

THE DAILY EXAMINER OCTOBER 12, 1882.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION! SECOND DAY.

Interest Manifested to the Last.

To-day the people thronged to the show in even greater numbers than yesterday, and our notes have increased to such an extent that for want of space, we are compelled to hold over a large number, including those of Lieutenant Governor Haviland's speech, until to-morrow.

HORSES.

The horses were paraded this forenoon, in the presence of many admiring spectators. The entries include 5 carriage stallions, 11 roadster stallions, 7 carriage colts, under 3 yrs.; 9 carriage colts, under 2 yrs.; 7 carriage mares with foal; 6 estrige fillies, under 3 yrs.; 8 carriage fillies, under 2 yrs.; 4 cart stallions; 3 cart colts, under 3 yrs.; 9 cart mares; 4 cart fillies, under 3 yrs.; 3 cart fillies, under 2; 11 foals, sired by "Barrister." The exceptionally fine action, color and points of "Hernando" were greatly admired, and the splendid young stallions, sired by "Royal Harry," and owned by Messrs. McMillan and Lea, were also objects of much favorable comment. Mr. Peter Stewart's fine carriage stallion was also in favor with the public. The carriage fillies were a very good class, and quite numerous. The show of draft horses was not so large as it should have been. The imported stallion Barrister was on the ground in splendid condition, and Mr. Pickering's horse was much admired. The cart mares were altogether a fine lot, and their foals by Barrister are, without doubt, the finest assortment of cart colts ever shown in this Province. Mr. William Auld, of Bannockburn, showed a splendid mare and a fine foal; but as the foal was from the Royal Harry, and not from a cart horse, the judges did not award a first prize. Hon. Mr. McMillan's splendid cart mare took a first prize, and was much admired. She would show well in any exhibition. Mr. Alexander Martin's mare and foal were well worthy of the prizes they drew, and of special mention. Several others deserved notices; and, of some, the least said the better.

CATTLE.

The show of cattle was much too small for the capabilities of the Province; the entries numbering only 75; but some first-class animals were shown. The splendid heifers lately purchased in Canada by Henry Longworth, Esq., were a centre of admiration and commendation in this class. They are, certainly, the finest animals of the noble Durham breed ever brought to the Province. Mr. Holland's magnificent bull has improved since he drew forth the admiration of the Nova Scotians and New Brunswickers at the Dominion Exhibition of last year. George Vessey, of Little York, showed a splendid short-horn bull 3 years old, and Henry Longworth, Esq., as usual led the van in the show of cows and heifers—closely followed however by Mr. Louis Jenkins, of Upton. Very fine heifers were shown by His Honor the Lieut.-Governor, F. L. Haszard, Joseph Tweedy, George Tweedy, William Heard, George Mason, Henry Lawson, and others, and there were a few very pretty calves on the ground.

SHEEP.

There was a better competition in this class of animals than in any other. The entries numbered 140, the greater proportion being in pairs and pens, so that the animals on exhibition numbered several hundreds, and altogether there was a very fair assortment, in Leicesters and Shropshire Downs. The leading exhibitors were H. Longworth, Joseph Tweedy, Albert Boswall, Henry Lane, F. L. Haszard, Benjamin E. Wright, Mr. F. G. Boyer, Georgetown Royalty, deserved great credit for his exhibits; and some exceptionally fine animals were shown by Messrs. Wheatley, John Holman, John S. McLeod, James Dixon, John Smith and others. The pen of Oxford-Downs recently purchased at the Kingston Exhibition were, however, the great attraction of the sheep class.

PIGS.

Of the grunter class there were but twenty-three entries all told. But small as was the competition it showed that at least some of our farmers are honestly and successfully striving by careful breeding to improve and beautify common things. Some of the pigs would have charmed the eye of Oscar Wilde. The magnificent sow shown by Hon. Lauchlin McMillan was truly a masterpiece. Her usefulness is shown in the production every year of a large litter of little ones, and her beauty is displayed in eating little and taking on much fat. She is, we have no doubt, the finest pig ever shown in Charlottetown; and a gentleman who has travelled was heard to say that he never saw finer in England. Messrs. Rattray, Crockett, Wright, Hyde, Robertson, Duffy, Lewis, McDonald, Berrigan, Brehaut, and His Honor the Lieutenant Governor were successful exhibitors of animals in this class.

POULTRY.

Of poultry there were sixty three entries, and some really beautiful specimens. The light Brahms were especially fine, and there were some very pretty Plymouth Rocks, Pencilled Hamburgs, Langhams, Black Spanish, Polands and Cochins, among the fowls. The geese, turkeys and ducks were quite fancy, and were pleasing to look upon. It is pleasing to see a continued improvement in poultry; and we hope the pure breeds will, ere long, be widely diffused.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

It was very pleasing to note the array of butter tubs and baskets. There were fifty entries of butter, comprising several hundred packages. Generally the quality was excellent; and it was made evident that if our butter has lost rank in the markets of the world, the ignorance and carelessness of the makers are the causes, and not any fault in our fodder or climate. Better butter than that exhibited by His Honor the Lieut. Governor, by Hon. Donald Ferguson, F. M. Bourke, Esq.; Mrs. and Miss Seller, Mrs. George

L. Scott, Mrs. R. E. Bagnall, (Mrs. Francis B in, and many other exhibitors, whose names we could not obtain, it would be impossible to produce in any country. With improved cows, improved creameries, improved churns, improved management, and greater care in the dairies of the Island, the character of our butter cannot fail to rise in the foreign markets, and the profits of our farmers from this source to increase. A new and most pleasing feature of this exhibition was the factory made butter exhibited by P. M. Bourke, Esq., of Mill View. As usual, there were many different opinions as to which tub or basket contained the best butter. The judges certainly had a difficult task to perform; and it is quite possible that they made some mistakes.

