THE DAILY EXAMINER
NOVEMBER 7, 1900.
REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

THE expected has happened in the States. Mr. McKinley has been re-elected, and the Republicans—i. e. the Conservatives of the States—have a substantial majority in the House of Representatives. This result will be accepted as presaging good for North America and the English-speaking world. It is a guarantee of the continuance of the conditions under which the United States have prospered in the past four years—beyond comparison and precedent,—and it is an assurance of the continuance of the friendly relations which now subsist between the United States and Great Britain. Upon both these accounts we rejoice. It is good to have a prosperous and a friendly neighbor.

DEFEAT OF CROKER.
PERHAPS the most gratifying fact in the result of the United States elections is the defeat of Croker and his Tammany. The honest and honorable men of the great republic have evidently combined forces against the elements which Croker represents. Croker has lost his $100,000,—and it is clear that while such men as he may obtain temporary advantages in some elections, they have no chance in a National or State contest with the forces which make for righteous and good government. The inference we draw is that, under all the corruption that prevails, the United States is still sound at heart and clear in brain.

STRIKE AT SYDNEY.
THE employment of large numbers of United States workmen at Sydney has developed the strike. It appears that the Riter-Conley Company gave notice on Saturday that the day's work of the men would be reduced to nine hours, and to pay proportionately. On Sunday afternoon a meeting of the workmen was held, and on Monday morning the strike began. It is not likely that it will have a serious effect.

EXPANSION APPROVED.
The policy of expansion has been distinctly approved by the majority of the United States. Mr. Bryan and his backers took strong ground against that policy. Opposition to expansion was indeed their best card,—but the winning card was held by McKinley who authorized the measures taken in the Philippines.

ANTICIPATED PROSPERITY
In anticipation of the success of the Republicans in the election, Henry Clews remarked last week, that: "it seems safe to say that we are entering upon a great and permanent extension of our export trade that may be trusted to keep our industries in a healthy and prosperous condition."

NOTES AND COMMENTS.
SHAKESPEARE'S LITTLE ENGLAND.
"Little England" is Shakespeare's pearian. To the immortal William England was "like little body with a mighty heart," and in "Henry VIII." he makes the shrewd old lady prophesy to Anne Boleyn:
"In faith for little England You'd venture an emballing," the reference being to an investment with the orb, one of the insignia used at a coronation. A century later Sir John Vnburgh wrote:
"I've heard wise men in politicks
lay down
What feats by little England might be done.
Were all agreed and all would act
as one."

THE WAR.
London, November 6.—The return of the remaining colonial troops from South Africa is not likely to be delayed by the renewed guerilla warfare on the part of the Boers. While a complete scheme for the demobilization of the army in South Africa has been published and put in partial effect, the public receives day by day accounts of hostile operations in almost every quarter of the conquered republics. It is evident that the dangers from guerilla warfare have been increased since the large commandos were broken up into smaller bands. There is skirmishing everywhere, with no decisive result, as the Boers divide and subdivide and elude pursuit. The War Office will not abandon its policy of recalling surplus troops, but it will be enforced with great deliberation. The volunteers and colonials may count with confidence upon eating their Christmas dinner at home, and possibly the Guards may be equally fortunate; but the bulk of the force is likely to spend the winter on the veldt.

The definite announcement that Lord Roberts will sail from Cape Town on November 20 is welcomed as a sign of the close of the war. There is a good deal of ignorant moralizing over what is called the failure of his mistaken policy of leniency. Those behind the scenes understand that Lord Roberts has not been solely responsible for that policy, but that Sir Alfred Milner in South Africa and the ministers in London have insisted throughout the military operations that as little resentment as possible should be excited among the Dutch, since the two races were destined to remain side by side in the conquered territories.

Lord Roberts, while a noble and magnanimous man, is a stern, bold soldier, and has acted throughout according to his own judgment. It is not believed that Lord Kitchener will remain long in South Africa if he be intrusted with the chief command. He has always done his best work when unrestrained by political considerations. He has not got on well with Lord Roberts during the campaign, and is not likely to cooperate with Sir Alfred Milner without much friction.

The celebration is over. The shouting is done. The soldier boys are home, but not all. And now for a souvenir—a souvenir of those who have come home, of those who are still in Africa, and of those who will never return. Something which you can keep, something dainty, something which you can send to your friends away, something which contains pictures of ALL of the Island heroes. Such a souvenir can now be had at all of the bookstores and news stands. The price is ten cents each.

—The election in Newfoundland takes place to-morrow. Yesterday was election day in the United States. Today is election day in Canada.

The phase was first given a political turn in Germany, where "Little Germans" and "Great Germans were terms widely current in the fifties.
How it came to England is not quite clear, but the first record of its being used in a political sense is as recent as July 20, 1884, when it was used in a Pall Mall leading article. "The advocates of a little England, where are they now? asked the Pall Mall editor, writing from the chair which had until a few months before been occupied by Mr. John Morley.—London Express.
