THE DAILY EXAMINER

MARCH 8, 1900

THE GOVERNOR NONPLUSED.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR McINNIS—who seems not to have the faintest idea of the limitations of the constitution—of his own motion called to his counsel Mr. Joe Martin. Of course he had a perfect right to do so. But mark the first result! The members of the Legislature met together and passed a vote of no confidence in the Governor by a large majority. Then, upon the last day of the session they adopted the following resolution, Mr. Martin, himself, alone voting in the negative:—
“This House has no confidence in the Honorable third member for Vancouver who has been called upon to form a Government.”

No sooner had the resolution been passed than Governor McInnis appeared to close the session. Immediately, with the one word, “Gentlemen,” Mr. Dunsmuir, left the Chamber, all the elected representatives of the people, save Mr. Martin, following. The crowded galleries instantly caught the meaning of the movement, and round upon round of cheers for the members rang through the Chamber. We are told that,—

“As His Honor ascended the throne, the last coat tail disappeared through the lobby doors, and the cheers merged into hisses and laughter as the Governor essayed to speak. He sat for two minutes silent, pale and nervous, looking melancholy, and unhooking his hands. The House attaches and the members of staff, looked at one another in dazed bewilderment. Even Joe Martin bit his lips in agitation, and alone faced the jeering throng. At last His Honor found voice, and rising and bowing to the deserted House, commenced his prorogation speech. ‘Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the Legislature,’ he said, but got no further. ‘Where are they,’ shouted some one in the gallery and the tumult recommenced, the Governor sinking again into his seat.

“After a short pause he rose once more and completed the reading of the speech, with Premier Martin as his only auditor on the floor of the House, and then hurried away, pursued by hisses from the gallery.
“As he went out the lobby doors opened and the members burst into the chamber like a rush of footballers, Messrs. Price, Elliott and Pooley starting a cheer which was taken up by the galleries. Speaker Forster was put into the chair, and votes of congratulation to the Queen, to Bullard and DuDonald were voted, after which the members dispersed singing ‘God Save the Queen.’
“At a meeting of the late Government party this morning, C. A. Semlin resigned the leadership; and Francis Carter Cotton was unanimously chosen. The party are determined to oppose the introduction of Federal party lines.”

Whoever may win in the coming election contest, Mr. Joseph Martin, the Governor's nominee, will almost certainly be in a small minority. What the Governor will do then, and what will be done with the Governor, remains to be seen.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—If we had not sent a contingent—as Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Tarte desired,—should we not feel small, now?

—It has been remarked that the 25th of the present month is Lady day, but the 28th of February, will hereafter be Lady-smith day.

—Of a hundred prisoners taken at Colenso a few days ago, by far the greater number were genuine Hollanders,—and only a few Boers. It really seems that we are in this war “Fighting all Europe.”

—A close old observer rises to remark: “When the Grits were in power before they brought the potato bug with them and now it is the army worm which has made its appearance. This latter seems to have made Alberton its ‘headquarters.’” —In Halifax, recently, several persons who have ventured to make disparaging remarks concerning the “Soldiers of the Queen” have received the full benefit of a good British fist, while others have been made to pay for their lack of wind through the pocket. In one instance a business man was given a thorough thrashing in his own shop by a customer who resented the insults heaped upon his country. Such punishment “served the right.” But, all the same, it is to be deprecated.

MANUAL TRAINING.

The State of Maine has been making an experiment in the introduction of manual training in rural schools. This is a subject that has been much discussed in Canada, and there will, therefore, be general interest in the following statement from the last annual report from the Maine superintendent of education:

To answer the objection that it was not possible to teach music, drawing and manual training in the rural schools an interesting experiment was tried in one hundred and ten of the schools. Many of these were among the poorest in the—poorly housed, taught by teachers who had not received adequate training, and located in communities where many of the people were without education.

These schools were visited and inspected by the state superintendent and by persons appointed by him. The last inspection reveals the following conditions: The teachers are using modern methods with such skill as not only to be acceptable to the inspector, but also to win the approval of the people. The common school subjects are taught in such a way that the children can read understandingly, spell the words they have to use in written form, and perform the processes in arithmetic understandingly and make the computations rapidly and accurately. They have been taught to beautify their yards and schoolrooms, making use of the material at hand, and accomplishing all these things through their own efforts, under the direction of the teacher. Music and drawing have been taught to an extent and with thoroughness that is as surprising as it is gratifying. In the matter of manual training these schools have shown a quality of work and a proficiency hardly less than astonishing. These children have constructed in miniature nearly all the implements and utensils used on the farm or found in the home. These were manufactured with the simple tools found in these rural homes. Some children have progressed so far that they have been able to make carriages complete in every detail, including the wood-work, ironing, painting, striping and upholstering. All the paraphernalia necessary to the manufacture of cloth was made by one child, including the small spinning wheel, the large spinning wheel, the swifts, the loom, the warp and the shuttle, and a section of cloth was woven some three feet in length and fifteen inches in width. Another furnished a complete outfit for a blacksmith shop, including all the tools and appliances found in an industry of this kind.

The experiment was tried in these schools for several reasons. All the school conditions were unfavorable. The most of the local conditions did not promise success. The teaching force had no special training or opportunities for doing this work. The results have attracted attention not only in this country, but have been commented upon in other lands. It is believed that it is the first and only successful attempt to introduce manual training into rural schools.

“TURNING OF THE TIDE.”

Sonnet by Algernon Swinburne Published in the Times.

The London Times prints a sonnet by Swinburne, entitled “The Turning of the Tide—February 27, 1900.” It reads:

Storm strong with all the bitter heart of hate,
Smote England now nineteen dark years ago,
As when the tide's fall wrath in seaward flow
Smites and bears back the swimmer.
Fraud and fate
Were leagued against her,
Fear was fain to prate
Of honor in dishonor,
Pride brought low,
And humbleness, whence holiness must grow,
And greatness born of shame to be so great.
The winter day, that withered hope and pride,
Shines now triumphant on the turning tide.
That sets once more our trust in freedom free,
That leaves a ruthless and a truthless foe
And all base hopes that hailed his cause laid low,
And England's name a light on land and sea,

ALBERTON DEFENDED.

Sir,—I notice a letter in the Patriot of the 2nd inst., signed “A. E. Arsensault,” headed “A Slanderer Nailed.” If that gentleman means to insinuate that any of the good people of Alberton put any such report in circulation as that his lecture contained any “pro-Boer sentiments,” he is doing them an injustice which is a poor return for all the kindness shown him whilst in our midst. But he is very unfortunate in the proof of his “loyalty” when he quotes Mr. B. Rogers as the most “loyal subject on the Island.” And Mr. Arsensault certainly did not take the weight of M. B. Rogers' keen sarcasm when he complimented him on his endeavor to show that Britain's war with the Boers was justifiable. Hoping that when Mr. Arsensault next attempts to nail a slanderer's lie, he will be better informed on his subject and know his man, I am

INHERITED ASTHMA.

Suffered Since His Birth, and Found Help Only Through Clarke's Kola Compound. Now Free From Asthma.

Mr. Robert S. Taylor, New Westminster, B.C., writes:—“I have been a constant sufferer from hereditary bronchial asthma since my birth, 23 years ago. I have tried every remedy ever heard of for this trouble, and spent hundreds of dollars with doctors, but to no purpose. Clarke's Kola Compound is the only remedy that ever gave me any permanent relief. I have also gained much in weight since being cured. I can honestly recommend it to any unfortunate sufferer from asthma.” All druggists sell Clarke's Kola Compound, or write the Griffiths and Macpherson Co., Limited, Toronto.
