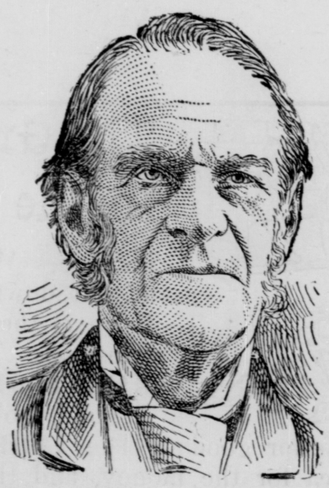
A FARMER'S WEALTH

Does not Simply Consist of Broad Acres and Ready Cash.

Health is His Fortune.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND RESTORES IT WHEN LOST.



Broad acres and a good bank account do not constitute a farmer's true wealth. There are hundreds of farmers around us who possess wealth in lands and gold, but who lack that true fortune and coveted possession known as good health. True manhood, vigorous health and strong nerves are Heaven's best gifts for all classes and conditions of men.

It is a melancholy fact that men and women in the country, breathing the purest air, drinking from God's bubbling fountains and springs uncontaminated by germs of disease, are liable to the same dread diseases that come thick and fast to city people.

Nature's grand laws are continually violated everywhere, and as a consequence the penalties come swift and sure. These penalties consist of diseases varying in form and character. We find debility, nervousness, rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney and liver troubles, heart disease, dyspepsia, indigestion and a variety of terrible blood diseases.

When the arrows of affliction pierce with venomed sting, the farmer and his family must seek the same healing agent that city people use with such success. Paine's Celery Compound is, to-day, the farmer's great health restorer and true life giver. Its record in the rural districts of our Dominion is as bright and lustrous as it is in the thickly populated towns and cities. To so high an eminence has its credit and worth been advanced, that the majority of country and city families now regularly keep one or more bottles for any emergency that may arise.

Paine's Celery Compound has done more life-saving work than all other medicines combined. It has saved life after the doctor failed; it has given health and vigor after years of failures with common medicines. Mr. Samuel Hanna, an esteemed and well known farmer of Manvers, Ont., gives his wonderful experience with Paine's Celery Compound as follows:

"After severe sickness and suffering for a length of time, I am happy to state that I was made well by Paine's Celery Compound. To be raised up from a low and weak state inside of two weeks is a marvellous work, which nothing else but Paine's Celery Compound could have accomplished.

"After using half the first bottle of the Compound I was able to dig the holes for a forty rod fence, and help to build it. Before using Paine's Celery Compound I could not sleep and had no appetite; now I enjoy good sleep and a healthful appetite. Paine's Celery Compound is worth its weight in gold to any sufferer; it is the best medicine in the world."

JOE HOWE ON THE BRITISH CONSTITUION

Brilliant and Eloquent Eulogy in a Campaign Speech

When Mr. Howe was fighting the great battle of responsible government he made many speeches in various parts of Nova Scotia, only a few of which have been preserved, and these mostly in a fragmentary form. The following eloquent eulogy of the free spirit of the British constitution is taken from a speech delivered in Hants, and, as the Halifax Herald remarks, one can well understand how the hearts of the people were fired under the influence of such magnificent oratory:

"God, in his infinite kindness, scatters over every country the intellect required to develop its resources, administer its affairs, and secure the inhabitants that measure of happiness which they are fitted to enjoy. But God is no respecter of persons; the blessing he bestows are common blessings, in which all have an interest, and in the enjoyment of which the humblest of his creatures may be permitted the most largely to participate. The river, which sparkles along the vale, stops not to enquire whether the fields it refreshes or the hearts it gladdens belong to the rich or the poor. The flower sheds is as sweet a perfume in the widows scanty garden as in the marbel-railed parterre. So it is with that sacred fire which men call genius—that quickening principle that animates and governs human society. A castle may frown upon a cliff overlooking half a country; the lord of that vast domain may revel in every luxury which can hamper the senses or stimulate to a wide range of intellectual activity; the armed retainers may tread the massive wall, or make the courtyard a mimic school of war; the wise and the brilliant may stroll 'neath old ancestral trees, or enliven the festal hall with the flashes of wit and the hoarded treasures of experience; a long line of sages and warriors, looking down from the walls of that stately pile, may lure to elevated thought and high achievement—and yet the children born within that castle, thus furnished and endowed, may scarcely possess enough of intellect to fold sheep upon the hills. But far down in the valley, beneath the shadow of the castle, the peasant's cot may offer to its inmates a scant return for unremitting toil; and yet from the loins of that poor peasant may spring the youth, whose ardent soul, fired by divine inspiration, may point to noblest aims and achieve the highest triumphs. Art may to him seem instinct; senates may hang delighted upon his accents, or armies read the presage of victory in his eyes.

