

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

SEPTEMBER 8, 1882.

The Duffy Tragedy.

ANOTHER VICTIM, in the person of Thomas Duffy, has been added to the long list of murdered drunkards. The lesson which might be drawn from the Duffy tragedy is that liquor dealers should not sell alcoholic drinks to drunken men. A druggist may sell poisons to such persons as are likely to use them with moderation; but if he should sell poison to a man who had good reason to suppose would use it immoderately, he would justly be denounced as a murderer. The same principle applies with respect to the sale of alcoholic drinks. Sold to a sober man, the act is not morally criminal. But the fate of thousands of victims proves that the immoderate use of liquor results in untimely death; and the man who sells liquor to one who he knows is a drunkard and will use it immoderately is morally guilty of murder. This thought will not add much to the future comfort of those who gave Duffy liquor while he was drunk.

The Railway Question.

IN spite of the remarkable progress made by the C. P. Railway, and notwithstanding the manifest part it is performing in opening up and enriching the great North-West, we still hear the dismal wailings of Gritdom over the track. But there is hope. The party of purity is trimming in the direction of the National Policy, and is already beginning to divide itself on the great railway scheme. At the next Grit fizzle it would be well to have a resolution ready to which all present could agree. The following one was once passed by the Georgia House of Representatives when it was harassed over a railway scheme. It could be accepted in toto by the divided party: "Resolved—that this railroad question stumps this house a little the worse. The more members think about and talk over it the more we can't tell. As near as we now remember we are of opinion we don't know. Much has been said, and much more may be said, and neither prove correct. Upon the whole, we are inclined to think that we should, or that we should not, just as every member thinks least or otherwise. Some think through freights are through freights; some think local freights are local freights; some think the line a fraud, and some think it lovely. Therefore resolved—that the object of this resolution is that each may think himself right in this matter, just as he pleases."

The Joyce Murderers.

ON August 18, THE EXAMINER received the telegraphic news of one of the most atrocious murders ever committed in Ireland. To-day the news comes of the committal of ten men implicated in the affair. The account of the murder is revolting. Joyce and his family had retired for the night. The man, his wife, mother and daughter, all sleeping together in a little hut, and covered, on account of their poverty, with scant clothing. At one o'clock in the morning, so the dying man related, he heard shots. Soon the door was lifted off its hinges, and a band of assassins entered the cabin. The old man, imploring mercy, was shot to the floor; the wife was beaten to death with a club; the old grandmother's head was reduced to a purple pulp, and the devil's work was completed by smashing the face of the child. The scene in the cabin was described as ghastly in the extreme, and was not discovered till some little time after the diabolical affair. When the police arrived they found that the bodies of the victims had been food for dogs. There lay the dogs, at their ravenous ghoulish work, stark mad from the effects of their horrible feast. In the interests of humanity, and for the honour of the proud position of Old Ireland, it is hoped that justice will swiftly fall on the perpetrators. Ireland quivers under the dreadful stain, and every true Irishman demands the death of the diabolical brutes.

A Rothschild Daughter.

Mlle. Berthe Marie de Rothschild, daughter of the head of the Frankfort branch of that family, was married on the 6th to Prince Alexandre de Wagram. As a necessary preliminary to the ceremony, Mlle. Berthe last Sunday received Christian baptism. Prior to the ceremony she formally signed an abjuration of the Jewish faith. Archbishop Guibert, of Paris, administered first communion to Mlle. Berthe de Rothschild on Monday. No member of the family were present. The young lady who became Princess of Wagram now enjoys the nobility of Imperial creation, which is almost extinct in France. The soldiers and functionaries who became dukes and princes by Napoleon's grace lived fast and died off rapidly. Berthe was one of the few among them who bore fortune well. Alexander Berthier, his grand son, who is engaged to Mlle. Berthe de Rothschild, was rather wild, but he has tamed down. The major, or perpetual annuity, which descends in his family from father to eldest son, amounts to 300,000F. The Berthiers of Wagram are connected with the reigning families of Sweden and Bavaria and with the ducal family of Leuchtenberg. Prince Alexander is heir to the title and the annuity.

THE mob at Mt. Vernon, Md., burnt the city marshal's house and beat his deputy terribly in revenge for an attempt to close the saloons on Sunday.

Scott Act at Summerside.

THE BAINSFATHER CASE.

A TETOTAIER'S POINT OF VIEW.

A correspondent at Summerside writes:—You had the first part of the Bainsfather rum case yesterday. Here is a little more of it. The trial was resumed on Tuesday evening. Although Bainsfather had sworn on Wednesday that he neither made sales nor collected monies, a witness deposed, on Tuesday evening, that she paid him ten dollars on an order for liquor, that she got twelve bottles, two of which Bainsfather carried to her the day before the adjourned trial, and that she could not get the balance either in money or liquor. Bainsfather then tried to browbeat the witness, when the Stipendiary Magistrate interposed, and ordered him to desist, which he refused to do. He became insolent and the Magistrate ordered a policeman to take him out of court. Some of his sympathisers demurred and threatened to interfere, when some respectable citizens lent their help to the policeman, and poor Bainsfather went out with more expedition than dignity. The Magistrate adjourned the court and reserved judgment till next morning. On Wednesday morning Stipendiary Magistrate Howe—who has shown commendable resolution and ability in all these liquor trials—gave judgment against Bainsfather, and fined him fifty dollars or one month in jail. Another action will probably be brought against Bainsfather, forthwith, for the second offence against the Scott Act. So his little game of trading rum for his Monticomb friend does not appear to pay well, especially as he has sworn that he has received no remuneration nor expects to get any.

