CITY TREES - Continued from page 1. It is planned to cut down only those trees which are definitely known to be dead. To this end Mr. Gaudet will use an increment borer, which leaves no scar, to determine from his examination of the tree heart whether or not it is dead. However, during this winter only trees which are felt to be a menace to life and property will be dealt with. On a long suggested long-range plan the committee feel that where a tree is removed another should be planted to replace it and this will be one of the projects it will pursue. However, property owners are reassured by the knowledge that no trees on private property will be touched without the consent of the owner. But it is hoped that all citizens will give the fullest cooperation. If any should feel that the crews on duty are not being fair they have only to call the chairman of the committee who will personally visit them and endeavour to explain what is being attempted. The new venture is, in essence, a part of community planning.

HEAVY ANNUAL DAMAGE - The two main service companies involved have found through the years that the annual damage to each has run into several thousand dollars in equipment and much more than that in inconvenience and annoyance to the users of their services. It is for this reason that they are contributing without charge the services of their crews trained in cutting and trimming trees. The committee has emphasized that no attempt will be made to go against the wishes of property owners in the matter of either cutting or trimming trees. But they hope that for their own benefit all will co-operate in the work that is necessary. Members pointed out that there was considerable danger from trees which should be cut down and stated that during a heavy storm they might be blown in such a manner as to either seriously damage pedestrians or smash through the homes of the property owners. It is felt that if trees are dead they must be cut down for safety reasons. It is believed that there are approximately 50 trees in the city which should be cut down, a fact which would eliminate the fear of wholesale cutting. However, there are a great many trees on practically every street in the city which need trimming. Another important factor is the fact that the entire operation of the committee will be done at no expense to the taxpayer.

Review of Weather Bureau Statistics

January, 1923, showed the lowest daily temperature ever recorded in the 44 year history of the weather bureau at Charlottetown. Experimental Station when the thermometer dropped to 23 below. This was followed closely by February in the years 1914, 1922 and 1934 when the low was 21 degrees below zero. The highest daily temperature ever marked up there was 98 in 1953 during August. The warmest month on record was July, 1947 when the mean temperature was 71.8 degrees. This was closely approached by the 70.3 degrees of August 1937. The coldest month was February, 1923 when the average during the entire month was only 6.7 degrees. Not far behind was January, 1920 with 8.1 degrees. It is of note that last January lottetown, with a mean temperature of 25.7 degrees set a new high record. Over the same 44 year period the month of May 1920 had the greatest amount of sunshine with 312.4 hours compared to the low mark set by December 1950 when there were only 27.9 hours. July, 1937 was another sunny month with Old Sol beaming for 306.8 hours. Nearly everyone is interested in precipitation, the amount of snow and rain which falls. September 1942 was the wettest month on record with 12.40 inches of fall. The next wettest was October 1939 with 8.85 inches. By comparison the driest month was May 1911 when there was only .32 inches of moisture. Other dry months included February 1923 with only .53 inches, but that was also the coldest month on record. There were 54.55 inches of precipitation in 1941, the heaviest yearly amount on record. The driest year was 1911 when only 31.8 inches was marked. The formula for converting snow to rain for precipitation determining purposes is that 10 inches of snow equals one inch of rain.

ISLAND ODDS AND ENDS - Some day this week something definite will be known about the starting date for the construction of the new T. Eaton building on Kent Street. The work will take quite a few men off the unemployment list in Charlottetown, and the job will last for some months. Unless the weather makes working conditions impossible, it seems to be the intention of the company to go ahead with the project without delay. It is understood that residents of Charlottetown will be given preference when the work crew is hired. All things were new yesterday under the evenly laid carpet of fine snow. The drabness of leafless trees and winter-killed grass, of muddy streets and of weather beaten buildings disappeared under an overnight beauty treatment. Victoria Park, for the day at least was eye-filling, a ferryland from a Christmas card. One of Parkdale's older residents is also one of Charlottetown's most enthusiastic hockey fans, "Charlie" Snow. Charlie, however, has been troubled a bit with rheumatism this winter and has not been able to attend any of the games. But although in his own words he is "shutting the door on eighty-one," he plans to show up at the Forum before the hockey schedule runs out. Few people who are not acquainted with him would guess that he is "closing the door on eighty-one."

