Whittier's Poetry.

All through Whittier's poetry, says the Omaha Packet, the predominant note is faith in the goodness and justice of the eternal Father. Columns of quotations from his works might be given, illustrating this sublime faith. Two or three will suffice:

God moves through all things—all obey His first propulsion from the night; Work thou, and watch; the world is gray With morning light.

The right is mother of the day; The winter of the spring; And ever upon old decay The greenest mosses spring.

In darkest nooks some sunshine lurks, Through showers the sunbeams fall; For God, who loveth all his works, Hath left his hope with all.

Not wholly lost, oh Father, is this evil world of ours; Upward through its blood and spring afresh the Eden flowers; From its smoking hell of battle love and pity scatter their prayer, And still thy white-wing'd angels hover dimly in our air.

Every age on him who strays From its broad and beaten ways Pours its seven-fold wail.

Happy he, whose inward ear Angel whisperings can hear Through the rabble's laughter; And, while hatred's legions burn, Glimpses through the smoke discern Of the good he easter.

Knowing this—that never yet Shares of truth was vainly set In the world's wild fallow; After hands shall sow the seed, After hands from hill and mead Reap the harvest yellow.

Thus, with somewhat of the seer Must the moral pioneer From the future borrow; Clothes the waste with dreams of grain, And on midnight's sky of rain Paint the golden mornw.

The Manitoba School Case.

(From The Empire.)

The whole question of what the Government could or ought to do in this case is governed by the fact (we think generally conceded) that the appeal to the Governor-in-Council there given is simply alternative to that to the courts where it touches the same points, and is only an additional remedy where it takes up something not already settled by legal judgment. The idea of the petitioners in reserving an appeal to the Governor-in-Council after that to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council was evidently in accordance with this view, and in the expectation that the latter (as it might have done) would confine its judgment to the strictly legal point whether separate schools existed by law or by practice at the union, leaving some points which might still be brought before the other tribunal. What power the Dominion Government and Parliament would have had in that event, or what remedy they might have sought to apply if they found that a remedy was required, it is not worth while now to discuss, for, as pointed out by The Empire when the text of the judgment came to hand, the Privy Council did not content itself with dealing with the strictly legal point, but went into the merits of the case, and gave such a strong deliverance as must effectually preclude any action here such as expected by the petitioners. No Government could be expected to propose, and certainly no Parliament would pass, "remedial" legislation in the face of such a judgment as that from the highest court in the Empire.

The only safe ground that can be taken by the Dominion in regard to legislation of the Provinces on subjects committed to them by the Confederation Act, and which is kept within their rights under the constitution, is that of non-interference. That was the doctrine laid down when it was sought to get the Dominion to interfere with Quebec in the matter of the Jesuits' Estates Act, and despite the strong feeling which was aroused amongst a portion of the Protestant population, that stand was properly adhered to. Now, in turn, our Roman Catholic friends are pressing for interference, but if they will stop to consider it, they will see that the same old rule is the proper one in their case also, and that to break away from it opens possibilities which they would probably be first to deplore. We have always conceded that the strong feeling they are manifesting is quite natural, considering the circumstances under which the Manitoba School Law was passed, but they had every facility afforded them to prosecute their appeal to the highest court in the Empire, and, now that the decision has gone against them, they should endeavor to make the best of the situation. Instead of seeking for redress in a quarter where the difficulties in the way are practically unmountable, they should turn to the province which has power to deal with the matter, and we have faith enough in the people of any of our provinces to believe that when excitement calms down, if a genuine case of injustice is made out, Protestants as well as Catholics will eventually see that the injustice is not perpetuated.

In a day or two we will open 500 dozen new style ladies' and gentlemen's handkerchiefs. They were bought expressly for the Xmas trade, but in order to show our customers and the public that they cannot afford to buy their goods anywhere else if they want nice goods, we will at once place them on sale at prices that will shock the shrewdest buyers. Charlottetown will see prices on handkerchiefs, never seen of or dreamt of before. Look out for this sensation.—Deer Bros. oct 13 2i.

France's Far-off Wars.

DETAILS OF THE SANGUINARY BATTLE IN DAHOMEY—SEVERAL CONFLICTS IN TONGKIN.

Colonel Dadds, commander of the French forces in Dahomey operating against King Behanzin, has telegraphed to the French Government further accounts of the state of affairs prevailing in Dahomey and the position of the French troops. Recently Colonel Dadds sent despatches to the minister of Marine giving details of a desperate battle which took place on Oct. 4th between his command and King Behanzin's warriors, including many Amazons. Colonel Dadds related that he had crossed the river Oueme and was opening a road through the forest surrounding Gbede, where the fighting took place, the Dahomeyans occupying a strong position surrounded by thick bush wood.

