Religious Notes.

The Fredericton, N. B. Baptists are building a $16,000 church.

The United Presbyterian Assembly of the United States has decided, by a narrow majority to tolerate the use of organs in public worship.

The Wesleyans in Great Britain now number:—Members, 393,630, increase 12,674; on trial, 39,209; deaths, 5,009; new members, 56,286. The Primitives have 191,320 members in England, and an increase in the past year of 6,017.
Its incomes for missions last year was $176,000.

In order to make the burden of supporting a church more uniform and relieve the poorer members from paying, as they now do, the greater portion of church expenses, the Methodist publish-a system of taxation whereby the value of each member's property and income is assessed and a pro rata tax placed thereon.

Among the Wesleyan Methodists in England there are gratifying evidences of financial prosperity; new chapels are rising, and almost every week one or two are being opened. They average sittings for one thousand persons, and in most cases with easy debts only remaining on them. Another gratifying sign is the spread of "Bands of Hope" among the young, and the extended patronage given to the blue ribbon temperance movement.

Archbishop Watkins, who has just been collated to a Canonry in Durham Cathedral, which has been vacant for nearly a year, has found himself entitled to about £700 in taking possession of the stall. The Archdeacon, with a rare generosity, has placed the amount at the disposal of the Bishop of Durham, to be distributed privately, at his discretion, among the most needy of the poorer incumbents of the diocese.

Probably California contained for some years the most godless population in the land. For some years the Church seemed to be utterly without influence, while all the wealth and fashion of San Francisco was irreligious beyond description; but now the churches are a decided power, and the whole Pacific Coast is becoming as Christian as other parts of the country. Even at a disad-vantage, religion will get the upper hand in time.

Egyptian Notes.

Under the auspices of Arabi, a paper in Arabic entitled El Jehad (The Holy War) has appeared at Tan'ah, and is eagerly perused by the Mussulmans, passages of it being read aloud in the mosques by the Imams. It is highly inflammatory in style and matter.

According to the Vatan, the organ of Arabi Pasha, the following are the different political Egyptian parties:—1.
The learned men who have studied at El Azhar and the other schools at Cairo and elsewhere. The number of students at El Azhar is 10,000. They belong to the National party, with the exception of twenty-five Sheiks. 2. The Arab merchants and shop-keepers. 3. The merchants who know how to write and read, and study the newspapers. 4. The Sheiks and delegates to the villages. 5.
The half million Koftan Christians who embrace the party of the Mussulmans 6. The army, except the Circassian officers, who are secretly for Ismail Pasha or Halim Pasha. 7. The fellahs, who understand politics, and hope that Arabi will liberate them from their debts and the tyranny of the Moudirs. 8. The Arabs of the Province of Behera, who have much resemblance with the Bedouins. The true Bedouins detest politics and the fellahs.

The position of a pilot on the Suez Canal is peculiar. The master of a vessel is bound to take a pilot for the trip through the canal, but the pilot is present, in the sight of the law, to advise and not to act. The English Court of Appeal has just decided the question, the case arising from a collision in the canal. Under the English law the master is not responsible while a pilot is in charge. One of the rules of the Suez Canal Company provides that a captain shall retain his original responsibility.
The general point raised was whether English law or the Company's rules were the standard, but the decision turned on the relation of the pilot to the vessel at fault. The Court ruled that the pilot was present to place at the disposal of the master his experience and knowledge of the canal, but that the duty of carrying out these principles of the pilot devolved upon the captain, under the rules of the Company. The owners, therefore, are held responsible for the damages which ensued from the pilot's negligence.

"We learn with rare pleasure that ex Sanitary Commissioner Rufus K. Hirenman, of New Orleans, was cured of a severe attack of rheumatism by St.
Jacobs Oil," says the Columbus (Ga.) Empire.

Personal.

FRANCIS FITZGERALD, Baron of the Exchequer of Ireland, has resigned owing to his objections to the duties imposed on him under the repression bill.

The will of the late Mr. S. B. Smith, of Toronto, has been admitted to probate, and it is estimated that the value of the estate will be $150,000. The Church of the Ascension received $30,- 000 for an endowment. He also gave $5,000 to the Protestant Divinity School and $500 each to the different city charities.

M. DE CORDOYA, "the Thackeray of the platform," is a satirist, but a geniel one. His shafts are aimed at the foibles and weaknesses of society, and are replete with humor as well as strong common sense. His lectures are models of English composition, such as a scholar and a gentleman would produce and be delighted to hear. Sparkling with wit and humor from beginning to end, they are calculated to entrance an audience, and keep it spellbound from the start to the finish.

Arabi Pasha still follows the example of Blake Pasha. Arabi is now conspiring against the Khedive, his chief, just as Blake Pasha conspired against Mackenzie Pasha, his chief. Arabi also follows Blake Pasha's tactics inasmuch as that he talks big, and threatens to injure a great public undertaking—the Suez canal.
Arabi Pasha makes a great noise in the world at present. Blake Pasha made a noise in Canada for a season. But Canada's Arabi is quiet now. The attention of the ambitious Egyptian should be directed to Blake Pasha's fate.

Fashion Notes.

Magnolia white is a charming tint for the rich silks and satins of evening dresses.

Large foulard fans, used instead of parasols and matching the costume, are the latest Parisian novelty.

The princess pelisse, a long over-garment of India pongee, is useful as a traveling cloak. It is bordered with a chicoree ruche.

The sash panier, terminating behind with a long looped bow, is more popular than the festooned drapery that curves upward in the front.

The striped cadet blue gingham, with plaitings showing the darkest stripe on top of each plait, are pretty for morning dresses in the front.

Ivory-white surah dresses for summer evening parties have the skirt covered with flounces of Venetian embroidery, imitating the designs of old point lace.

The artificial flowers of the season are small sun-flowers, carnations, primroses, violets, mustard mignonette, honeysuckle, cowslips, and the homely thistle.
Currants are also in great demand, as well as large French plums, upon which the bloom rests so naturally that one can scarcely resist the temptation to eat them.

A curious case was tried a day or two ago in the Port Hope Police Court.
The defendant was a Baptist minister, the Rev. A. F. McDiarmid, and the plaintiff a member of the Town Council, who claimed redress for having had his feelings vexed, harassed and annoyed, by the defendant's abuse of "Satan, sin, circuses and the Town Councilors." The Reverend gentleman whose belligerency caused such vexation, harassment and annoyance to his super-sensitive accuser, was after a due hearing of the case honorably discharged. The magistrate, no doubt, thought that the defendant was only proceeding in the line of professional duty in abusingly Satan, in denouncing sin, in saying some blunt things about circuses and even in reviling the Town Council, if the plaintiff in the case may be taken as a fair specimen of the honorable body.
We always thought any one had a right to say anything he chose, privately or openly, of a disrespectful sort of the arch-enemy of mankind; and that to denounce sin was rather creditable than otherwise.

The scene of Irish crime seems to have somewhat shifted of late. In driving through the King's County or Tipperary, a few years ago, a resident would point out at every mile or two the spot where "poor So and So was shot," but to-day Galway seems to be the most murderous of counties. Three of her landlords have fallen in nine weeks, without the last prospect of the perpetrators being discovered.

The Boston Post says the true place for labor to fight its battles against capital is at the polls. The workmen, however, oppose their employers, tooth and nail, by the foolish methods of the trades unions and then vote for a system of taxation that is their constant curse, at the gentlest intimation of these employers.
