observance of two minutes silence, the second of which coincided with the firing of three volleys by the rifle party and the playing of "Abide With Me" by the R. C. A. F. Band. The sounding of the Last Post and Reveille concluded the impressive ceremony. The firing party was commanded by Sgt. R. Ward.

The parade, which was commanded by Squadron Leader C. N. Stanley, then moved off, proceeding south on Spring Street along Water to Central, then north on Central past the reviewing stand and which was situated in front of the Federal Building where the official party was stationed, with G-C Swetman taking the salute. TORONTO (CP)—Laughing, blue-eyed Barbara Ann Scott waved to spectators clustered outside a small stone church here Saturday—her wedding day.

The celebrated skating star soon may also wave goodbye to a career which began as a child in Ottawa, and made her famous throughout the world. Inside that church at 4 p.m. she had become Mrs. Thomas King.

The blonde, 27-year-old skater once said that when a girl marries she should look after her husband and home instead of skating about.

After a proposed year's skating tour of Canada, Barbara Ann, it is expected, will settle down to housekeeping in Chicago.

Her husband, a six-foot ex-pro basketball player, is publicity director of Chicago Stadium.

Barbara Ann, whose Anglican communion does not allow marriage of divorced persons if both parties to the divorce are living, pledged her troth in Rosedale Presbyterian Church, King Isadore and has two children, Shelley, 5, and Tom, 3.

Heading a substitution that borders ill for the groom to know about his bride's gown beforehand her widowed mother, Mrs. Clyde R. Scott, kept details of the wedding secret until the last minute.

Barbara Ann was last seen in a white, ruffled gown before her wedding in French silk brocade, it had a portrait neckline and bell skirt to emphasize her tiny waist. She wore good-luck talismans traditional to brides.

"Something old, something borrowed and something blue" was a blue garter trimmed with old lace, loaned to her by a bridesmaid (her "something new" was a silver charm inscribed with her name and her husband's).

3 Priests Emerge From Imprisonment In China

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Three American priests emerged from two years' captivity in Communist China Sunday, raising to six the number of Americans released under the agreement reached by the Chinese and Americans in Geneva earlier this month. Four others are expected within the next few days.

Fathers Frederick D. Gordon of Somerset, Ohio, Joseph E. Hyde of Lowell, Mass., and James G. Joyce of Clinton, Mass., appeared pale but hardy. They said they had received "quite easy treatment."

In the only other American held received "quite easy treatment."

A Spanish priest, Father Louis Remigo Bolumburu, arrived 15 minutes before the Americans. He had not been expected.

The three American priests refused to say whether they had confessed to the sabotage charges for which they were kept under house arrest.

Asked whether he had signed a confession when his sentence was read to him, Father Gordon said: "We all signed something but we would rather not talk about it."

Father Gordon, who is 57 and the religious superior of the group,

He said the Communists subjected them to long interrogations, and questioned him about everything—except who killed Cock Robin.

Asked what he had to say about the Communist charge that he "shielded" counter-revolutionary elements," he replied: "It is difficult to answer that. It would be necessary to write a book."

City police had 115 men detailed for the exercise along with 40 men from the army's provost corps and 15 civil defence police. Outside the city the RCMP had every available man on duty. Only one minor traffic accident was reported during the "raid" period.

While expressing disappointment at the response, Mr. Vickery said the operation did much for the civil defence organization "and everything along this line was excellent."

He said when the next exercise is conducted in the spring "we will have a better idea of the problems."

He hoped the power commissions of Maine and New Brunswick would take the matter further. He regarded the tourist industry as another field where broader international cooperation was desirable.

Mr. Bowditch advised APC's directors to "select their problems carefully, to enter them thoroughly and to go in with a united front."

The council has picked agriculture, power, trade and tourism as the fields where it will concentrate its initial efforts toward a strengthened economy. The idea is to set up the machinery for the widest possible circulation of information on each of these topics to governments and industry.
