

The Stars Say --

By Genevieve Kemble

For Tomorrow

QUICK action in putting over a particularly astute and ambitious project is advisable. Attack the project with vim, determination and an intention of basing values for success and security on long-range programs. Build for the future despite static or discouraging elements or postponements. Such should yield to concentrated and shrewd efforts.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may find that the "faith than can move mountains" may assist in breaking down tenacious barriers, static situations or a variety of stubborn obstacles. Ready and astute action, with a view to lasting and substantial values in the long run could be vital for pushing major objectives, or cherished desires or aspirations. The mentality is particularly keyed to high enterprise and initiative. Confer with influential persons and willing friends, in business and social aims. A child born on this day is richly endowed with talents, initiative and abilities, versatile and enduring, for a life of conspicuous attainment and recognition.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. If the bride has no one to give her away or walk down the aisle with her, would it be all right for the bride and bridegroom to walk down the aisle together?

A. At a house wedding this would be all right. But in a church wedding it is not done. It would be much better for the bride to walk alone and the bridegroom to wait for her at the head of the aisle.

Q. What is the correct way to eat cherries and plums when they are served at the table?

A. Cherries, very small plums and grapes are taken into the mouth whole, and the pits and stones carried from the lips to the plate between the thumb and forefinger.

Q. What is the correct way for a man to ask a girl for a dance? A. He may say, "May I have this dance?" or, "Would you care to dance?"

Q. Is it proper to send formal invitations to a christening? A. No; because only the family and a very few intimate friends are supposed to be asked.

Curtains

When putting laundered curtains away in a drawer, fold them so that the top and bottom are together. If folded this way, the creases will work out when hung, but if folded lengthwise there will be no weight to bring out the creases.

Onion Breath

Onion breath can be completely dispelled by sipping about one teaspoon of vinegar, or eating a sprig of parsley.

Silverware

The silverware will retain its polish longer if it is always rinsed in boiling water after washing.

Cook's Corner

FISH BALLS

1/2 lb. tin canned salmon or 1 cup left-over cooked fish
1 1/2 cups mashed potatoes
1 egg
1 tablespoon melted butter
Pepper and salt to taste
1/2 teaspoon onion juice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley or chives

(This adds both color and flavor) Combine all the ingredients together and mix slightly, then form into patties or balls. If preparing these fish balls ahead of time, they may be placed in the refrigerator at this stage, till ready to cook. At supper time they can be sautéed or cooked in deep fat till a golden brown. This amount will serve 4. Serve them with a tartar sauce made with a colorful pickle added to mayonnaise and set in a crisp lettuce leaf and, along with it, a green or yellow vegetable. . . hot bran muffins and now you have a dish that will satisfy your family's appetites and at the same time will not throw the budget off balance.

That Body Of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

POSTURE IS IMPORTANT IN GROWING BOY AND GIRL

Connected with most public and high schools and preparatory schools is a well-trained teacher of physical education. While teaching various group games is the major part of his work, the posture of the growing child is given an important place in the physical program.

In some schools a shadowgraph of the posture of each boy and girl is taken and the rest of the class votes the posture standing of the boy and girl, from A, excellent, to E, poor. At the end of the year, another shadowgraph is made and the class again grades the standing. This shows the boy and girl, and the whole class, the improvement or lack of improvement in posture obtained during the year.

What is good standing posture in the school child? In The Medical Journal of Australia, Dr. Jean Macnamara, whom I have quoted before, states that good standing posture in the school child includes the following points: (1) the child stands at his full height; (2) He holds his head up and his chin in; (3) The chest is held high and the abdomen does not protrude; (4) The lower part of the back is almost straight; (5) The legs are straight with knees only slightly bent (only 5 degrees); (6) The buttocks is tucked under and the weight is borne evenly on both lower limbs.

Good posture follows: (1) protection from deforming positions during infancy and childhood; (2) good general health and nutrition; (3) adequate rest; (4) freedom from infections; (5) good sight and hearing; (6) wearing properly fitted clothing and shoes; (7) use of furniture adapted to the size of the child and use of a firm bed and mattress; (8) freedom for variety of movement and interest; (9) happiness, confidence and vanity; (10) coaching and encouragement in maintenance of good posture.

At most schools the entire staff of teachers watch the posture of the pupils and coach and encourage the careless ones which, from experience, are usually the ones least interested in games and general athletics.

Sitting posture is important: head should be up, chest held high, legs from buttocks to knees should occupy two-thirds of the seat or bench, lower legs should be straight down and feet resting flat on the floor.

How Can I!!!

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I remove stains from marble?

A. Mix a paste of benzine and powdered soapstone. Spread this over the marble and leave it overnight. Wash off with warm water. If necessary repeat the application.

Q. How can I clean a child's woolen toys?

A. The woolen toys can be cleaned by making a paste of white starch and cold water, and rubbing this well into the wool. Then brush off the dry starch with a clean brush.

Q. How can I lighten loose chair rungs?

A. Remove the rungs and slightly split the ends. Then insert small wooden wedges. The harder they are pressed into the holes the tighter they will fit.

HOLLYWOOD, May 15 — (AP)—Marie Wilson, blonde screen and radio actress was taken off the critical list at a hospital today, where she has been under treatment for four days for a blood infection.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Profession For Wife

Marketable Skill A Hedge Against Any Bad Breaks

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband and I are ardent readers of your column. We are very happily married, but nevertheless feel that your writings have helped keep us on our toes. So it is not for myself I am writing. My folks always insisted that before I married I should master a well-paying and mentally satisfying profession. That I did, and people have often told me that our marriage was bound to fail because I had entered it with the idea that I did not have to be dependent upon a man who might make me unhappy. It is to these people I wish you would address a column.