"The constitution of England wisely adapts itself to the arrangements of Providence; it draws, from the humblest as from the highest ranks of life, the talent which the nation produces and enlists it in the service of the state. Public departments are regarded as public trusts to which all may aspire, and with the honors, and influence, and emoluments of which a wise sovereign and a grateful people may stimulate to exertion, and invest patriotic enterprise with a national character and crown it with a national reward. The "stately halls" of England send forth to the public arenas the most aspiring and energetic spirits they produce; but, when there, the scions of aristocracy must wrestle with the talent reared in her "cottage homes," disciplined in her workshops, rising, it may be, from the lowest form of the charity school or the darkest recesses of the mine. From such a constitution as this

"Our country's grandeur springs,
That makes her loved at home, revered abroad."

Canning's mother was an actress; Pitt was a cornet of hussars; Brougham commenced life in a Scotch garret; Sydenham in a counting house; Peel's father was a cotton spinner. The biographical history of our country is rich in such names, and furnishes on every page its animating commentary upon the free spirit of our constitution.

"Had public departments descended father to son, as they did here until recently; had they been held for life, as our opponents desire now, would it have been so rich? Would these glorious illustrations have been so numerous? Under the one system public spirit would have died, under the other it would have languished. Make public offices heirlooms, and the intellect which should be found in the service of the government, is at once arrayed against it; give men life tenures, and one generation must pass away before the ambitious have anything to aspire to or a nation anything to bestow."

FOR STEALING A BIBLE. — The New York Commercial Advertiser gives the following additional details of the recent lynching of two negroes in South Carolina suspected of stealing a Bible:

"A negro who was charged with having stolen a Bible and some loose furniture from a church in Barnwell county, was captured by four well-known men, one a physician, and tied to a buggy with a long halter. The horse was then driven rabidly for some miles. As the rope was about the man's neck, he was nearly dead at the end of the journey. Because he refused to admit his guilt, he received 150 lashes, and died in great agony. Then his old mother, his young wife and this baby were stripped naked and beaten. The old woman was killed, and the young woman and child are in a critical condition."

After they get through with Turkey for her treatment of the Armenians, remarks the Halifax Herald, the powers should turn their united attention to vindicating the rights of the Negro in the United States. There does not appear to be any hope of any power within the republic doing anything of the kind.

ALIVE IN HER COFFIN.—According to a late despatch the mining settlement of Duryea, two miles above Pittston, Pa., was recently the scene of a sensation caused by a supposed dead woman reviving just as the undertaker was about to close the lid of the coffin. The woman was Mrs. Romaniski, a widow of 40. She was suddenly taken ill on Monday and grew worse until Tuesday when she apparently died. An undertaker proceeded to arrange the preliminaries for the funeral. Upon going to the coffin to fasten down the lid, to his horror the supposed corpse opened her eyes and glanced about the room. While her astonishment was great, that of the guests was far greater, and many of the women present became greatly excited. The funeral was postponed and a doctor summoned. He said the case was one of suspended animation.

Weak and Nervous

Whenever the body has been weakened by disease, it should be built up by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this:

and weak. Fortunately a friend who had used Hood's Sarsaparilla with great benefit, kindly recommended me to try it. I did so and a perfect cure has been effected. I am now as well as I ever was, and I would not be without Hood's Sarsaparilla in my house for anything." MRS. G. KERN, 245 Manning Ave., Toronto, Ont.

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame." Civil Service Gazette

WARSHIPS ON THE LAKE.

Bellicose Belknap Urges the Abrogation of the Treaty with Great Britain and the Construction of a Naval Force on the Lakes.

Admiral Belknap of the United States navy has written a letter to Mr. Richard P. Joy, of Detroit, commending an article written by the latter and published in the Marine Review, of Cleveland, advocating the abrogation of the treaty with Great Britain prohibiting the building of warships on the great lakes. Admiral Belknap says in part: "If the shipbuilders in our ports on the great lakes cannot be allowed to compete with shipbuilders in other part of the country in the building of vessels for our navy by reason of the treaty with Great Britain, it is high time that such treaty were amended so that our shipbuilding plants, wherever situated, may have an equal chance in the matter of government work. Independently of what Canada may be doing in the construction of steam vessels for lake marine, readily convertible into effective gunboats, Great Britain relies upon the facility of the Welland canal for the ready assembling of her gunboats and small cruisers in the great lakes in the event of war with the United States. With a fixed and well digested policy, indomitable push and sleepless foresight, ever looking towards future contingencies, and the expansion of the empire, British statesmen, when they do not play the part of the bully, after the method of Lord Palmerston, make their designs under the cover of a velvet-handed diplomacy as seductive as it is dangerous. Too often in truth it lulls other powers, and especially the too trustful United States, into a blind, and sometimes fatal, sense of security. The siren song of Britannia is continually sounded in our ears in notes exalting ties of kindred blood and tongue, but when we look about us and note the fact that three-quarters of our diplomatic contentions of any note are with Great Britain and her colony the Dominion of Canada, we may well look askance at the professions of fair-dealing and sincerity. Insatiable Britain, indeed, never relaxes her vigilance in any direction, and whenever she detects a crack of opportunity in any quarter, she inserts, on the instant, a wedge of claim and demand, and, at the propitious moment for herself, drives it home with dogged purpose and resistless blows, regardless of the sensibilities or the rights of other powers, save, perhapse, Russia, France and Germany. At this time, in fact, every mail from Alaska brings tidings of her alleged efforts to appropriate valuable points and islands along the coast line of that territory, just as she laid claims to the island of San Juan in the Puget Sound, after the conclusion of the treaty of 1846, defining our north-west boundary. The British maw, indeed, never gets its fill.

