MUSKRAT TRAPS SEIZED—Yesterday a large number of steel traps were seized at Black Pond Sanctuary by the Provincial Game Supervisor. While trapping is allowed on the Sanctuary, providing it is carried out with minimum disturbance to the game and ducks, it has to be conducted in compliance with the trapping regulations as set down by the Game Act. The traps in question were set on the muskrat houses and in runs too close to the bank dens. It is understood that prosecution under The Game Act is pending against a Souris trapper. Provincial authorities are conducting a preventive campaign in an effort to prevent needless destruction of our already depleted muskrat population. Trappers would be well advised to study The Game Act regulations in respect to furbers.

Fine Selection of Children's Books

A wide and colourful selection of children's books, ranging from de-lightfully illustrated picture books for tiny tots to "The Odyssey of Homer", written especially for children, is on display in the Charlottetown Public Library in conjunction with Young Canada's Book Week, which is being observed from Nov. 11-18.

Sponsored by the Canadian Library Association, the Book Week is designed to focus attention on the availability of good reading matter for children in the free public libraries throughout the country, and to promote the giving of suitable books to young people as gifts by their parents and friends.

Some of the non-fiction books on display at the local library are Audubon's "Favourite Birds of America", "Great Molecules as Children", "Alice in Wonderland", "The Children of the Light", "The Children of the Earth", "The Children of the Air", "The Children of the Water", "The Children of the Earth", "The Children of the Air", "The Children of the Water", "The Children of the Earth", "The Children of the Air", "The Children of the Water".

A wide variety of fiction is included, among which Canadian authors are represented. One such story is "Jockie", a story of Prince Edward Island, by Lilla Stirling, who regularly spends her annual vacation here. "Let's Go to the Sea Shore" describes some of the items which may be gathered and collected on the shore, and for the boys there are such illustrated books as "The Big Book of Real Boats" and "Wrecking Machines". The display is under the direction of Miss Jean Gill, chief librarian, and advice on the books available will gladly be given by the staff. Several small children were observed yesterday inspecting the books and noting the titles which attracted them most, probably with an eye to the fast approaching Yuletide season.

Legal Lobster

Continued from page 1 by the State of Massachusetts of legislation increasing from 3 1/8 inches to 3 3/16 inches the minimum size at which market lobsters may be caught.

Canada's increase in the minimum size of market lobsters follows close studies by scientists of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada, which indicated that a certain amount of extra protection would be provided by the increased length. It is expected that after the first year of the new regulations the total poundage caught should be about the same or slightly higher than at present.

A large part of the Maritime lobsters production is sold in Massachusetts and the increase in the minimum length of market lobsters enables Canadian fishermen to continue to ship lobsters to this U. S. market, where, after December 1, 1951, it will be illegal for any person to have in his possession a lobster measuring less than 3 3/16 inches.

A close watch is to be kept on the effect of the new regulations to determine whether conditions will warrant a further increase to bring the minimum legal length of market lobsters to the 3 1/4 inches which Massachusetts proposes to implement on December 1, 1952. At present only in the Canadian waters on and the coast of Grand Manan Island is the minimum size limit 3 1/4 inches.

Meeting Of Ch'town Ministerial Ass'n

The November meeting of the Charlottetown Ministerial Association was held in the Y.M.C.A. building with the President, Rev. Jas. Davison, in the chair, and the Rev. M. D. Dunbar at the desk in the absence of the Secretary, Rev. W. T. Mercer. The following clergy were also present: Rev. H. E. D. Ashford, Rev. J. T. Booth, Rev. Mr. Irwin, Rev. E. C. Evans, Rev. J. V. Crawford, Captain Tilcombe, Rev. T. H. B. Somers and Rev. Henry Barber.

After routine reports had been received and the correspondence read, the President gave a brief resume of the part he had played on behalf of the Association at the Government banquet in honour of the Royal visitors and was warmly congratulated upon the dignity of his duties and so worthily represented the ministers of all the Protestant branches of Christ's Church in Charlottetown.

