Favorites Are Downed; Stunning Upsets Continue

By JIM CRERAR

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Every favorite in the field fell by the wayside in a wave of upsets in the Canadian women's open golf championship Thursday.

It started when Mary Gay of Kitchener sank a 100-foot approach shot to clinc a 1-up victory over Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont., in the second round.

By the time the third round was over, Miss Gay, Canadian women's close champion Gail Harvey of Toronto and Canadian junior champion Sandra Post of Milton, Ont., had been eliminated by lesser lights.

The third-round surprises began with Miss Gay's 2-up loss to 22-year-old Joann Riddell of Montreal and continued when Jocelyn Bourassa, an 18-year-old student fresh out of high school in Trois-Rivieres, Que., defeated Miss Harvey 2 and 1.

CAP UPSETS

Capping the upsets was Miss Post's 2 and 1 loss to 22-year-old Carolyn McLure of Saskatoon.

Miss Gay went two holes up against Miss Riddell after the second, but the Montreal golfer, a department-store supervisor on a two-week vacation to compete in the tournament, pulled even by the fourth hole and held a two-hole advantage at the turn.

Miss Riddell won the 10th hole, lost the 11th, won the 12th with a birdie-two, won the 13th with a par to square the match again and halved the next three holes. She wrapped it up with a par three on the 17th after Miss Gay was short of the green with her tee shot and took a four.

Miss McLure lost the first two holes but pulled even on the fifth and moved ahead by winning the ninth.

Miss Post, a 17-year-old high school student, squared the match on the 11th but Miss McLure won the 13th and 15th holes to clinch the victory.

HAD BIGGEST DAY

Miss Bourassa, who described her two victories in Thursday's rounds as the biggest day of golf in her six-year career, lost the second hole but birdied the fourth with a three to pull even against Miss Harvey, who was playing with a sore left thumb where she had pulled tendons earlier this week.

Miss Bourassa, the 1963 Quebec senior women's champion and Quebec junior winner for the last three years in sucession, lost the fifth, but won the sixth and took the seventh hole with a birdie-four.

She went two up by taking the ninth and birdied the par-four 10th to go three holes up. She lost the 11th, won the 13th, lost the 14th and halved the rest of the holes through the 17th.

Amateur On Saturday; Rose Bowl Here Sun.

The first eighteen holes of the Island Amateur Golf Championships will be played at the Summerside Golf Club tomorrow, Saturday August 7th.

This will be the first time the amateur is played on the renovated Summerside course. The layout has been extended to 18 holes from the original nine The second 18 holes will be played at the Belvedere Club on Saturday, Aug. 14th.

This year's entry is expected to top the hundred mark.

The defending champion is Merlin MacKenzie and he will be back this year to defend his title.

Summerside will be well represented this year with golfers who could win the Island crown. Heading the western threat will be Hank Siefred, Bob Reardon and Vance Harris.

On Sunday, Aug. 8th, sixteen local golfers will do battle with the same number from Dartmouth, N.S. in the Rose Bowl competition.

This match consists of two-ball foursomes in the morning and single matches in the afternoon. The winner is decided on a point system. This trophy has been held by the Dartmouth Club for several years. The local crew are quite sure it will be staying in Charlottetown after Sunday's matches.

DRAGGED DOWN

Norm Rauhaus, Winnipeg Blue Bomber halfback, was caught from behind by Ron Morris of the British Columbia Lions Wednesday in a Western Football Conference game in Winnipeg. It was in vain, however, as Bombers continued to move downfield and scored a touchdown on the same series in the first quarter. (CP Wirephoto)

Greenbriars' Eloise Wick Captures Free-For-All

Eloise Wick, the brown pacing mare owned by the Greenbriar farms and handled by Dave Wisener gave racing patrons a happy surprise last evening as she captured the lions share of the featured free-for-all at the Charlottetown Driving Park with a summary of 2-1.

In the first of the two dashes, race five, Miss Kemble took the lead followed by Eloise Wick, Dominion Byrd, Donna Way and Hurrah in that order. As the field hit the three eighths pole Hurrah surged from the back of the pack and was second as the field paced past the stands for the first time. At the ⅝s pole Hurrah broke. As they came around the final turn D. Hill up on Dominion Byrd pulled his horse wide and just beat Eloise Wick to the wire in a time of 2:06.1. This ties the fastest time paced at the driving park so far this year.

