Kinette Club Hears Speaker

SUMMERSIDE — A talk on Parliamentary procedure was given to the Summerside Kinette Club at their last regular meeting.

The guest speaker, Fred Hyndman of the Summerside Kinsmen Club, stressed in his talk points that would be most applicable to organizations such as the Kinette Club.

The speaker explained that there were four great principles to follow in conducting a successful meeting—publicity, impartiality of the chairman, freedom of speech, and common sense and fair play. He then continued on to explain the difficulties which might arise if these principles were not followed.

In closing, the speaker thanked the audience for giving him the opportunity to speak to them.

Carol Newsom introduced Mr. Hyndman to the club and president Eleanor Harris expressed her thanks on behalf of the club for his informative talk.

Business finalized during the meeting was the voting of $30 for the upkeep of the Kinette room at the Prince County Hospital and $25 to the scholarship fund of the Music Festival Association.

Other business under discussion consisted of the Kinette doll, the district convention in Moncton, and the annual Kinette birthday party.

Maclean's Editor Dies Suddenly

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP)—Ian Sclanders, 56, senior editor of Maclean's magazine, died suddenly in his hotel room here Tuesday.

Mr. Sclanders was a newspaper man in Saint John, N.B., Windsor, Ont., Detroit and Toronto before going to the magazine as a writer, Washington correspondent and then a senior editorial man in Toronto.

He was a son of the late F. MacClure Sclanders, former secretary-manager of the Saint John, N.B., Board of Trade.

Survivors include his wife, the former Christine Graham, also of Saint John.

Mr. Sclanders was in the New Brunswick capital where he had been bureau chief for the Saint John Telegraph-Journal in the 1930s, gathering information for a magazine article on the controversial New Brunswick municipal reform legislation.

STRETCH RESOURCES
The federal government had increased its per capita grant which would be a substantial help to universities, Mr. Smith said. "As far as one can tell the resources of the province will have to be stretched to do all they should do."

Of next year's anticipated revenue, four sources were expected to provide all but $12,000,000.

Tax sharing arrangements and other federal government payments were expected to produce $79,150,000. Highway revenues were forecast at $34,550,000 and the five-per-cent hospital tax was expected to yield $22,150,000. Liquor commission revenues were estimated at $14,280,000.

Mr. Smith said the province's share of the tax-sharing arrangements act would increase by $3,300,000 in the next fiscal year, which was "partly due to natural growth and partly to the increased rate of abatement."

Although the current year had been satisfactory, Mr. Smith warned against any complacency.

"There are, and will continue to be, many reasonable and proper demands upon the treasury which we have not been able to meet and which will be difficult to meet in the future," he said. "We must all contemplate ... the possibility of finding new sources of revenue to meet growing demands."

Letter To CC Commission Is Debated In Legislature

A letter to Dr. James Higgins, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, requesting consideration for a person when a civil service appointment was being made was tabled in the Legislative Assembly yesterday by Alex B. Campbell, the leader of the opposition.

The name at the bottom of the letter was Henry W. Wedge, but the minister of health said it was not his.

Mr. Campbell asked, before he brought the matter up, if it was the policy of members of the government to state personal preferences in civil service appointments.

Premier Walter R. Shaw said that he "never made a recommendation to the civil service."

Mr. Campbell read a portion of the letter and then members of the government called for him to table the letter, which he did.

Dr. Hubert MacNeill, minister of welfare and labor, said, "Mr. Speaker we would like to know where he received this letter."

The Premier said, "who gave you this letter?"

"The letter came to me," said Mr. Campbell, "from a person who found it on the street."

Mr. Wedge denied it was his signature on the bottom of the letter.

There was quite a bit of confusion as members of both sides of the House were speaking at the same time.

Dr. MacNeill said to Mr. Campbell, "you are trying to make a mountain out of a mole hill, he didn't recommend anyone, I don't see anything wrong with this letter."

Premier Shaw said, "where there are vacancies in a department and someone applies to the department it is alright for the minister to write the commission."

The letter was written concerning a Miss Josephine MacInnis of the Souris Line Road who was applying for a position as X-ray technician at the Riverside Hospital.

The letter read in part, "I realize that these technical people are scarce and I would very much like to have Miss MacInnis given consideration when the appointment is being made."

Mr. Wedge said, "I don't see anything wrong with the letter. We have 117 vacancies for lab technicians."

Vehicles Collide On Grafton St.

Damage estimated at $475 was sustained in a two car collision on Grafton Street near Canada Packers Ltd. yesterday at 2:00 p.m.

A City Police report revealed that the vehicles were driven by James D. MacNabb of Grand Tracadie and Melbourne Gass, New Haven.

An estimated $275 was sustained by the '64 Comet driven by Mr. MacNabb while the '61 Pontiac operated by Mr. Gass received about $200 damage.

The Comet was travelling east on Grafton while the Pontiac was proceeding out of Canada Packers' yard at the time of the accident.