'Commerce is the handmaid of civilization, and every nation has the indubitable right to protect its ships wherever they may be. Therefore, our great tonnage on the lakes should have the protection that forts and ships of war alone could give.

'What right has England to insist that the United States shall not keep a naval force of whatever strength they choose on the great lakes? Let the people of the great north-west demand protection ashore and afloat, and where England or her meddlesome colony, Canada, mans or floats a gun let us meet each one with two.'

A STRANGE FIND.—Mr. O. R. Tamlyn, of Summerside, has quite a curiosity. On Tuesday he was cutting and hauling brush from Crabbe's woods, at the northeast of the town, when he found the remains of an officer's sword high up on a limb of a spruce or fur tree. The sword blade is rusted entirely away save a small piece near the hilt. The part grasped by the hand was still there but a very slight blow shattered it, so badly was the steel rusted and the wood rotted. The remains of the wood still adhering is of a dark brown color and seems to be of mahogany or walnut. That which broke away on being handled, Mr. Tamlyn says, seemed to be cork and was carved into twisted bead work like a rope. The cage of the hilt for the protection of the hand is of brass and although covered with brass rust is very well preserved. In its fret-work it has the "crown and V. R." emblem, while roughly engraved on one part is "1667 N. H.," part of this being doubtless the date. Evidently it had been hung on a low limb and, since, the tree had grown until it had been lifted up considerably from the ground. At what time and by whom it had been placed there is a mystery.—Farmer.

GREAT DEPOT IN BOSTON.—The Boston Standard announces that it has found material evidence for the rumor that a new union railroad station, of nearly the same area as that of Causeway street, on Kneeland street, to be used as the Old Colony division of the consolidated road, the Albany and New England roads, will be built. It is further stated that money legislative assistance will be asked next year to enable furtherance of the plans, which will necessitate the closing up of several short streets and control of real estate, which is designed to form the site of the most extensive railroad depot in the world, or 14 acres in extent. The reported estimated cost is $3,000,000.

In his third letter to The Week on "The Cost and Profit of Liberty" Principal Grant deals with the militia force. He asks what is needed to make the militia effective, and answers: (1) regular drill, (2) a supply of officers thoroughly educated in military science and art. At present, he says, some of the battalions are drilled for only twelve days every second or third year. We have a force on paper of 35,000, but better have a force of 25,000 drilled for at least twelve days every year than a nominal force of 35,000. In regard to a supply of officers, Principal Grant says:—

"Yet the great requisite for an effective militia is a steady supply of educated officers. Why, then, not utilize the R. M. C. graduates? Attach them for a year to the permanent schools; send them for six months to Aldershot, and then give them commissions in the permanent force, make them adjutants of the militia regiments, and—if there are any left—give them junior positions in the Public Works Department, where good engineers are evidently required. If all are not absorbed in these ways, offer to the Provincial Governments the privilege of nominating cadets to the college, as is done in the States, on condition that each Province shall appoint a graduate annually to its Public Works Department."

This would cost money, the learned Principal admits. But what, he asks, is the use of playing at soldiers? All shams are bad, but sham in military matters is particularly detestable. The money would, he says, "be much better spent than in building political railways or in digging a useless canal on the impudently avowed plea that a county should get its share of public plund r.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Rheumatism of 20 years' standing radically cured by Scott's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. Sarah Browning, an estimable resident of the Ambitious City, was for twenty years a sufferer from acute rheumatism, and her restoration to health is so remarkable that we present the case for the benefit of our readers, many of whom are doubtless sufferers from this painful complaint which arises from blood poison. Mrs. Browning says: "I used only one bottle of Scott's Sarsaparilla and received such benefit that I continued taking only at intervals for two months. That is seven months ago, and the pain has not returned. I had spent a fortune in various "treatments" and was told by one medical man that a cure was impossible as I had suffered so long."

Scott's Sarsaparilla cures by making and keeping the blood pure. It increases flesh by digesting flesh-forming foods. It is the most successful medicine in the world to-day, for dyspepsia, nervous troubles, rheumatism, sciatica, syphilitic afflictions, pimples and all diseases originating in a foul condition of the blood. Dose from one half to one teaspoonful.

CHRISTMAS

Day should be a very happy one this year. Business everywhere is better and has been all the year. You will eat your turkey with a relish will want it roasted to turn Your old stove is about worn out. Perhaps you have been thinking of getting your wife a Range for

AND

NEW YEAR

Why not give it to her now? See that you get one of our Ranges, which the best on the market, and would cook a turkey so that the morsels will melt in your mouth. You will then have an additional reason for dealing with us. Get a new Cook Stove or Range and buy it