You see, we are friendly with a couple who have two children. He is, to sum it up in one word, a rascal, and they are very unhappy together. She has no profession to fall back on and therefore must continue to live with her husband. If she had learned a profession before she was married, things might be entirely different now.

Could you please, for the sake of those young girls who rush into marriage, mention the importance of being able to do a job outside of housekeeping and clerking in a store?

YOLANDA

ANSWER: What a wise family you had, Yolanda, to insist on your learning a profession, and how wise you were to accede to their wishes. Only a very short-sighted person would feel that a marriage was doomed simply because the wife was trained for a job she could fall back on if necessary.

DISASTER MAY COME

Young romance is surrounded by a rosy aura that will not be dimmed by the dark forebodings of disaster that may come later. And these disasters hit the happiest marriages all too frequently. Even if a couple remains compatible and has no recourse to the divorce courts, there is the possibility of a husband's long illness, business reverses, or a call by Uncle Sam—which many young husbands may have to heed ere long. In all these instances, it would be a tremendous lift, financially and morally, if the wife could step into a well-paying job or profession for the period of emergency. Now let's turn to the cheerful side! Even though you may never be confronted with the material difficulties of matrimony, your training will be a wonderful asset to you. As a professional woman you will enjoy a high standing among the women of your community and will be better able to contribute to the civic betterment of your town or city. You will have a better knowledge of economics, and your home should be more efficiently run than that of an untrained and uneducated woman. If your particular field of endeavor has included schooling in nursing, teaching or psychology, the problems presented by your children will be easier for you to handle. In a multitude of other ways you are well equipped to maintain a happy, healthful and busy household.

While a thorough, professional training does not always turn out a well-balanced woman, capable of making a success of marriage, the odds are in her favor.

DEAR MISS DIX: I go around with a boy whom I am crazy

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

What astounding treasure we discovered that day for youngsters to marvel over! Cowships by the stream commencing to disclose their wealth of gold; violets tightly budded amid the fresh green of their new leaves; raggedly dandelions; leafing alders. A squirrel in a red-brown coat a-strolling in high spruce branches; the glint and flash of a blue jay's wings; bright-vested robins . . . lads of fellows filching worms from the farmers' fields. And then the pure crystal of the spring as from a fissure in the rocky cliff it bubbled forth cool and clear to flow in an intriguing brook to the mill-stream below. "Someday" granddaughter, who is herself something of a dreamer, offered "I'm going to build a house up there." She had drunken deeply from the spring-cup and was now seated on a sunny bank close by. "Yes, just a nice little house of my own." Janie a practical lad nodded and observed, eyeing the height of the rise. "You could have water piped up, from here." She shook her head. "When I'll want any to drink or for my tea, I come down and dip a pail of it here. It always tastes better than from pump or pipe!" Back through the years and seasons households took their requirements of water from there—happy-hearted children laughing the summer-hours away came down along the worn red path and adults stepping more slowly burdened with their pails and their cares. Gone from us these are, scattered as are the days of that living and a new age obtains now in their stead.

And now our farmers into the cropping. They spread manure in the field by lane-side today, and in a characteristic gesture, between loads and while awaiting the return of the spreader to the heap for re-filling, James bustled himself carrying more stones of the out-cropping which appear in the wake of a plowing. The day was pleasant. The team hauled with a will and the machine "never worked better." In consequence we received a favorable report of the farming at day's end. It is hoped to have all spreadings completed before the cultivating begins. It comes to mind now that "all else that loved the sun were out-of-coors." Janie took plant dahlias; granddaughter was minutes off from her housework to busy at the sand-pile, joined there occasionally by her brother. He is one of the family's concerns. No interest has power to hold him for long. One knows he is about the yard — or was a moment ago! But where is this will-o-the-wisp fellow now? So many dangers lie in wait for small ones in the neighborhood of Alderlea. Hazard of suddenly approaching car along a winding lane, of pond and dam and bridge; of fields that stretch away lonely in the distance, of neighboring reaches of bush and grove and stream.

"For your own good" Janie explained to this year-and-nine-months son this morning "I'll just

Adaptable

"Practically any man can find work if he'll only use his brains," said the efficiency expert, "providing of course, he is ready to adapt himself to circumstances, like a piano-tuner I once met on the Prairies." "But even if he was adaptable," protested one listener, "he couldn't make piano-tuning pay with pianos so few and far between." "Admitted," replied the expert, "but he made quite a good living tightening up barbed-wire fences."

HIGHFIELD U. W. A.

The April meeting of the Highfield United Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Roberts with eight members and two visitors present. The Devotional period, led by Mrs. Dennis Neale, opened by singing the hymn: "O Master Let me walk with Thee." Scripture readings, Matthew 5 was read in unison. "We Learn by Acting" was the theme chosen. The singing of "Blest Be the Tie" ended this part of the meeting.

The president, Mrs. Bentley Creed, presided for the business period. A sum of money was donated by the members for the repair of the church organ. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ray Weeks, on May 23, with Mrs. Prizzell and Mrs. Neale on the lunch committee. Mrs. Ray Weeks will lead the Devotional period.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess and committee in charge, and a 1 hour coffee by all.
