

Retreat Is Not Always The Path To Peace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nearly 20 years ago Anthony Eden, then the youngest British foreign secretary since mid-Victorian times, made an important decision. He resigned from the cabinet rather than yield to Mussolini's threats. "Retreat is not always the path to peace," he said then.

This week, as prime minister, Eden had to deal with a new dictator in the Mediterranean, Nasser of Egypt. He called Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal "an act of plunder," and told the British people in a broadcast:

"The pattern is familiar to many of us, my friends. . . . We all remember only too well what the cost can be in giving in to fascism. . . . With dictators, you always have to pay a higher price later on—for their appetite grows with feeding."

But the risk of armed intervention receded during the week. The Western Allies pinned their hopes on the international conference starting in London next Thursday. Britain, France and the United States are sponsoring a plan to put the canal under an international commission.

Russia and India, key countries concerned outside the Western camp, announced acceptance of invitations to attend the conference. Egypt herself is not expected to attend.

CANADA'S POSITION

To External Affairs Minister Pearson, the Suez situation was "very difficult and indeed dangerous." He gave the House of Commons in Ottawa a brief statement.

It was Canada's hope that "force of any kind" would not be necessary and that next week's conference would find a way to safeguard the canal for use by all nations.

TERRORISTS HANGED

An August wave in Cyprus sent the thermometers as high as 114 degrees. In the death block at Nicosia prison Wednesday night, recordings of Bach and Beethoven music filled the stifling night air. In the death cells, three young Cypriots awaited execution.

On the prison walls, British soldiers covered with machine guns the approaches to the jail. Shortly after midnight, two carloads of special police, believed to include the hangersmen, drove through the prison gates. About 1 a.m., the three youths, convicted of acts of terrorism, were led to a triple gallows.

The Greek Cypriot population reacted sullenly. Shops, offices and factories stayed closed. A general strike halted virtually all the island's economic activities.

PRESIDENTIAL CHOICES

The high point of a U.S. politician's life—the big party conventions at which candidates for the presidency are chosen—rolls around again during the next two weeks.

The Democrats open their convention at Chicago on Monday. The Republicans get together exactly a week later at the San Francisco Cow Palace. This week it looked very much as if the choices will be the same as four years ago—Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republicans; Adlai Stevenson for the Democrats.

OTTAWA SESSION

The parliamentary session, slowed by the bitter pipeline wrangle, already is the second longest since Confederation. This week members were busy cleaning the slate for adjournment. The Commons ratified the international Wheat Agreement. The measure for a 20-per-cent tax on advertising revenue of Canadian editions of U.S. publications was adopted by both House and Senate.

DYNAMITE BLAST

Colombia is a republic in the northwest corner of South America. Last Tuesday a convoy of 30 trucks laden with dynamite set out from the Pacific coast port capital.

At Call, an inland city of 450,000 population, seven of the truckdrivers decided to halt for the night and sleep in the cabs of their vehicles. They parked in a densely populated area of slums, small hotels and factories.

At 1:20 a.m. the dynamite exploded. The blast made a crater 200 feet wide and 85 feet deep. Hundreds of sleeping townspeople never knew what hit them. Death estimates ran as high as 1,200. There were suggestions the tragedy was the result of an act of political sabotage.

MINE DISASTER

There was tragedy in Belgium, too. There, in a coal mine near the town of Marcinelle, 260 miners, mostly Italians, were trapped four days underground following fire in the workings. Rescue operations are continuing.

S'ide Man Injured In Road Accident Near Port Elgin, N.B.

Gerald Yeo of Summerside is a patient in the Sackville, N.B., Hospital suffering from a displaced vertebrae of the neck after the car in which he was a passenger left the highway on the Shediac Road, about four miles from Port Elgin Saturday evening and landed on its top quite some distance from the road.

The car, a 1955 hard top convertible Buick, driven by Albert MacEwen, whose home is east of Charlottetown, was destined for Summerside for the weekend, from Gagetown, N.B., where both men are employed with the M.F. Schurman Co., Ltd. The vehicle failed to make a right turn on the left hand side, bowled in across the ditch into the woods over several small trees and coming to a stop about 200 yards in the bush with all four wheels facing skyward. MacEwen and an unidentified third occupant are believed to have sustained only shock and minor lacerations while Yeo was removed to the Sackville Hospital but reportedly is not in serious condition.

The demolished car which was almost hidden from view of the highway was located by another M.F. Schurman employee, Mr. Gerard Richard, who was also returning to Summerside with a truck. Because the lights of the overturned car were still shining and the horn, short-circuited, was blowing continuously, Mr. Richard's attention was attracted to the wood area where the car had ground to a halt, otherwise the accident might have remained unnoticed for some time.

Mr. Yeo is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Colingwood Yeo of Port Hill. He is married and has a family.

MacLeod Comes Of Age

MacLeods from all parts of the world will gather at Dunvegan Castle on the Isle of Skye this week to attend coming-of-age celebrations for John MacLeod of MacLeod, heir to the MacLeod chieftaincy and grandson of the present chief, Dame Flora MacLeod of MacLeod.

The celebrations will be the first for more than 100 years to commemorate the coming-of-age of an heir to the chieftaincy of the clan, and in the banquet room of the 700 year old castle young John will be called upon on August 14th to prove his ability, in traditional style, by drinking one and three-quarter glasses of claret from the ancient drinking horn of his ancestor Sir Rory Mor "without sitting or falling down." The horn is one of the many heirlooms at Dunvegan Castle, as is the Fairy Flag, which is said to have milaculous powers in defending the MacLeods from foes.

On August 15th a clan parliament will be held to discuss means of maintaining and strengthening the link between the MacLeods throughout the world. Whether they spell their name MacLeod, McLeod, McCleod, Macchleid, McCleod, McClaud, McCloid, McLewd or McKeloid, all are members of the clan and will be welcomed to the garden party which is to be held on the spacious grounds of Dunvegan Castle on August 16th.

When the fall term begins at McGill University, in Montreal, John MacLeod of MacLeod, the handsome, energetic heir to the clan chieftaincy will be present to begin his studies for a commercial degree. He has recently been studying music in Britain and he has chosen Canada for his university training.
