

Prosecutions For Unemployment Ins. Let Infractions

OTTAWA, July 5 — More than 100 prosecutions for infractions of the Unemployment Insurance Act were instituted by the Unemployment Insurance Commission during the fiscal year ended March 31 last. During the same period 10 convictions were registered. In the previous fiscal year 714 prosecutions of all types were commenced.

In giving out these figures the Unemployment Insurance Commission emphasized the fact that its officers are required to see that the law is observed. During the early years of the Unemployment Insurance program there was perhaps some reason for failure to observe its provisions. Now, however, the Act has been in effect for nearly a decade, and information respecting its provisions is obtainable at any employment office of the Commission. Consequently the Commission feels that a policy of more rigorous enforcement is justified.

In analysing the prosecutions it is noted that those against claimants for benefit totalled 751 whereas, in the previous fiscal year this total was 594. Prosecutions against employers for failure to pay contributions on behalf of insurable employees totalled 270 as compared with 69 in 1948-49.

Yanks Find Canadian Lumber Prices Too High

NEW YORK, July 5 — (CP) — E. R. Plunkett, head of one of the largest lumber wholesalers in the Northeast United States, said yesterday that some American distributors are considering a 30-day withdrawal from the Canadian market because of high prices.

Plunkett, president of Plunkett-Webster, Incorporated, said mill prices of upper-grade Canadian hardwoods now are so high that American distributors can't pay the price and still resell at a profit. He said the mill price of birch and maple now stands at $220 a thousand board feet at nearly every mill in Canada. This was 10 per cent more than American distributors can pay.

Plunkett blamed the huge demand by American furniture manufacturers, particularly in the New England States, for the high prices.

While the price of $220 has been quoted by some Canadian mills for a long time, he said, it is only in the last 10 days that virtually all Canadian mills have fallen into line.

Plunkett reported that a representative of his company had just returned from Ottawa, where mill officials "wouldn't even talk to him" when he offered $200 a thousand.

The representative also reported that there were 10 buyers for every carload of lumber.

Plunkett said no definite decision has yet been reached on the 30-day withdrawal, but "we must decide soon if we want to back away for a month or gamble that furniture manufacturers will accept Canadian lumber, which is bound to advance an additional 10 to 15 per cent if all distributors stay in the market."

"We hesitate about immediate withdrawal only because we know some distributors definitely will continue to buy."

Criminal Code Said Adequate

OTTAWA, July 5 — (CP) — Justice Minister Garson said in the Commons a large number of convictions against drunken drivers can be obtained under the Criminal Code if the provinces really want to enforce the law.

He made the statement after John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) and A. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West)—both lawyers—renewed requests that Canada adopt a system under which drivers involved in accidents be subjected to breath, blood or urine tests if it appears they are intoxicated.

Mr. Garson said he did not wish to indicate that legislation providing for such tests will never be brought down, but at present the provinces are opposed to such action.

The Justice Department agreed with the necessity for some method to prevent accidents caused by drunken drivers. The department did not disagree with the test devices, but evidence showed they were more difficult to employ than many persons believed.

Some experts claimed the tests could not be relied on to give accurate information on the degree of intoxication.

Mr. Garson said Mr. Diefenbaker had mentioned in an earlier debate the difficulty of obtaining convictions of drunken drivers under existing legislation. Following that debate, Mr. Garson wrote to the Attorney-General of Manitoba for information on the number of convictions in that province. He had found that only eight per cent of the accused brought before the courts in Winnipeg were acquitted.

This showed, said Mr. Garson, that the present sections of the Criminal Code are enforceable and that a large number of convictions can be obtained without the tests.

In launching the discussion during study of Mr. Garson's 1950-51 estimates, Mr. Diefenbaker said that Detroit had reduced fatalities from drunken driving by 93 per cent in six years following adoption of the breath test.

The test removed the possibility of the defence claiming that a driver's condition following an accident was due to shock and not to intoxication.

He said that when he had raised the subject in the Commons several weeks ago every outstanding newspaper in Canada, with about two exceptions had favored doing something to prevent the colossal casualty toll taken by drunken drivers.

Deaths caused by drunken drivers were five or six times as many as those resulting from murder or manslaughter.

Some might claim that a breath test would represent interference with the rights of the individual. He disagreed and said such a test would give the man an opportunity to prove his innocence of intoxication when involved in an accident for which he was obviously guilty.

Mr. Smith said it was difficult to obtain convictions in drunken driving cases. The accused could always produce friends who would claim that they had been with him and he had only taken a couple of beers and a sip out of someone else's glass.

Fort Augustus First Aid Class

On Tuesday evening the Junior First Aid Class conducted in the Fort Augustus Hall by Edward Baird of Webster's Corner and James Dohrn of Charlottetown was tested. Seventeen candidates were enrolled in this class and of these fourteen successfully completed the tests. The other three candidates were unable to complete the course because of illness.

Mr. Baird and Mr. Dohrn are to be highly commended for their splendid work with this class. These two young men were successful in passing tests for Standard First Aid Certificates while attending St. Dunstan's University during the winter and were so keenly interested in the work that they organized a class among the school children in Edward's home district.

True Success Story

ary passed away at the age of eighty-six years. After his death no one took enough interest in the mission to carry on the good work, and the Indian converts gradually fell from grace and took up their former manner of living.

Many years after John Eliot had been in his grave those in charge of Indian affairs finally realized the value of his long years of labor. But the task he had devoted the greater part of his life to lay fallow because the pioneer educator and missionary par excellence left no worthy successors.

Close to the site where the first Indian Church was built stands a monument to this self-sacrificing preacher and teacher, who was one of the very few to claim justice for the original inhabitants of the new world. Had the white the vision to follow this modern St. Paul many misunderstandings and much bloodshed might have been avoided between the two races. Forcing a savage people to obey laws which they did not understand was among the mistakes that must ever smear the white man's rule in the North American continent.
