London Plans New Project

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (Reuters) — City of London architects Wednesday unveiled a new project to rebuild the city's largest remaining blitzed area and inject residential life into the almost homeless heart of this sprawling metropolis.

A 35-acre site in the north of the mile-square city has been a desolate plain of rubble for 8½ years. This ruined area — called "Barbican" after the gate-house which once formed a doorway in London's encircling walls—was a centre of business and trade before the Second World War, as the rest of the city is still.

Stretching from the medieval Guildhall north to the city boundary, the Barbican area was flattened in one night—Dec. 29, 1940—when German bombers showered thousands of incendiary bombs on the heart of London.

The new plan to rebuild the site—latest of many of the last decade—calls for construction of a self - contained community of apartments, houses, stores, schools, a hotel, theatre and concert hall. Estimated cost of the seven-year building plan is £20,000,000.

Previous plans to fill the big bomb crater were delayed by red tape or rejected by national housing authorities because they featured office blocks or factories.

The housing ministry believes the emphasis should be on homes because the city already has a top - heavy working population which floods in each morning and leaves the 2,000-year-old original London tomblike at night.

Some 600,000 Britons spend their working day in the city, but only 5,000 make their homes there.

FLOODS KILL 12

ISTANBUL, Turkey (Reuters) At least 12 persons have been killed and 23 are missing in floods that followed rain in the Rize and Trabzon provinces of northeast Turkey. The floods wrecked eight bridges and damaged construction work on the Ikizdere hydro - electric power station near Rize.

AFRICAN COAL

South Africa's coalmines produced 2,495,000 tons in April, 1959, an increase of 46,880 tons over the same month of 1958.