FROM THE DEFENDANTS POINT OF VIEW.

A correspondent writes:—"The case of Inspector Caldwell against Mr. Bainsfather postponed from last Wednesday, was resumed on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock before Mr. James W. Howe, Stipendiary Magistrate for Summerside. The court house was crowded, and great sympathy seemed to be shown by the majority of those present for the defendant. On the prosecutor bringing forward a witness, Mr. Bainsfather objected, on the grounds that Mr. Caldwell had closed his case, and the postponement had taken place for the accommodation of defendants witness. This was overruled and the witness was placed upon the stand. After being examined by Mr. A. A. McLennan on behalf of the prosecutor, Mr. Bainsfather proceeded with the cross-examination, and was eliciting facts which, to all appearance, would have cleared him, but was hauled up by the Stipendiary refusing to allow him to proceed further. To this, the defendant indignantly protested, pointing out what he considered the Magistrate's duty. Mr. Howe refused to listen, and threatened to commit defendant for contempt. Mr. Bainsfather dared him at his peril to do so. Mr. Howe again threatened, when the defendant stated that the Stipendiary had shown his prejudice throughout the whole of the trial, and that he was both acting as judge and counsel for the prosecutor; and, that if he did not know his position, he (the defendant) would teach him. This was too much for the Stipendiary, who ordered the policeman to put Mr. Bainsfather out of court. Policeman Allen immediately seized the defendant who exclaimed, addressing Mr. Howe: "I sha'll go out of court, sir, but I dare you to proceed in my absence." At this stage of the proceedings the crowd were determined to have a hand in the pie, and such expressions as "shame," "shame," "what a judge!" "fairplay," "disgraceful," etc., were freely given vent to. But the worst has yet to be told; the defendant was being pulled along in an unceremonious manner by the policemen, when he (the policeman) was seized and a general scuffle ensued, in which one or two of the principal citizens figured, determined on the release of the defendant. After quietness had been restored and Mr. Bainsfather had gone home, the Stipendiary proceeded with the case, and after hearing further evidence said he would give judgment to-day. On enquiring of the defendant this afternoon what was the decision, he said, "How can I tell, the case isn't finished yet; it collapsed last night when I was put out." However, on further enquiry at the town clerk's office, he informed us that a judgment of $50 had been recorded in the books against Mr. Bainsfather. The defendant intends to lay the whole matter before the Supreme Court, as well as the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

WHAT THE "JOURNAL" SAYS.

Commenting on the case, the Summerside Journal says:—"Those persons who attempted to interfere are regarded by most of our law-abiding citizens, and who marked well their conduct on the occasion, with disfavor. The evidence adduced, admitted to be entirely trustworthy, by the Court, proved that the defendant had sworn falsely, when he deposed that he never had and never expected to receive any pecuniary remuneration for the sale of liquor, and that he had only acted as recommender of the goods of a liquor dealer in Montreal. He was thereupon convicted by Stipendiary Howe of the first offence, with its penalty of fifty dollars fine or thirty days imprisonment. The Scott Act is to-day the law, and should be so recognized by every law-abiding citizen of this Province; and whether it is or is not the proper law and best for our people, it is very difficult for those who endeavor to administer it to do so if persons who have a stake in our town affiliate with the accused."

Death of Thomas Duffy.

YESTERDAY Dr. Conroy held an inquest on the body of Thomas Duffy who died suddenly at the Lorne Restaurant on Wednesday night. The following is the evidence taken followed by the verdict:—

EMILY McDONALD, (sworn)—I saw deceased on Saturday night in a state of intoxication. He was better on Sunday, vomited and bled from the nose. He went out for a seidlitz powder on Sunday, took it, and vomited again. On Monday he seemed sick and trembling, and in the night he went out and staid out till morning. He seemed delirious on Tuesday, and on the same night he jumped out through the window and we gave him in charge of the police. Dr. Creamer gave him a prescription on Tuesday, and the medicine was got for him the same evening. On Wednesday Katie McKinnon went to the Police Office and brought him the medicine and gave him a dose of it. She brought the medicine back with her, sent two men to the Police Office and brought deceased home. He was still in the same delirious state, and remained so all day. The last I saw of him was at 12 o'clock last night. I did not see him take any liquor until he was taken back from the Station when Katie McKinnon gave him some gin and sugar. The deceased was always able to attend to his daily work, which was ordinary house work. He often was intoxicated to my knowledge. I don't think deceased slept any since Saturday.

