Our Rest

My feet are worn and weary with the march
O'er rough roads and up the steep hill-side;
Oh, city of our God, I fain would rest
Thy pastures green, where peaceful waters glide.

My hands are weary, laboring, toiling on,
Day after day, for perishable meat;
Oh, city of our God, I fain would rest;
I sigh to gain thy glorious mercy-seat.

My garments, travel-worn and stained with dust,
Oft rent by briars and thorns that crowd my way,
Would fain be made, O Lord my righteous-ness!
Spotless and white in heaven's unclouded ray.

My eyes are weary, looking at the sin,
Impiety, and scorn upon the earth;
Oh, city of our God, with thy walls
All, All, are clothed with the new birth.

My heart is weary of its own deep sin—
Sinning, repenting, sinning still away;
When shall my soul thy glorious presence feel,
And find its guilt, dear Saviour, washed away?

Patience, poor soul, the Saviour's feet were worn;
The Saviour's heart and hands were weary too;
His garments stained and travel-worn and old,
His sacred eyes bedewed with tears for you.

Love thou the path of sorrow that He trod;
Toll on, and wait in patience for thy rest;
Oh, city of our God, we soon shall see
Thy glorious walls, home of the loved and blest.

A Sketch of Mrs. Mary A. Hunt.

Mrs. Mary A. Hunt was born at Litchfield County, Canada, Conn. Her father, Peter Thatcher, first pastor of the Old South Boston Church, was of Welsh descent, while her mother was of Puritan stock. She was educated at the public schools at Armenia Seminary, New York, and Patapsco Institute, Baltimore, Maryland, from which she graduated with honor. She subsequently became a professor of natural science in the last named institution, holding the position until her marriage with Leander B. Hunt who died about six years ago. Mrs. Hunt, was always a close student, and it was while assisting her only son in his chemical studies in 1874 that her attention was accidentally drawn to the study of the nature of alcohol and its effects upon the human system. She says: "This study became an absorbing research that filled me with alarm for the future of a nation whose people were consuming such vast quantities of alcohol."

Possessed of a highly sympathetic nature and a disposition to examine carefully all existing testimony at her command relative to the subject that occupied her thoughts, Mrs. Hunt was soon convinced that these scientific facts should be taught the people during the plastic period of childhood, and that the public school was the medium through which this instruction should be given. In 1880 the Women's Christian Temperance Union, in response to her strong appeal formed a national department for scientific instruction, appointing Mrs. Hunt superintendent, but without salary or appropriation for expenses. At this time scientific temperance instruction was but a theory—the outgrowth of an idea in one woman's brain, but destined to become a national movement. In 1882 she addressed the legislature of Vermont, then in session at Montpelier, and the outcome of her effort was the placing upon the statute books of that State of the first compulsory temperance law ever enacted anywhere, and in the following year the legislatures of Michigan and New Hampshire adopted similar school laws. "Now," said Mrs. Hunt, "if we can take New York and Pennsylvania we can carry the whole country." New York and Pennsylvania were taken, and state after state followed until 15 legislatures had enacted compulsory temperance education laws. In 1886 her appeal to Congress resulted in the enactment of the National Compulsory Temperance Education law. The Boston Daily Traveller, speaking of this event, says: "Mrs. Hunt's address before the senate committee was considered one of the ablest and most eloquent appeals ever delivered before the national congress. It followed the necessity for suitable text books for the schools. The laws relating to hygiene and physiology required to be translated into language adapted to all grades of pupils, and in this immense work Mrs. Hunt labored indefatigably, a great part of the expense incurred being met from her own pocket. This was but a brief outline of the work accomplished by this devoted and highly gifted woman.

100 ROLLS of carpets is a large stock of expensive carpets to receive, but Jas. Paton & Co., Market Square, received that quantity yesterday, which is only part of their spring importations. They handle the largest lines of these goods of any firm on the Island, and buying from the makers enables them to sell very close. They bought this year 10 per cent cheaper than former years and are now in a position to show you the largest and cheapest line of carpets and oilcloths on P. E. Island. m30 31

RAILWAY NOTE.—Mexico has the most luxurious railways in the world. The rails of the Mexican Gulf Railway are laid on sleepers of mahogany, and the bridges are built of white marble. On the west coast of Mexico there is another line which has sleepers of ebony and ballast of silver ore drawn from the old mines beside the track. The reason for this apparent extravagance is, that the engineers had no other material on the route, and found it cheaper to use these than to import ordinary material.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letter from Manitoba.