Another of the new and pleasing features of the Exhibition is the factory made cheese. Each of the factories established this year was represented; and it was admitted by all that the exhibits of each were very superior. It is to be hoped that, by this time next year, there will be more factories and a livelier competition in factory made cheese. Of the home-made cheese makers, it is worthy of remark that the three prize takers are three sisters—perhaps there is some family secret, which accounts for the uniform excellence of their cheese. Altogether the exhibit of butter and cheese was very creditable.

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.

Among the farming implements exhibited we were pleased to note Mr. Gates' fanning attachment to the ordinary threshing machine. It attracted much attention and demonstrated its utility by taking the sheaves in at one end and pouring out the clean grain, fit for the market, at the other. It is a simple, practical contrivance to lighten the labors and save the time of the farmer. Mr. Wm. Stretch, of Long Creek, exhibited an excellent and very serviceable truck wagon; and there were, on the grounds, quite a variety of improved ploughs, harrows, cultivators, potato diggers and other farm implements.

CARRIAGES.

Very fine carriages were shown by Messrs. Younker & Offer, and John McPhail, of this city, and by Mr. Bowers, of New Annan; and though no prizes were awarded, the exhibitors were well repaid in having them brought to the favourable notice of so many persons. By the way, there should be a shed for the use of persons exhibiting fine carriages and other articles which it is not desirable to expose to the weather.

The Apostle of the Beautiful has been among us preaching (at 50 cents per head) the need of a greater love of the artistic in the decoration of our homes. He was greeted by a splendid audience, an audience that seldom extends the same encouragement to local efforts which endeavor to elevate the taste of the community. Many present will feel disappointed at the lecturer's almost in-notorious manner of delivery; others, who can enjoy the chastened music, softness, strength and beauty of the English language, will remember with pleasure the clear-cut chasteness and melody of the lecturer's effort. One could not fail to notice Mr. Wilde's serenity of mood, his far-off expression, as though the pursuit of the beautiful (rather than the possession of it) was his prevailing passion and appetite. He, like Rosetti, Morris, Linton, Woolner, and Hamerton, has devoted himself to the service of the beautiful, and one would suspect that he often chants the refrain of Morris— "Dreamer of dreams, born out of my due time, Why should I strive to set the crooked straight?" Mr. Wilde on appearing before his audience was received with applause. He apologized for not being in evening dress. He had just arrived by the boat, and thought it well to begin his lecture in his travelling costume, a light suit with knee breeches, looking both graceful and comfortable, and in its simplicity, probably more handsome than his velvet "fixings." In times conversational and with an occasional "pose," the lecturer proceeded to give his ideas of "decorative art." He said that he could get along very well without philosophy if he surrounded ourselves with beautiful things. This beauty of life which we call art, is no mere accident, but a very necessity of man's nature. He said that all good art is founded on honesty sincerity, and on telling the truth. Art is perfect praise of God, being the exemplifications of his handiwork. The carving on the cathedral is a To Deum in God's honour, equally beautiful, and more lasting than that which is expressed in song. He then proceeded to combat the arguments of the so-called practical men against the necessity for beauty. This century had produced a prodigious amount of rubbish and much dishonest work. Every household which furnished a new residence discovered this in less than five years' time in faded carpets, faded wall paper, and furniture split and twisted. Among the most beautiful things on this continent was the furniture of the early settlers of these colonies. Simple of design, yet honestly made, so that instead of depreciation in value, as did our modern furniture, we had the satisfaction of knowing that our grandparents used that furniture before us and our grandchildren would after we were gone. The highest art was in the correct portrayal of the men and things of the age in which we live, instead of going back to the mis-called romantic ages, and art should reproduce faces and forms we loved and revered. There should be in every city a good school of decorative art. There were many such schools in America, but they should place themselves in more immediate relations with trade, commerce and manufactures than they do at present. Art schools should also, at the outset, devote more time than they now do to making the common things of life beautiful. He ridiculed the pretence of art which painted moon lights upon dinner plates and sunsets on soup plates. He warned his hearers not to leave their good designers in dishonor or necessity or in return there is not a flower or plant in our fields or forests that they will not consecrate to the uses of beauty. The voices that are heard in our seas and in our forests are not merely words of liberty, but are messages that will reveal to us the secrets of noble imagination and the wonder of all new beauty. Concerning the necessity of surrounding children with beautiful objects, he said that a child is unconsciously educated and its character moulded by the things about it. The child is most susceptible to the influences of kindness and beauty. Seeing beautiful things it learns to love them and will always appreciate them. In regard to the education of children, the lecturer dwelt upon the fallacies of the present system of education; minds too young to grapple with the subjects in the right sense, are burdened with long hours of study in the sciences and that calendar of infancy, European history. He thought in all schools at least one hour a day should be devoted to teaching the young to use their hands, in carving wood, working metal, or some other decorative art. They would look back upon these as the pleasantest hours of their lives, and they would certainly be the most useful. The perforation was simple and majestic, and the lecture cannot fail to exert a beneficial influence in our midst.
