Forsees Canadian Embassy At Vatican

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT Canadian Press Staff Writer THEFTORD MINES, Que. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday the day will come when Canada will have an ambassador to the Vatican.

Speaking in French in the town school yard to an audience of about 1,500 in this asbestos mining centre, Mr. St. Laurent said appointment of an ambassador to the Vatican cannot be made at this time "because there are still honest Canadians who would interpret this gesture as an insult against their religion."

"They are wrong, and I might add that if the matter rested only with my colleagues the appointment could be made."

"But what would be the good of arousing a religious quarrel?" Mr. St. Laurent said he felt the day will come when an ambassador to the Vatican will be acceptable to all Canadians.

The question of bilingual government cheques was another that would eventually be settled.

Mr. St. Laurent said his government is striving to make Canada fully autonomous and so far many steps had been taken without causing quarrels.

SIR ARCHIBALD

This reason Britain was dependent on imports but could no longer purchase them from the natural sources because of the lack of dollars to spend. He quoted figures to show the adverse trade balance between Britain and this country and suggested that Canadians might buy more British made automobiles.

The speaker referred to the fact that many of the things being made in Britain were not available to the people there, they are only for export. He also stated that despite the frequently voiced criticism of Britain for not producing export commodities in greater quantities the workmen there were putting in several hours a week more time than similar labourers in Canada.

Sun Not Setting

However, he found in this country a great admiration for the Old Country, especially for its tradition and culture and for what Britain has already contributed to the world in many ways. He flatly denied that "the sun of England is setting and wanted to dispel any minds holding these thoughts. He maintained that his country, through its engineers, led the whole world in the field of jet transportation.

Sir Archibald admitted that his country faced a difficult future with problems which cannot be solved in a day. He said that no sudden nor spectacular results could be expected and that hard-ship and sacrifice had to follow for some years to come. But he presented a brighter picture when he said that productivity was greater than it had been, and the whole outlook was better. And he closed with the remark that if trade with this country could be advanced on equal terms he felt that Britain could look forward to the future with faith, courage and confidence.

Presiding at the dinner yesterday was Rotary president Brudenell W. W. Reid who called on Premier A. W. Matheson to introduce the guest speaker. The Premier did so in a short talk in which he stated that if he talked too long it would be unfair to those present who wished to hear Sir Archibald Nye.

The speaker was thanked by Mayor J. D. Stewart who expressed the hope that he would come again soon and stay much longer.

Among the head table guests were Senator J. W. Jones, Dr. Harold Shaw, Provincial Pathologist, His Honour Lieutenant Governor T. W. L. Prowse, Mr. P. W. Turner, Mr. R. C. Parent, Mr. Edwin C. Johnston and Dr. Martin MacDonald, Florida.

Chatham Based Jets To Take Part In Air Show

Arrangements have been completed by officials of 201 (Confederation) Wing, R.C.A.F. Association to have a flypast of F-86 Sabre Jets from R.C.A.F. Station Chatham during the big air show tomorrow.

The Naval base at Shearwater, N.S. are also sending along a helicopter, which in the past has been stealing the spotlight from all the professional flyers at large air meets.

Final details have been made by officials of the Air Show Committee and personnel of National Air Shows from Columbus, Ohio to present a first class program of dare-devil trick flying. With the addition of the R.C.A.F. and Naval Fleet Air Arm flyers, every flight line up to be a thriller.

The pilots are arriving in from Detroit, Mich., where they performed before 500,000 persons at the International Aviation Exposition, after several successful shows in New England centres. Two weeks ago they were at a show at Barre, Mass., and there were crowds overflowing into the runways there.

The show moves from Charlottetown to Fredericton, N.B., and Houlton, Me.

Bill Sweet, the famed "Bill Sweet" of Zack Mosley's comic-strip "Smilin' Jack" arrived in Charlottetown during the week, and is busy at present assembling the famed 1910 Curtis-Wright aircraft, which has been shown on posters and in the advertisement in the papers. This aircraft is the oldest flying machine in operation today.

A point of interest with the personnel of the show, is that Capt. Rodney Jocelyn, three-time winner of the International precision Aerobatic Trophy and four-time winner of the hard sought "Polishing Polons" trophy, flew over Charlottetown yesterday in a Pan American Airways Constellation on a flight from London. He left New York City for Charlottetown after a few hours rest last night and will arrive here today with his personal Y-220 Dart Special, which is the fastest rolling aircraft in aerobatics.

With the announcement of the flypast of jets, came the hoped for word that there would be one other jet which will do several acrobatic performances before its return to Chatham.

Word was also received that Bobby Ward, an International parachutist winner will arrive in Charlottetown today and be ready to thrill the patrons tomorrow.

Arrangements have been made to have the Central Women's Institute.

Circus Draws Large Crowds At The Exhibition Grounds

Yesterday was a big day for the youngsters of all ages who thronged the Exhibition grounds for the afternoon and evening performances of King Bros. and Christiani Circus.

The fans were treated to a fast moving series of acts starting with "The Circus on Parade" gymnastics feats, educated horses and ponies, trapeze performers, baby elephants, altogether twenty-two separate numbers which kept the packed stands entertained for over two hours. Among the acts which seemed outstanding, were the Christiani Family in a display of bareback riding, June Christiani with her highly trained elephants, and the "Rolo-Bollo" act of Fred and Orta Cavestrelli. Miss Orta also performed with an acrobatic group in which she did somersault from the teeter-board to the shoulders of the high man making a four-high stand.

