

HAPPENINGS

Miss Edna Power returned to Saint John, Monday after visiting her parents, Mrs. J. H. Nicholas Power, the latter now patient in the Charlotte-Hotel Hospital. Miss Power recently visited in Chicago where she attended the International Intercourse Conference on a 111 international agents and Chemotherapy.

Miss Myrna Pictaris, RN, East Royalty, left by plane Monday for Montreal to attend the conference of operating room nurses being held at the University of Montreal.

Roger Lester Mellich, Sr., North River Road, Charlotte, is at present visiting his wife, Harold Mellich, Petticoat, N.C.

The wedding of Charles MacEachern, Banff, Alta., youngest son of Mrs. Gordon MacEachern, New Argyle, P.E.I., and Patricia Pollard Burns, Lunenburg, N.S., took place recently at Belfast Presbyterian Church. Rev. Donald Nicholson officiated. Mrs. John Haslam was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Mary Kearney, Banff, was best man. Telegrams of best wishes were read from the bride's parents and friends in England. Following a reception at the Queen Hotel and the bride and groom spent their honeymoon touring the Maritimes. They have taken up residence in New Argyle.

Miss Jean Somerville, United Church missionary to Trinidad, left for her assignment on Wednesday evening at an opening at Kensington United Church. Her husband, Rev. L.M. Murray led the worship service and introduced Miss Somerville. The guests speaker related recollections of time spent in China and Hong Kong, and of the work now being carried out in Trinidad. She explained the need for Christian education workers and for encouragement for the people of Trinidad in their role of a new nation. Also of interest was her graphic description of conditions in the country and its people.

The CGIT and Tuxis groups attended a body.

Roger Kennedy, Kensington, is making a good recovery after undergoing surgery at the P.E.I. Island Hospital, Charlottetown, on Monday.

Elmer Paynter, Kensington, was taken to the Prince County Hospital, Summerside, on Friday by ambulance, after becoming unwell while at work. Mr. Paynter is employed with the firm of W.S. MacLean, Kensington.

A large number of friends and neighbors gathered recently at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Woodside, Clinton, to tender a house warming.

When all had assembled, the bride and groom addressed the guests and explained the purpose of the wedding, and called upon James Woodside, who read the address while a purse was presented by Wilfred Pickering on behalf of the friends and neighbors.

Mr. Woodside, on behalf of his family and himself, thanked the guests for their presence and extended an invitation to all to visit them at any time.

All joined in singing, "For they are jolly good fellows". Refreshments were served by the ladies.

ELLEN'S DIARY

White Flurry In The Valley Is A Foretaste Of Winter

And the pigeons last night family sleep throughout the wintery days. Indeed its short flight, like that of the Canada Goose marked two seasons for nurse, and many intermittently, and thrive throughout this day. "Close the door after you, Ellen, to keep the audience out - Quiet now!" James whispered when we came to look at them there in the sky. Cool the morning was. And the afternoon?

"See!" Alex at a window exclaimed, smiling then at the sight. "It's snowing!"

In a forest of winter, a white flurry moved in along the valley. And back of it, the spruces and firs were the dark green of the wintry shadow. Snow! And we pictured the un-reaped harvest-fields here and there island over, the rows of stocks untroubled, the potatoes not yet safe from the frosts, and the turnips and carrots in the neighborhood glistened down toward the marshy lands where the tides ebbed and flowed, and the moon and stars, and diamonds and stars, in the abundance of them.

Did we not get them? Oh no. Lying at full length on the green bank, the ripples of the sky assist the chance of a sudden dip in the cool flow below, like a Tabby, we reached out a paw

MARY HAWORTH

Married Mom's Boy Puts Off Girl's Bridal Plans

Dear Mary Haworth: Jack is 30; I am 28. I have known him for nearly a year. He is the only man I have ever really loved and I would like to marry him soon. There lies the problem. He, an only child, admits his mother has always tried to over-protect him. The father died when he was in college.

In 1942, when going to war, Jack couldn't bear to leave his mother alone (although she has a sister and other relatives nearby). So he married Jane, an occasional date, who was a perfect companion for his mother.

On his return from the war, their marriage failed, but they still live in the same house, leading separate lives, with his mother as queen. He has become a business executive, respected and esteemed.