It looks very much as though the Fish and Game Association and all those intent on observing the fish and game regulations of the Province are fighting a losing battle. Reports from many parts of the island make it all too plain that jigging, netting and spearing of trout, and the out of season shooting of game is common. It makes the problem of enforcement no easier when so many people are unconcerned about these infractions of the law, and as often as not turn a blind eye on the guilty. The organization of a Trades and Labor Council in this city a few days ago is in step with the times. A gentleman who has had much to do with labor, Mr. Ben-jamin Fairless, chairman of the Board of United States Steel made this observation a short time ago: "To live better we must produce more, but production is the result of team work, not of conflict. We shall achieve our fullest measure of production, only when we begin to understand that the interests of worker and owner are not antagonistic but identical—that un-American system of competitive enterprise it is impossible over a period of time for one to prosper while the other suffers."

The Board voted to continue issuing scholarships to leaders to attend Leadership Training Camp at Westegusque, near Chipman, N. B. A committee was appointed to select leaders to whom scholarships will be awarded. Mrs. J. R. Interest in Art On Upswing In Maritimes

Art interest throughout the Maritimes is showing a marked increase, reported Leroy Zwicker, Halifax, president of the Maritime Art Association on Saturday at the conclusion of a mid-year executive meeting held at the Fort Cumberland Hotel in Amherst. The major business under consideration was the provision of a wider programme selection for the thirty member groups which represent many centres of the three provinces. An effort will be made to secure a larger number of exhibitions, lectures and films by the group itself independent of the regular contribution of the national gallery. Further discussion was held on the division of the Maritime regional exhibits into two groups, a means of accommodating the larger number of entries. The first of these, the work of non-professional artists, is at present in circulation. Next year's will be the work of Maritime artists in the art profession as a means of livelihood. Other items to come up were the making of colour slides of outstanding handicrafts in the Maritimes, to be proceeded with at once, an investigation into the costs of silk screen reproduction of select Maritime art and further colour slide records of Maritime paintings. Officers of the M. A. A. in attendance in addition to Mr. Zwicker were provincial vice-presidents Vic Runtz of Charlottetown and Sinclair Healy of Fredericton, Secretary Charles H. Foss, Saint John, Exhibition Director Mrs. F. J. Cheesman, also Saint John, and Handicrafts Director, Prof. Ellis Rouleau of Mount Allison, Sackville.

DANCE - Tuesday, January 12 AT ROLLAWAY Sponsored by Co-eds St. Dunstan's University Music by the Downtowners Dancing 9-12 Adm. 50c

Death Yesterday - Continued from page 1. At the early age of 29. Following his discharge after the First World War, Major Smith was employed with the Island Telephone Company until he was appointed to the position of Clerk of the City Police Court by the City Council in June, 1929, a position he held until recently although he was not active in that capacity since June, 1952, due to ill health. An ardent sports follower, the late Major Smith, better known by his close associates as "Bungay", did much to further the sporting interests in this Province. A former president and long standing member of the Charlottetown Abegweit Amateur Athletic Association, a past secretary of the P. E. I. Rifle Association and many times a member of that Association's team entry in Dominion rifle competition at Ottawa, he always had time to help others who wanted to better themselves in sporting endeavour. His ability as an official starter in track and field, speed skating events, etc. are known all over the Maritimes, and took official part in almost every major sporting event of that nature held in this City for the past decade or more. Although ill health forced him to retire actively during the past couple of years he still maintained his keen interest in sport and was always ready to give of his knowledge and experience. The late Major Smith was a devout Anglican and member of St. Peter's Cathedral congregation ever since he sang in the choir as a boy and later as a man. A member of the Vestry, he also served his term as Property Warden and President of the St. Peter's Laymen's Association. He leaves to mourn his wife, the former Helen (Unsworth) Vaughan (Mrs. G. R. Beedie) Vancouver, B.C., two sons, Donald, City, and Ronald at home, two sisters, Florence (Mrs. L. I. Moore), Mary (Mrs. John MacMillan) both of Toronto, and one brother, Frederick, City. The remains will be resting at St. Peter's Cathedral from Monday morning until Tuesday when the funeral will take place at two o'clock. The iguana, a tropical lizard, has been found as far north as British Columbia and south to Patagonia.