There were no injuries.

He suggested that the developments forecast in the Speech from the Throne rely heavily on the participation of the federal government in assisting financially. "How many times is the federal government mentioned in the Throne Speech?" he asked.

"Twice," he said. "Once Ottawa is blamed for not helping local fishermen and the other mention is where it is forecast that a provincial economist will be appointed to examine what federal programs this province can share in." He said the Ontario Conservative government gave credit in its Throne Speech for the assistance Ottawa has made available to that province.

Mr. Campbell suggested that developments forecast in the Throne Speech could cost the province "$1,000,000 or $2,000,000 or $3,000,000." He asked "where will the money come from? Are we going to have additional taxes. We on this side of the House don't want them. The people don't want them. The answer is more taxes—sales tax, land tax—or a better deal from Ottawa."

The opposition leader spent some time discussing the site chosen for a liquor store in Summerside area by the Prince Edward Island Liquor Control Commission, reviewing the protests over the location by ratepayers in the districts that make up Athena Regional High School, near which the retail outlet is located. He suggested the government was "arrogant" in not going along with the people's request to have the store re-located.

Mr. Campbell produced what he said was a copy of the lease entered into by the commission and the person who built the liquor store. He said the agreed rent was $1,025 per month and the government or commission would pay the costs of heating the building, maintain the interior fixtures, all services and equipment, air conditioning lighting, plumbing and provide insurance. "If the plumbing goes down the drain," he said, "the taxpayer has to pay the cost of replacing it."

The opposition leader said he favored a system of compulsory motor vehicle insurance for the province. He said most people are unaware of what can happen if they are involved in an accident and have no vehicle insurance. He pointed out that an uninsured person involved in an accident can lose his operator's licence and that licence may not be restored until accident damages are settled satisfactorily. "We must give immediate consideration," he said, "to a system of compulsory insurance."

there should be no suggestion that the increase be charged back to the farmer. He said "the increase should come out of the general revenue of the province."

He said he was glad to see that grants are to be made to universities. He said "we urge the government to adopt a policy regarding a university of Prince Edward Island and make the most economical use of our educational resources."

Mr. Campbell, referring to the government promise to increase the minimum wage for laborers, said "we agree it should be increased but deplore the loopholes and exemptions the government wrote into the law. Numerous people get no benefit from the law and we should try to close those gaps."

Nova Scotia Budget Aims At Small Surplus

By DAVE NICHOLSON
HALIFAX (CP)—Finance Minister G.I. Smith presented his budget to the Nova Scotia legislature Tuesday, predicting increased revenue and expenditure for the 1966-67 fiscal year but no new taxes.

Mr. Smith said the Conservative government expected revenue to reach $162,800,000 during the year and expenditures to total $154,300,000.

After paying about $8,500,000 into sinking funds, Mr. Smith said he expected a surplus of $29,210.

For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1966, Mr. Smith forecast a surplus of $168,600. Revenue was expected to total nearly $149,000,000 while expenditures were estimated at $139,200,000.

Sinking funds were expected to absorb about $8,700,000.

Of the major increase in expenditure during the coming fiscal year, Mr. Smith said an increase of $7,600,000 was expected for education. Of the total education budget, about $6,000,000 would provide aid to universities, up $1,500,000 from the current year.

Although aid to universities had grown from $1,100,000 in 1962-63, Mr. Smith said there is "no doubt that we shall have to look forward to larger and larger expenditures each year for this purpose."

STRETCH RESOURCES
The federal government had increased its per capita grant which would be a substantial help to universities, Mr. Smith said. "As far as one can tell the resources of the province will have to be stretched to do all they should do."

Of next year's anticipated revenue, four sources were expected to provide all but $12,000,000.

Mr. Smith said the province's share of the tax-sharing arrangements act would increase by $3,300,000 in the next fiscal year, which was "partly due to natural growth and partly to the increased rate of abatement."

Although the current year had been satisfactory, Mr. Smith warned against any complacency.

"There are, and will continue to be, many reasonable and proper demands upon the treasury which we have not been able to meet and which will be difficult to meet in the future," he said. "We must all contemplate ... the possibility of finding new sources of revenue to meet growing demands."

LAB TECHS HOLD MEET
The Prince Edward Island Branch of the Canadian Society of Laboratory Technologists recently held their first meeting of the year, at the Health Centre with 27 members in attendance.

A short business meeting was chaired by the president William MacDonald R.T. A general program for the coming year was outlined and it was decided that monthly meetings of scientific nature would be held.

The highlight of the evening was a lecture on cancer chemotherapy by Dr. Kenneth C. Grant. In his opening remarks Dr. Grant gave a brief description of the nature of cancer and outlined the various methods used in the treatment of this disease with particular emphasis on drug therapy.

With coloured slides he illustrated the procedures used and the effects of the drugs given.