KATE MCKINNON (sworn)—The deceased was delirious since Saturday all the time, except Sunday. Tuesday and Wednesday he was given a little liquor as medicine. I knew that deceased was drinking last week; he was in the habit of drinking too much. I gave deceased four doses of medicine on Tuesday and three on Wednesday. I do not know where deceased got the liquor he was in the habit of drinking. I have seen him take some in this house. I know that deceased did not take as much liquor this last week as he used to do. I am not aware that deceased slept any since Saturday.

STEPHEN CARROLL (sworn)—I staid up with deceased last night until he died. Charles McDonald was with me. We had to hold him down on the floor. We afterwards put him on the lounge, where he went to sleep and remained so for two hours, when on looking at him we found him dead. We did not think that deceased was going to die. We gave him nothing to drink nor did any body else do so.

CHARLES CAMERON (sworn)—I am on the police staff. On Tuesday night deceased was brought to the police office. I put him in a cell. He was then delirious and subject to illusions, but not intoxicated. I am aware the deceased drank hard. He was released on Wednesday morning.

JOSEPH CREAMER, M. D. (sworn)—I saw deceased Tuesday afternoon. He was then delirious. I prescribed some sleeping draught and I have not seen him since. Deceased suffered from disease of the heart. I told the people of the house that he was liable to die at any time at short notice. I believe that the diseased state of his system, induced by excessive drinking, together with his diseased heart, produced death.

The jury returned the following verdict:—"That the deceased came to his death from delirium tremens, induced by excessive use of ardent spirits."

The Halifax Regatta.

The first day of the Regatta opened with promise of calm weather. When the steamers left the Wharf and proceeded to Bedford Basin, it was found that the breeze was freshening and that the water had already become far too lumpy for the four-oared contest. A postponement was made till the afternoon. In the interval, all the local races which were to take place on the harbour were contested. At about four o'clock the official boats were again at the Bedford Basin course; and about four or five thousand persons were impatiently awaiting the arrival of the crews. The water was now perceptibly smoother, and one by one the following crews arrived: Griswold-Evans crew, Riley-Ferguson crew, Lunenburg crew, Ross-Foley crew, West End crew, Williams crew, Salem crew. At about five o'clock the signal to start was given, and some splendid rowing was seen. The Lunenburg crew broke one of their oars and soon dropped out of the race. The West End crew was the first to make the turn round the buoy, and kept the lead on the homeward run. The Williams crew came in second, followed closely by the Salem. The Griswold crew took fourth place, the Riley-Ferguson fifth, and the Ross-Foley sixth.

The double scull race was immediately called, but it resolved into a contest of one boat. Conley and Hamm started over the course, and came in claiming the handsome sum of $400.

The conduct of the spectators during the day was remarkably good.

"TWENTY-FOUR YEARS' EXPERIENCE," says an eminent physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used, Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all our Druggists at 50 cents per box, or 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of an order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Mack's Magnetic Medicine Co., Windsor, Ont., they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their "written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See advt. in another column.

Mrs. Lawford and Mrs. Turner, both widows, are claimants against Hunter, the defaulting Montreal notary, for $6,000 and $2,200 respectively, which they had given him for investment, and for which there is no security forthcoming.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Another Secret Treaty.

Egypt's Offer to England.

Hanging the Natives.

The Crisis Approaching.

Special Despatch to the Examiner.

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 7.

It is rumored here that a secret treaty has been signed by England and Turkey relative to the ultimate organization of Egypt and its future management. Russia is in the secret and assents to the proposals contained in the treaty.

It is not yet known what the proposals are but it is openly announced, and remains uncontradicted, that Sultan Said offered England the charge of Egypt on the same terms as that country made with Turkey when Cyprus was handed over to the British. This offer has been refused.

The Arab murderers of the English at Dobson and Richardson were hung at Alexandria this morning. The effect of this on the natives was very marked, and already a healthy fear of wrong-doing is spreading.

Trustworthy information secured by the authorities here place the full strength of Arab's army at ninety three thousand men. Arabi is well supplied with a great quantity of war material and many heavy guns. Yesterday there was a determined demonstration of Arabi's forces at Kassasi. The utmost activity prevails in the camp in all directions, and the movements are supposed to indicate the near approach of the conflict. Wolsley has proceeded to the front, and the British transport service is working now in capital order.

[Arabi Pasha has an excellent position near Kassasi. He is in direct communication by rail with Zagazig and Salihyeh, and water for his forces is brought up by rail and canal. His active cavalry succeed in making his movements and keeping them secret. The Indian cavalry and a detachment of the Royal Irish Dragoon Guards, scoured the country a day or two ago between the camp at this point and Maxama, and returned without seeing any marauding Bedouins. The number of engines now en route from Suez and Port Said brings up the total to nine, which will be sufficient for transportation purposes. The English horses are holding out well. The worst of the hot weather seems to be over. General Wolsley is generally believed to be in high spirits and confident of success, and British officers think it will be almost a miracle if Arabi Pasha succeeds in holding Tel-el-Kebir. General Wolsley has 20,000 men on the main line of operations, besides the garrison at Alexandria, and the Indian Contingent.]