He takes me to dinner once a week, always out of town to protect our reputation. He gives me lavish gifts, calls me often, says he loves me and is living for the day when we can be married.

At first he said we can't marry until after his mother dies, as he loves me and is living for the day when we can be married. I might add, too, that the pen picture you give, of this self-styled devoted son, hopefully looking ahead to his mother's death, as a consummation devoutly to be desired, in terms of setting him free to do as he pleases - this isn't my idea of a lovely trustworthy character.

He sounds rather chillingly competent, emotionally as if he has the capacity to care deeply just isn't in him.

You ask for help in promoting your marriage campaign. Actually the help you should have is help in renouncing this quicksand ambition. You must be very lonely to have gotten involved. My advice is, talk things over with a clergyman or psychologist, to regain perspective on how to deal wisely with your needs - M.H.

WINNING THIS MONTREAL (CP) - The 12th annual Canadian Construction Association competition for the best thesis on construction subjects went this year to Lars Erik Vilander, 24, a Stockholm, born Montrealer, who graduated this year in engineering from McGill University.

WOULD GIVE UP TASK MONTREAL (CP) - The French - Language Lay Movement has adopted a resolution calling for the Roman Catholic Church in Quebec province to cease to civil authorities the responsibility of registering births, deaths, marriages and divorces. The group held a meeting here Saturday. It was formed a few years ago with the objective of establishing a neutral school system separate from the church.

And, on the sweet delirium that they were, fried in the heavy iron pan on the low-hearth stove then come to the summer's end. It seemed that though one could hardly bear to wait to savor them, so tantalizing was the aroma of the cooking. Equal, we decided to that of the buckwheat pancakes, which fried in the same manner spread, and fluffed, and crisped and browned, delicately, and often marked with the quaint stove's fall-flight to that inner room, we remember so well.

Old snowdrifts, this day brought. But now the stars blossom in a nice promise, it would seem, for tomorrow.

"But signs aren't dependable not these times, Ellen," James commented, when we spoke of them.

At any rate, rain or shine, tomorrow will bring a new November day.

Until tomorrow - - Diary - Good-night.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES KENNEDY

Young Couple Pledge Vows At Holy Redeemer Church

The church of the Most Holy Redeemer in Charlottetown was the scene of a pretty wedding when Leona Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Weatherly, Charlottetown, was united in marriage with James Kenford Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Kensington. Rev. Francis MacLeay, O.C.S. performed the double ring ceremony.

Baskets of mixed flowers adorned the altar, and fifty bouquets of lilies of the valley, tied with white satin bows, marked the guest pew. Alex MacLeay was organist, and Miss Leah Dart rendered appropriate hymns during the nuptial Mass and the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in a gown of floor length gown of embroidered net over bridal satin with a hooped skirt and chapel train. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a mother of pearl and sequin crown. She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses entwined with white satin ribbons and ferns.

Mrs. Austin MacQuaid, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of light blue net over tulle with matching picture hat, and carried a bouquet of yellow mums.

Mrs. Gordon Kennedy, sister-in-law of the groom, and Miss Marlene Weatherly, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore street length dresses

Try Unusual New Ways With An Old Favorite

THIS Thanksgiving Week, the Christmas and I are stirring old favorite foods in new ways. For example, new uses for cranberries, first introduced to our early settlers by the Indians, add a glamorous highlight to assemblies of holiday relatives.

The relish dish, passed in many a successful restaurant or hotel dining room, is a glamorous treat. Yet it is easily prepared at home.

You will need a compartment for the relishes such as carrot, celery, turnip, beet or cucumber - or cherry tomatoes; coleslaw if a salad is not menu; cottage cheese prepared at home.

Measurements are level. CRANBERRY CRUTNEY 2 cups fresh cranberries, halved

3 cups canned pineapple, diced 6 dried peaches, cut small 1/2 cup orange-chopped crystallized candied ginger 1/2 cup dark raisins

1 cup sliced blanched almonds 1 cup unspun molasses 1 cup wine vinegar 1 teaspoon curry powder 1 teaspoon dry mustard

Spiders help keep a balance in insect and mite populations and thus perform a service in agriculture.
