Priestley's Dress Fabrics

In the long run it is the quality of the material that will determine the success of a lady's costume. Every lady who has at all studied the matter knows this. Priestley's Black Dress Goods are the best that the market affords. That is conceded on all hands. The ladies of Great Britain cordially acknowledge it. The American ladies prefer Priestley's dress fabrics to French. Our Canadian ladies are now asking for them. They wear better than other goods; but their great claim consists in a peculiar richness and softness of appearance, and a flexibility which enables them to drape in the costume with that suggestion of flow and rhythm which it is the dream of all tasteful women to realize.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

It is excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only whose name is printed on every wrapper, and also the name, Syrup of Figs, will be found well informed, you will not want any substitute if offered.

CORPORATE OWNERSHIP

A PACIFIC COAST STATESMAN'S LECTURE ON THIS THEME. The Electric Light System of New Westminster, British Columbia, is owned by the Municipality—Figures Showing This Plan in Comparison With Private Plans.

At a recent meeting in Victoria, B.C., J. C. Brown, M.P.P., said he would not discuss the electric light system of Westminster, but merely tell them of the system of Westminster. He would deal with the matter from an abstract proposition. A trap was placed on his back and was sitting by the wayside. The placard read: "Pity the blind!" A fellow tramp accused him of being a fraud. The placard trumped up an abstract idea, to have put on the blind. Services operated by the community should be owned by the community. Every man was entitled to a vote in civic management whether or not he owned property. The man with property was at the mercy of his fellow citizens. If the people in Victoria desired to leave the city so much, would corner lots be sold? Land was worth what the value the community gave it. Was it right for the community to do public work, and did it pay? What was right for the individual's right for a number of individuals—a community. The legislature was recognized as the principle and gave additional powers to municipalities. These public services controlled by private companies were in the nature of monopolies, and to protect the community they should be under public control. Matters of health and the welfare of the community must not be narrowed down too much to a paying basis. Did the postal service pay? No; and yet none thought of giving it over to a private company. Westminster had a fine water service at a cost of $400,000. It was not paying now but it would do so in the long run. The speaker knew that the citizens of that town would not sell the water works. The electric lighting of Westminster was done by the city. The city of the street lighting and the private business lighting. Everything in connection with the electric lighting system is owned by the city, and the citizens were not ashamed to acknowledge it. It had cost $116,000, and the system would be sold easily for a quarter of a million dollars. It was in January, 1891, that the street lighting system was inaugurated, but it was not until August of the same year that the revenue producing portion of the system was inaugurated. The city buildings were lighted by the city's own plant. The revenue producing part of the system had been set back a little by the depression that prevailed. The electric light system received from the council 25 cents a light night, which totals $8,000. The net cost for each lamp was 20 cents a light a night. In New Westminster, there are 4500 lamps and in Victoria between 32 and 34,000. Nanaimo and Vancouver were lighted by private companies. Victoria owned the street lighting, while Westminster owned its street and revenue producing lights. So it was that it paid for a light to own its own light. When the city was in full running order the city would have its own light and its system would cost $2,000 a year in the treasury if present rates were charged. The electric lighting system were 1,400 lights, and those using them say they are cheaper and better than coal oil. It cost him in his house $1.50 a month for all the year around. There were no coal oil lamps to knock over and no foul air from the light. Although Westminster had only half the population of Victoria (9,000) had as many candles as there were in the street, and in fact, it was the best lighted city in the province and one of the best lighted cities on the coast. The electric light system was inaugurated when the street was owned by the city. There are many other advantages obtained by the ownership of the electric light system. A public ownership of the system would be secured by the city. Good management could easily be obtained. The electric light system of Victoria, considering the plant had been well managed. Communities had rights as well as individuals, and the rights of communities had to be recognized. Railway companies obtained rights on the ground that they were going to be the servants of the public, but in these days they generally became the masters.

GENE OF THOUGHT

The action of this life shall be the fate of the next. Well arranged time is a sign of well-ordered mind. When you bury an evil habit do not visit the claims of the day. "Pessimism," says Archbishop Ireland, "is the faith of cowards."

Much in Little.

There is aluminum in bullets. England has 120,000 baronets. A machine makes sandwiches. Aligators are becoming scarce. Paper is made from waste hops. Thread is made from old leather. Gas engines are increasing in size. California uses peach stones as fuel. Buckingham palace cost $3,000,000. The States contain 500,000 windmills. Aluminum visiting cards grow in favor. Germany published 29,669 books in 1893.

Novel Indeed.

A funeral on reformer's principles was recently conducted in Sweden. After the death of a popular cyclist his remains were placed on a tricycle, which was painted black and draped. Three bicyclists guarded the coffin on either side, and immediately following were his five daughters and three sons, mounted on tandem, and blowing a mournful requiem on their horns.

Alcohol in Potatoes.

Alcohol is distilled from sweet potatoes a bushel of potatoes yielding a gallon of the fluid.
