NEW ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—The Oddfellows of this city have unanimously resolved to fit up a Hall which will be a credit to the Order. Unitedly St. Lawrence and Wilder Lodges have secured for a term of years the second flat or third story of Mr. W. E. Dawson's brick building, situate on the corner of Great George and Kent Streets, and will immediately commence the fitting up of the premises, so that it will be ready for occupancy on the first day of July, 1884. When finished, the Oddfellows of this city will be able to boast of a Hall second to none in the Maritime Provinces. THE steamer "Summerside," which left Summerside for Pictou on Sunday night, reached Georgetown this morning. She encountered a heavy storm after leaving Summerside, and was obliged to keep her nose to the wind while it lasted. She reached Panmure Island last night, harbored by it, and called at Georgetown for coal this morning. A telegram received from Capt. Cameron to-day, states that he will leave Georgetown for Pictou as soon as the vapor rises. It is now in its place in the Engine house, King Street, ready for work. As regards workmanship and apparent strength it is very superior, and reflects great credit on the manufacturers as well as the Chief Engineer, who selected the design. The reel has a capacity of holding eleven hundred feet of hose. It is supported on an angle iron body eased by double Dexter springs at sides and rear, and single forward. The wheels are of the kind known as Sarven's patent, letter A, (the best manufacture) with steel axles. A seat for driver and pipeman is in a good position in front, while at the rear is a stand for a hoseman. At each side of the forward seat are convenient stands for nozzles, and under it is a gong to announce the coming or arrival of the reel. The whole is tastefully painted in red and green, and presents a very fine appearance. We learn that the stock—springs, wheels, etc.—for the reel, was bought of Messrs. Norton Bros., who always keep a large stock of carriage goods on hand. Our Advertisers. J. A. McInnis announces that the Very Rev. D. McDonald, D. D., will deliver a lecture on the "Celtic Race," in the Market Hall next Tuesday evening. A two-story dwelling house on Great George Street is offered for sale cheap.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

[SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.] New Steamer Lost—Lives Lost. SACKVILLE, Dec. 4. The particulars of the loss of the new steamer are as follows—She was built by O'Brien, at Macan, N. S. for the Dominion Government to take place of the "Glendon" sold last year. She was launched on Saturday last, taken by a tug to Wood Point near Sackville, and there delivered to the Government steamer "Newfield." The "Newfield" was to take her to Halifax where she was to be fitted up. When the "Newfield" and her tug were near Digby Gut the hawser suddenly parted, and in the darkness of the night and height of the storm, the unmanageable hull was driven against a square bluff rock near Prim Point light entrance of Digby Gut. Captain D. M. Brown, Superintendent of Light houses, and seven others were drowned—they being on board the new ship. Two men—a Dane and a sailor named Sol—got ashore, all right, and it is from them the particulars are learned. Nothing has since been heard of the "Newfield." Captain Brown belonged to Halifax, where he leaves a wife and children. Terrific Gale—Great Damage in Newfoundland. ST. JOHN'S Nfld., Dec. 3. TORONTO, December 4—10 a. m. Decreasing winds from northwest and southwest; stationary or higher temperature. For Teachers and Parents. A METHOD OF TEACHING TRUTHFULNESS. That there is in the mind of every pupil a greater or less resistance to evil tendencies, I thoroughly believe; yet before the teacher can render successful aid to his resistance she must understand the mental condition which makes temptation possible. Fear of consequences simply postpone the gratification of a propensity; it does not divert or strengthen the will. Satan first inclines the mind, then fortifies it with reasons, and I merely give him his dues when I add that he is a very active educator. We cannot do better than to adopt a method so successfully misapplied to our own uses. I shall not soon forget the sudden gleam of intelligence upon the face of a little fellow, ten years of age, whom I had occasion to reprimand for an attempt to copy from a neighbor's slate, when he saw his act in its true light. After some little talk, in which he acknowledged that he could not learn by copying, I asked, "What do you suppose I gave you that question for, Henry—the answer?" "I always thought that it was the answer you wanted," he replied. "There you make a great mistake. The answer is of no consequence to me at all, if you do not comprehend it. The example was given that I might see whether you could reason it out or not. Instead of showing me that you understand it, you bring to me Johnny H.'s work, which only proves, if you do not. Now, who is going to tell me whether Henry understands or not, if he takes care of his neighbor and neglects himself?" TRAINING VS. TELLING. In intellectual teaching, a child may commit to memory the whole rules of English or Latin grammar, and may be able to repeat every example and answer every query contained in the book itself, thoroughly and correctly; and thus far he shows the extent of his instruction or teaching. The child is only under training, however, when he is put to the work of applying these rules to the formation of a sentence in speaking or writing; and it is evident that a person well taught in the rules may be exceedingly ill-trained, or not trained at all, to the practice of speaking or writing grammatically. Ere the child, therefore, is a trained grammarian, his mind must be made to bear upon the subject—he must understand it, and actually apply for himself the rules of speaking and writing correctly.—David Stow. DISCIPLINE. Never threaten, or scold. Never say, "John, if you don't stop that I shall punish you severely." Or, having been so unwise and hasty as to declare an intention to punish, do so. Your failure to carry out your threat will convince the children that you are infirm of purpose and untruthful, and they know by instinct that weakness or falsity can be imposed upon by the daring or disorderly with impunity. Scolding and fretting and impatience are also indications of weakness, and the child who is not tempted by them to trespass on rules afresh is a very exceptional child, indeed. The general rules of discipline may be varied somewhat for the different classes of children found in different localities, but the qualities they demand in the teacher are in the main always the same. Firmness is needed, also kindness, and absolute self-control. "Let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay." Mean what you say, and say what you mean. Seek for a wise and temperate theory, and follow it up with a sensible, consistent practice, and the probabilities are that your difficulties in disciplinary work need no longer imperil your happy success.—Present Age.