The final act on the main show was the human cannonball, Hugo Zaehmann, who has perfected a cannon which will shoot him from one end of the big top to the other. The Wild West show which followed, featured some trick riding, knife throwing and fancy shooting, by members of the Seneca Indians.

The show which was sponsored in Charlottetown by the Kinsmen featured a street parade in the forenoon complete with callope, animal cages, clowns, bands, and elephants.

Children of both Orphanages, the Polio Clinic, and Infirmary were guests of the Kinsmen. A large number of children organized under the Playground Commission were also treated to the performance by the Kinsmen through money donated by a number of Charlottetown merchants.

The circus is playing this afternoon and evening in Summerside, sponsored by the Summerside Branch of the Canadian Legion.

Police Exonerated At Inquest On McQuarrie

"That Thomas MacQuarrie came to his death by strangulation, having hung himself from the cross bars of his cell" was the verdict reached at the inquest held yesterday in the City Hall. The jury verdict stated: "We find the Police handled him in the normal way, and his death has no reflection on the efficiency of the Police Department."

The inquest was conducted by Coroner Harold Stewart, Mr. J. P. Nicholson appearing for the Crown. Members of the Jury were Messrs. Thomas White (foreman), Harry Spencer, Willard Jordan, Holly Crockett, Donald MacEachern, Clifford Chandler and Harold Arsenault.

The first witness called was Police Chief C. E. MacArthur who said that on Friday July 17, shortly after 12.00 noon he had given a warrant for the arrest of the deceased to Constables Neil MacNevein and Robert Downe. He was in the police office when the deceased was brought in about 12.15 p.m. MacQuarrie, whom the Chief knew personally, appeared to be normal and showed no signs of intoxication.

When questioned by Mr. Nicholson as to the nature of the charge on which the deceased had been arrested, the Chief replied that he was arrested for "indecent assault on a young female."

The Police Chief left for his home and shortly after his arrival received a phone call saying that MacQuarrie was dead. He returned to the office and found MacQuarrie lying on the floor of No. 3 cell. He tried his pulse and examined him for reflexes, etc., and in his opinion the man was dead. The coroner was notified and a jury empanelled after viewing the remains they were instructed to meet at noon on Monday.

Arrest By Police Constable Neil MacNevein described getting a warrant for the arrest of MacQuarrie. He started in the patrol in company with Constable Robert Downe. They saw MacQuarrie on the corner of Grafton and St. George Sts. and called him over to the patrol; they told him he was under arrest, and the accused came along with them to the Police Station. He appeared sober and they could not detect the smell of liquor off his breath.

At 12.16 with Constable Downe, witness went into the cell block to read the warrant to him. The deceased listened to the warrant and asked a few questions as to its meaning. He was not locked in the cell but was allowed the freedom of the whole cell block; this was because of the fact that no other prisoners were occupying the quarters at the time.

Mr. Nicholson asked the witness how MacQuarrie was dressed at the time of his arrest. Officer MacNevein said that he was wearing a T-shirt and overalls.

Shortly after leaving the prisoner, he received a radio message in the patrol "to return to the station, that MacQuarrie was dead." He described seeing the deceased lying on the floor of No. 3 cell, his shirt was off and his pants were held up with a handkerchief tied through the loops. Constable Bishop was with him when he went into the cell block.

Constable Robert Downe corroborated the evidence of the previous witness.

Police officer Arthur Bishop was in the Police office on July 17 at 12.30 p.m. Mr. Jenkins from the King Edward hotel came in with a dinner which he said he had brought over for Tom MacQuarrie. The officer took the meal into the cell block and found the deceased hanging from the bars of No. 3 cell, with his feet about 3 inches off the floor.

Mr. Nicholson asked by what was he hanging? Constable Bishop said "by his belt". He then identified the belt which Mr. Nicholson produced, and went on to relate how he had taken his jack-knife and cut the body down. Asked whether the belt on exhibit was part of the cell equipment, or whether he seen it around there before, he replied that he had not seen it previously.

With the help of Chief MacArthur the witness then demonstrated to the jury the manner in which the belt had been used. Constable Bishop estimated that the man would weigh about 200 lbs.

Result of Autopsy Mr. Nicholson read the report of Dr. J. H. Shaw who made an examination of the body on Saturday morning. The report was as follows: "On authority of the Attorney General's Department, I examined the body of Thomas MacQuarrie at Cutcliffe's Funeral Home, Charlottetown, on Saturday morning, July 18, 1953 at 9 a.m. As a result of this examination, I am of the opinion that death in this case was due to asphyxiation caused by constriction in the neck area. Blood was removed for chemical analysis; the stomach and bladder were empty."

"Chemical examination of this blood indicates the presence of 3 milligrams of alcohol per cu. centimetre. This amount, in an average adult, may suggest that the individual is seriously intoxicated."

The Coroner explained to the jury that although the percentage of alcohol found in the examination was large, he noted that in a person who imbibed freely, this amount would not have the effect that it would have on the ordinary drinker. He also described how the man came to his death. There was no drop, as in some hangings when the neck is broken. This he said was a pure case of strangulation.

Mr. Nicholson, addressing the jury, told them that they were not there to find out why death had occurred but "how" it occurred. He went on to say that it was not the practise of the police force to remove clothing from prisoners brought in, and that no reflector having taken the deceased's belt from him.

After deliberating for about five minutes the jury brought in the above verdict.