The special feature of the meeting was a paper prepared and delivered by the Rev. T. H. B. Somers, entitled "A Blameless Ministry" which in part read as follows: "The ministry has often been blamed, in literature Jane Austen has given us the insufferable Mr. Collins; Anthony Trollope, the pompous Archdeacon Grantly; and Mrs. Humphrey Ward, the self-tortured Robert Elsmere; while more modern writers have offered varying versions of Elmer Gantry and his kind. In the world, the Minister has lately been accused from out of its own ranks of an inflexible fanaticism, while commercialism has pronounced it mercenary, intellectuals have condemned its ignorance, politicians have denounced its hypocrisy, and pleasure-lovers exclaimed against its prejudices. In the Bible, there are many false prophets and not a few unworthy priests, though they are said to reflect the people to have a vision and a long exposure of profaned sanctuaries and blemished sacrifices.

Legal Lobster

Continued from page 1 "If we do indeed claim 'apostolic succession', it is ultimately to a singularly obtuse collection of men, disputing about their own greatness even in the Upper Room, of whom one betrayed his Master, ten others led into the darkness of Gethsemane, and only one remained faithful beside the Cross.

There is a long and melancholy thread of blame running through the fabric of the ministry of religion, and Paul was well aware of the extreme peril in which any man stands on whom falls the fierce light of an apostleship.

"In his second Epistle to the Corinthians he treats those associated with him as the work of the despoiler, and that their conversation and their conversation are alike sincere, causing no man to stumble, shaking no man's faith, undermining no man's respect for the Christian way of life, that the ministry be not blamed" or, as Weymouth puts it, "that our ministry be not discredited.

Yet, with all its record of blame and blemish, it would be difficult to find any walk of life which has been so influential. The Roman Catholicism will always have the world in its debt for Francis and Savonarola, Xavier and Damien, not to mention the heroic Jesuit missionaries of early Canada. Neither England nor France would be the same today if Wolsey and Cranmer, if Richelieu and Bossuet, had never lived.

English life was spared the horrors of the French Revolution because of John Wesley; education there was re-moulded by the work of Thomas Arnold; and the present Labour Party has to trace its ancestry back to a priest, John Ball, who led the first peasant's revolt. No man will read Scottish history and imagine that the character of that nation was formed by its kings or its parliaments, or still less by its brawling nobles.

It was the work of the fifteen hundred years continuous history of the Kirk, and of men among whom Ninian and Columba, Knox and Wishart, Chalmers and Alexander Whyte were conspicuous as well as typical. Indeed, with the possible exception of the schoolmaster, there is no whose mind and influence are built into the fabric of the nation, who send out wave upon wave still beating on shores so distant as to have become invisible.

Henry Irving used to say that the work of the actor is more than usually perishable, and it is perhaps less so in his preparation and preach, and that, as a rule, is the end of it. On the other hand, it has no end. With all the changes that have taken place, all the revolutions of thought and government, all the discoveries of science and exploration, there still remains, with one exception, as I have said, no person who has such an influence, covering in such surfaces, as the famous minister of Christ.

Mr. Somers was on motion of Rev. H. E. D. Ashford, seconded by Rev. J. T. Booth, warmly thanked for the paper. Announcement was made by Rev. Henry Barber of the meeting of the P. E. I. Ministerial Association in the Y.M.C.A. next Monday afternoon, at 1.30. The next meeting was appointed to be held on December 4th at the usual hour and place.

Island Potato Samples Shipped Under Test Scheme

Forty-two samples of Island potatoes were shipped last Wednesday under the Florida Seed Test scheme, it was learned yesterday from S. G. Peppin, District Inspector, Seed Potato Certification. Along with about two hundred samples from New Brunswick, they will be planted in Florida this winter and will give the growers an early reading, probably sometime in February.

The potatoes were gassed in a special room at the Government Cold Storage plant to break dormancy before shipment, and a dozen or so tubers picked at random from the samples to find out whether sprouting will take place early or late indicate that the gassing was effective, Mr. Peppin reported, particularly with regard to Sebagoes where some difficulty had been expected.

