

Stevenson Blasts Story Describing Views On Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, has demanded a magazine article which he said "grossly misrepresented my views" on Cuba. Stevenson referred to an article in the Saturday Evening Post, titled "Time of Crisis" and written by Stewart Alsop and Charles Bartlett.

The article says Stevenson disagreed with President Kennedy on the Cuban blockade and "preferred political negotiation to the alternative of military action."

The article carries a picture of Stevenson with a caption saying "Stevenson was strong during the UN debate, but inside the White House the hard-liners thought he was soft."

Facing newswires and television cameras at the state department, Stevenson is quoted as saying "I am not a Communist and I am not a Communist sympathizer. I am a French Canadian and I am a French Canadian."

Stevenson said Monday:

"The facts are that I never proposed the trade of bases, I favored the blockade, and was emphatically in favor of using the peace-keeping machinery of the United Nations and of the Organization of American States."

"This, Stevenson stressed, was the policy of the president."

Bartlett is a close personal friend of Kennedy and introduced Kennedy to Jacqueline Bouvier, now Mrs. Kennedy.

White House sources said Bartlett had never taken advantage of his friendship with Kennedy to report inside information.

After Stevenson's statement, Clay Blair Jr., editorial director of the magazine issued a statement saying Alsop and Bartlett "were told by a number of reliable sources of high position in the government that Ambassador Stevenson cleared concessions to the Soviets far beyond what any member of the executive committee of national security council and other top administration advisers were prepared to consider."

Students Run Afoul Of Law In Ottawa Demonstration

OTTAWA (CP) — About 300 French-speaking students of the University of Ottawa ran afoul of city police, the RCMP and firemen Wednesday when they burned CNR President Gordon in effigy at the base of the national war memorial.

Traffic in the heart of the capital was at a virtual standstill for half an hour at midday as the students staged their demonstration in protest against what they called injustice against French-Canadians, and particularly against Mr. Gordon's public statements.

Before the Commons railway committee late last month Mr. Gordon said one of the 28 top officials of the publicly-owned railway are French-Canadians because there was a shortage of qualified applications for a number of reasons.

Police said the students broke the law by burning an object on the street and by invading the base of the memorial.

"This is a mockery of the war memorial," a policeman said.

MEET DIEP

Three student representatives met Mr. Diefenbaker for 20 minutes in his office in the Parliament building. They requested in their brief that nine French-Canadians be appointed immediately to the CNR's management.

The students told reporters later that the prime minister promised he would relay their demands to Mr. Gordon and to the federal cabinet.

The representatives were Claude Lemelin of Quebec City, an economics student; Jean Gobeil and Jean-Pierre Bousquet, both of Ottawa, studying political science and history at the university.

Detailed Plans Announced For Project At Louisburg

LOUISBURG, N.S. (CP) — Details of the federal government plan for partial restoration of the 18th century French fortress of Louisbourg on Nova Scotia's Cape Breton Island were announced here by the Louisbourg restoration committee.

The restoration plan involving an expenditure of $12,000,000 over a 12-year period, was described in detail at a meeting attended by Cape Breton Island chambers of commerce and other public groups.

The committee said that two-thirds of the work will be completed by 1967, Canada's 100th birthday. Louisbourg was razed by the British after victory over the French.

The restoration project will affect a greater area than the 57 acres comprising the site of the former French fortified town. A 20-square-mile area extending both northeast and southwest of the town of Louisbourg will be involved. Thus, other harbor installations used all points at which landings were made, engagements fought and sieges erected during the 1745-1758 period will be included in the restoration.

RECONSTRUCT INTERIOR

Within the fortress of Louisbourg, there will be total reconstruction of the King's Bastion, the Chateau St. Louis, the 360-foot three-story building which included the governor's residence, the chapel, officers' quarters and barracks. These two structures and the elaborate Dauphin Gate also to be reconstructed.

Quebec Police Resign Posts

MONTREAL (CP) — A large percentage of Quebec Provincial Police members have resigned rather than be transferred out of their home areas. Assistant Director J. T. Desreux said here.

He said the police force is being reorganized to improve efficiency and prevent local political influence.

About 25 to 35 per cent of the 150 men offered new postings so far quit rather than take them, he said. A total of 600 of the total GPP force of 1,400 are to be shifted around by the time the current reorganization is finished.

"The men who have resigned obviously lack interest in the service," Mr. Desreux said. "Despite the resignations, the transfers will continue progressively until the scheme is completed."

Driving Permits Changed In P.Q.

QUEBEC (CP) — Driving permits in Quebec will be changed to expire next Feb. 28, will be valid another three months until Feb. 28, and will be valid for one year.

The department also advised car-owners that when they acquire new 1963 licence plates by Feb. 28, they must keep them for a year.

"Licence plates will continue to be valid only one year."

Starting in 1963, however, a car owner who trades his car for a new one will simply transfer the plates to the new car and advise the Quebec motor vehicle bureau of the change.

Until now, new plates had to be obtained.

Also, if a car-owner sells his car and does not buy a new one, he must remove the plates and hand them to the bureau.

Concession Offered By ECM States

BRUSSELS (AP) — Five of the six Common Market countries have shown readiness to offer Britain a small concession in the agricultural field by allowing producer subsidies for pork and eggs in case of "major difficulties."

Following a meeting of the council of foreign and agriculture ministers, sources said France has agreed to her previous demand that all subsidies to producers be ended immediately on Britain's entry into the Common Market.

The other five argued that, as long as Britain accepted the Common Market's request to eliminate producers' subsidies—to be replaced in some cases by consumers subsidies for a short period—the Common Market should be "fair" by indicating to Britain that the six are willing to help in the event of "major difficulties."