Sir,—I have often thought of writing you as the days have been going by; but the pressing duties of the hour have often prevented. But now as the warm March sun is pouring his beams in through the windows and telling of spring, I think of eastern homes and friends far away. Just now the strike among railway trainmen is the most exciting topic—away ahead of politics, pro and con, election, hooding and all the rest of it for the time is forgotten in the question, will the trains be kept a-going? And just this week with ten trains of new settlers and their cattle and other effects on the road north of Lake Superior! What a time to be tied up and business paralyzed. Yet I hope ere this reaches you that the difficulties may be settled. This is too good a country to have all access to it cut off for even a week, and especially now when so many hundreds are on the way to it.

The class of settlers that seek these prairies have much improved in the last two or three years. Formerly most who came were homesteaders, i. e., those who took land from the Government, and after residing on it for three years and making certain improvements, received their patent. Most of those had little but their hands to begin with, and though most of them have succeeded and are now doing well, yet it was hard work and self-denial that brought them out. But now with the increased facilities that the C. P. R. offers, farmers in the majority of cases bring their horses, cattle and most of their household effects with them, and purchase farms more or less improved, according to their means, and are at home and at work in a few weeks, and getting here in the early spring, have a crop to dispose of that fall.

In 1889, I was stationed at Neepawa, a man named McFeeters came from Renfrew County, Ontario, and bought a half section of land twelve miles north of the town, paying therefore $1,736. In addition to his family he brought with him two cows and two span of horses. In the fall of 1891 he had 170 acres of crop, which yielded him 4,000 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat, 1,175 bushels of oats, and 190 bushels of barley. The crop, at the current prices, gave him $3,380. In the fall of 1890 he realized for wheat alone $2,500, which was grown on "breaking" done the year of his arrival. He has this spring 50 acres additional, and will crop 220 acres this year. All the work has been done by himself and an elderly man and a boy, with the help of a hired man during six months of the year. In addition to the four horses that he brought with him, he now owns five others, and his cattle have increased from two to thirteen head. Last year he erected a frame granary 24x35 in size, and this year a stable of the same size has been constructed. Both buildings have stone foundations. He has never had a bushel of wheat frozen, as he was sensible enough to locate in a district where such visitations are unknown. I commend these facts to the careful consideration of any of my old friends in P. E. Island who are casting about in their minds for a place to move to where they and their family may have room.

Of course you know that up to the present wheat has been the great staple of these plains, but now new enterprises are commencing themselves to some that have capital, and as this soil is as well adapted for potatoes as for grain. West of this theory plantation and factory is doing good work. Still further the sugar beet is being experimented with, and reasonable hopes entertained that our own sugar will be produced before many years. An old friend of mine in Neepawa, Manitoba, and he may hear of something to his advantage.

And now, Mr. Editor, to yourself and numerous readers, I send kind, greetings, and remain as ever yours truly,
W. W. COLPITTS,
Griswold, Manitoba, March 1892.

Entertainment and Pic Social at Lower Montague.

According to announcement an entertainment and pic social was held by the members of Keefe Lodge, I. O. G. T., in the hall at Lower Montague on Friday, the 25th. The evening being fine, and the roads in a fairly good condition, the hall was filled to the vestibule and an enjoyable time was participated in by the vast audience. The time having arrived for the entertainment to commence, H. N. Thomas Anear took the chair, and after a few remarks suitable to the occasion, the following programme was successfully carried out, and judging by the evident enjoyment and enthusiasm of the audience the different numbers on the programme were much appreciated, especially the violin music.

At the close of the programme the sale of pies was conducted by A. C. Stewart.

Eq., who by some witty sayings induced the purchasers to dip deeply into their pockets and bring out the mighty dollar, together with the no less important copper.

The members of the Lodge desire, through the press, to sincerely thank the kind friends who took part in the entertainment, also those who kindly furnished pies and the liberal purchasers thereof for their assistance and support on the occasion, and in this relation we extend our hearty thanks to the kind friends of Montague Bridge, Georgetown, New Perth, etc., who so ably assisted in making the social a success.