Drew Proposes

Mr. Drew added: "It would seem that economy of effort would suggest that those forces which have the lowest hitting power per man can be raised near the danger spot, should be raised there whereas the forces which must be moved a long distance should be forces with the highest possible measure of hitting power."

"A simple rational approach to this problem suggests that here in Canada we should not be training the mass formations with low individual hitting power; we should be training fast hard-hitting armored units, with the highest possible hitting power per man. We should also be concentrating, as we have been told we would concentrate, on the air power which can be moved with the utmost safety to any danger point, or for that matter to any part of the world.

"With this situation in front of us, it seems clear that the United States and Canada each, in proportion to its own production capacity, must, to a very considerable extent, be the arsenals of Europe, and also to a substantial degree the rest of the world as well.

"That being so, it would seem that our effort should be directed to supplying the weapons and equipment of all types needed for the land forces in those critical areas where the men can be raised, armed, equipped and trained, while we concentrate on compact, hard-hitting and extremely mobile forces which can make the most effective use of the transportation supplies available, whether by air or by sea."

Prime Minister St. Laurent said the committee was not being established to prepare defence estimates or defence budgets. The duty of the committee would be to see that money being spent on defence is being well spent.

Mr. Coldwell said he welcomed the committee because he believed that the people of Canada expected parliament and the government to get the "best possible value" for money spent.

But today the country was not getting the best value for its money because of inflation and high prices which the government had to pay for defence supplies.

Urges No Undue Profits He urged that no corporation be allowed to make "undue" profits on the sale of defence equipment to the armed forces. There should be a limit of not more than five per cent profit on capital employed in providing defence materials and supplies.

Mr. Shaw said the war and post-war committees on war expenditures did valuable and constructive work.

The committee should give careful consideration of methods of expenditure. It should consider whether there can be any further controls on expenditure. The people realized there had to be heavy expenditures on defence, but they wanted assurance that every dollar was well spent.

Supreme Court In Georgetown

The November Assizes of the King's County Supreme Court met yesterday morning with Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell presiding.

Following is the Grand Jury: Foreman, Andrew S. MacDonald, Cardigan; Gavin Reid, Montague; Hugh MacEachern, Cardigan R.R.; Bernard Mossey, Elmira; James Donahoe, Rosemeath; George Jackson, Bear River; Arthur Wood, Rollo Bay; Howland Mullally, Souris; Walter MacDonald, Souris; Roy P. Brooks, Murray Harbour.

In his address to the jury, Chief Justice Campbell pointed out that the November assizes is an innovation in the administration of justice in King's, and he commented upon the formidable dockets before the court. The Legislature, he said, had recognized the inconveniences of February sittings so the change had been made to November.

He noted from the jail report that four men were in custody, two of those men under offences against the Excise Act, one for assault and one charged with rape and murder. Circumstances in the case of the party charged with rape and murder made it undesirable to proceed with the rape charge until investigations in the murder charge had proceeded further.

As a result of discussions with the Attorney General's Department postponed to a later sitting of the court or to a time later in the present sitting.

He also pointed out the possibility of the grand jury having to deal with the indictment for murder later in the present sitting. The jury was informed that it was not being dismissed at the present time, but that following its inspection and report its members were to return to their homes and if it became necessary for them to hear any bill of indictment they would be notified by the sheriff.

A motion was made in court by Mr. S. S. Hessian, K. C., that Mr. Alexander Dutey of Murray

Unemployment Figures Given

OTTAWA, Nov. 13 (CP)—Unemployment in Canada increased by 6,800 in the first two weeks of October.

The Labor Department in its fortnightly review of the employment situation reported tonight that applications at National Employment offices at Oct. 18 totalled 141,400, compared with 134,800 at Oct. 4.

Number of job-seekers was up 4,800 from Oct. 18 last year but also were 8,200 more jobs vacant.

Only in the Pacific region did unemployment decrease in the first two weeks of last month. It was down 800 to 21,300 from 22,100.

In Quebec unfilled vacancies for men and male registrations for employment were almost equal and placements were fairly high. On the Prairies there was a definite shortage of labor at the middle of the month, but weather halted harvest operations and there was no difficulty in meeting the demand.