In his latest despatches Colonel Dadds says that the French soldiers continued the opening of the road on October 5 and 6. The Dahomeyans, undismayed by the severe punishment which they had received in the battle on October 4, made a desperate attack on Major Gouard's scouting party on Thursday, October 6. The encounter took place near the French camp. Reinforcements were speedily sent to the assisted soldiers, which enabled them once again to repulse the enemy with heavy loss. The French lost four Europeans during the fighting. Three of the natives were killed and twenty-two others of Behanzin's followers fell wounded. Some of the Dahomeyans who were taken prisoners declared that King Behanzin's forces were demoralized.

Unofficial despatches received at Paris in reference to the warfare in Dahomey say that the enemy numbered about five thousand, and that in the ranks were the famous Amazons, whose ferocious fighting qualities are so well known. These despatches also say that the Dahomeyans occupied a strong position on the other side of the river, and had strongly fortified the bridge between the two shores. Major Gouard carried the bridge at the point of the bayonet. It was a sanguinary engagement, the native warriors contesting every inch of ground, and furiously resisting every attempt of the French to dislodge them. The enemy, however, were at length forced to yield to the attacks of the trained and better armed soldiers, and suddenly retreated, leaving the dead bodies of a large number of their companions and many rifles on the field.

A French lieutenant was killed while charging on the ranks of the Dahomeyans. Another lieutenant, of the name of Bonson, has died from the effects of wounds which he received while taking part in the battle of October 4.

A telegram dated October 8 has also been received from Colonel Dadds, in which he reports that he is now in such a position that he expects soon to make an attack on King Behanzin's last line of defence. He says that the French troops are very zealous and are well supplied with victuals and ammunition, and he is confident of entirely routing the Dahomeyan forces when the next engagement takes place.

Letters received from Tongkin contain the information that several battles recently took place between the Black Flags and the French forces on the frontier while the French soldiers were reconnoitering for a missing detachment. The fighting was fierce and determined on both sides, and in one of the engagements the French sustained a loss of six killed and thirteen wounded. The commander of the French forces asks for reinforcements in order to suppress the frontier raids which, he declares, are instigated by Mandarins.

The French press speak in an alarmed tone of the serious condition of affairs existing on the frontier, and urge the government to demand an explanation from China.

The Two Ways—Which?

HOW TO BRING DOWN A SON.

Let him have plenty of spending money. Permit him to choose his own companions, without restraint or direction. Give him a latchkey and allow him to return home late in the evening. Make no inquiry as to where and with whom he spends his leisure moments. Give him to understand that manners make a good substitute for morality. Teach him to expect pay for every act of helpfulness to others.

HOW TO BRING UP A SON.

Make home the brightest and most attractive place on earth. Make him responsible for the performance of a limited number of daily duties. Talk frankly with him on matters in which he is interested. Sometimes invite his friends to your home and table. Take pains to know his associates. Encourage his confidence by giving ready sympathy and advice. Be careful to impress upon his mind that making character is more important than making money.—Young Man's Era.

No man ever smoked "Myrtle Navy" tobacco for a fortnight and then took to any brand in preference to it. It bears its own testimony to its quality, and it is testimony which is always convincing. The smoker who uses it is never annoyed by getting it sometimes of good quality and sometimes of bad. The arrangements of the manufacturers for keeping its quality equal are very elaborate and complete, and are the result of many years of experience and close observation.

Skoda Victorious!
Palpitation of the Heart, Kidney and Liver Trouble, Deathly Faintness and Loss of Appetite CURED!!

THE FOLLOWING LETTER PROVES THE WONDERFUL MEDICAL POWERS OF THE GREAT GERMAN-AMERICAN REMEDY. THE NAME OF REV. H. MILLS (THAN WHOM THERE IS NO BETTER KNOWN MAN IN THE MINISTRY) IS WELL KNOWN IN THOUSANDS OF HOUSEHOLDS IN THE PINE TREE STATE.

GENTS—I am now 57 years old, and for over 10 years I have been afflicted with weak kidneys so badly at times that I could not see nights. I could get no position that would be comfortable my back was so lame.

My liver also became affected, causing me to become very bilious. I had a dull head-ache continually accompanied by a sluggish tired feeling.

My appetite was very poor, and I would have a deathly faintness at pit of stomach.

For the last two years I have been greatly troubled with a severe palpitation of the heart after preach- ing and in long protracted meetings it would become very serious.

I have used the two courses of SKODA'S DISCOVERY and LITTLE TABLETS you kindly sent me, and through the blessing of God, I am perfectly cured—my back is not better for 20 years. Fraternally yours, REV. H. MILLS, Tracy Mills, Carleton Co., N. B.