In the Maritimes a heavy seasonal demand for fishermen and processors has been met and continuing good weather kept construction active. There was a continuing shortage of certified miners and short workers.

Following are the registrations for employment by regions at Oct. 18 with figures for Oct. 4 in brackets: Atlantic region 15,700 (15,300); Quebec 40,000 (33,300); Ontario 49,300 (46,900); Prairie 15,100 (14,200); Pacific 2,300 (22,100).

Milk Producers Ass'n Meeting

Mr. Roland MacDonald was re-elected President of the Milk Producers and Vendors Association at the annual meeting held last night in the meeting room at the City Hall, and Percy Gay was re-elected Secretary.

Other directors elected were Major MacRae, Vice-President, Leigh Kennedy, C. J. Wood, Eugene Cullen and Neil Darrach. Chairman of the meeting was Roland MacDonald, and about twenty five members were in attendance.

A committee of five was appointed to wait upon the Milk Board to discuss the future welfare of the industry, and a resolution to convey the feelings of the Association on the question of retail price setting by manufacturers to the Federal Government was held in abeyance for further discussion.

A note of thanks to Claude Smith for his work on the Milk Board was moved by Major MacRae and seconded by Guy Rodd. The minutes of the last meeting were read, and other reports read and adopted were the financial and auditors reports.

Russia Meets

Finally, it decided, on Egypt's suggestion, to postpone a debate on whether to put the question of Morocco on the agenda.

In an attack on Red China State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States said he was revolted at the thought of even considering admitting a regime at a moment when its forces in Korea were engaged in killing the soldiers of at least a score of countries represented in the hall.

Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain supported the majority stand. He said that even if Korean armistice negotiations succeeded there would be many difficulties in the way of a debate for the next two or three months.

Britain's former Labor Government recognized the Peiping regime, but never succeeded in exchanging ambassadors with it. Four countries abstained on the vote, but there was no official record of who they were. All the votes taken were by a show of hands.

In all, an agenda of 66 items was approved. The worksheet includes control of atomic energy, plans for building a collective security program, the old Greek-Balkans case, a covenant of human rights, the question of full Italian participation in the trusteeship council, India's charges of mistreatment of her nationals in South Africa, and a 1952 budget of $45,568,300 below the 1951 budget.

Soviet delegate Jacob A. Malik ridiculed Nationalist China's charges of Soviet aggression as "stily and provocative libel." The charges were shunted to the "little assembly" for action last year and may be handled that way again this year.

U. S. Admits Failure In Oil Dispute

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—The United States today acknowledged failure in its efforts to settle the Iranian-British oil crisis.

An announcement from the State Department said "no new basis" for a settlement had developed from the 21 days of talks here with Iranian Premier Mohammad Mossadegh.

Mossadegh expects to leave Thursday. The State Department tried unsuccessfully during his stay to convince Britain and Mossadegh to accept a compromise settlement of the dispute growing out of Iran's decision to nationalize the Iranian oil industry in which British interests have great investments.

In Military Posts Across Dominion

A large number of Islanders are now stationed at various Army camps across Canada and word of the activities of several of them has reached here. One item of interest is that the troop of the P. E. I. Regiment (17th Recce) went to Ottawa and Hull for the Royal visit in those cities.

In the big camp at Petawawa and now attached to the Royal Canadian Dragoons are several former members of local military units. Included in the group are Sgt. James Hogan, Sgt. Lorne Gass, Cpl. L. Delghan and Cpl. Joe McAdam. Their wives are also living at Petawawa now.

Sgt. Pete Somier, formerly of Summerside, is out on the West Coast at Victoria, B. C., on escort duty and Lieut. Jinks Jenkins is taking a course at Camp Borden. Three other well known Islanders in the R. C. D.'s are Lieut. Wade (Pat) Leightner, Charlottetown; Tpr. Ivan Stewart, Souris; and Cpl. Carl Curley, Charlottetown.

Other former residents who are in Petawawa include Lieut. George McRae, Capt. Robert Mathar, Capt. J. Mullin, Lieut. J. Murraghan, W. O. 2 Harold DeCoste and Lance Cpl. E. DeCoste.