The eighth dash was undoubtedly the most thrilling of the night. Eloise Wick, leaving from number two spot led for the first ¾ of the race. Wisener wisely held his horse on the rail as the field rounded the final turn and as they started home it appeared as if the mare had the race sewed up. However Hurrah came from the back of the field four wide on the outside and both Miss Kemble and Dominion Byrd gave valiant finishing bursts. All four were nose to nose about 20 yards from the finish line and it took a photo to figure out 'which nag won wat'. Hurrah placed second in the race and Miss Kemble third.

Mary Leah won both ends of the invitational trot on last night's card (2:14 and 2:10.2), equalling her record and Billy Rice nabbed both the first and fourth dashes. Single winners were Mister Annway (2:14.3, a new record) Ellen Joyce (2:11) and Ohio's Orphan (2:11.4, a new record). HUNTERS' CORNER

Water Shortage Is Noticeable

This columnist has been tramping over this Island Gem of ours for more years than I care to enumerate but . . . never before have I witnessed a summer so dry and hot. Many streams have shrunk to mere driblets, except in an area where water has been held in captivity by dams or a series of dams. If it had not been for the heavy snow fall last winter, that covered and protected the ground from freezing, drought conditions would have been pretty grim at the moment. There were no freshets this spring rushing seaward in flood conditions . . . every drop was held in the soil. It's a blessing that there is a higher power than mere man governing this universe.

One evening this week, as the shades of night were beginning to lower, I stood on the Grove Pine Bridge that spans the Big Brook in the Fortune area. Not a sign of trout breaking or of anglers trying their luck. I walked to the edge of several noted trout pools and the water remained placid and unruffled. I have done so in years past and, especially if I had approached heavy footed, in a matter of seconds the 'roil' made by disturbed trout would boil to the surface like a miniature gyser. The trout were not there as they do not like tepid, slow flowing water.

In my minds eye I could visualize the year when a barrier was strung across the Big Brook at Grove Pine and the incoming trout, headed for the spawning beds upstream in the Black Marsh area were backed up like an incoming tide It was the 'Brain Child' of the Fisheries Department that the trout would be 'milked' and the spawn deposited in other streams and trouting spots. Wellington Keefe and Peter Alex MacDonald were the trout guardians. It wasn't safe to put one's hand in the water. Itried it once and a big trout in the three pound bracket came within an ace of taking off the end of one finger. It was years before the Big Brook recovered from this farcial experiment.

Thirty odd years ago the beaver built a huge dam and flooded the Black Marsh area. It was then an expanse of willow, poplar and alder . . . food that is dear to a beaver's heart. After an approximate three or four years sojourn there the food supply was exhausted and they moved out. The beaver meadow was reclaimed by nature and once again was sporting food dear to a beaver's heart so . . . this summer they are back again and have built a dam, free gratis, that would cost our engines an approximate eight hundred or one thousand dollars to duplicate.

The dam built in the thirties at the Black Marsh ruined some top trout holes and it is feared that the present one will not improve trout angling in this sector.

The dam could be breached and the water would run out to sea via the Fortune River but . . . those natural engineers would persist in rebuilding it. About the only thing that could deter them would be Winter's frosts. As I stood on the bridge, while the shades of night dropped swiftly, I could visualize my brother, the late J. D. Jenkins, battling it out with a huge six pounder in the pool below the bridge. I could also see his grand-son Paul, a pint sized midget not much heavier than the trout, in the water up to his armpits trying to help his Gramps in his landing action. J.D. won the battle by a mere whisker. I thought to myself at the time that miracles occur even in this present age . . . and still do.

Polio Victim In Rifle Ch'ship

By PETER McNAUGHTON

CONNAUGHT RANGES, Ont. (CP) — Bill Atton has always loved sports. Paralysis from the waist down isn't stopping him from participating.

Atton, a polio victim, is one of about 550 marksmen competing in the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association championships —and the only one who has to get to the firing line in a wheelchair.

Atton, who lives about 20 miles from Halifax was a petty officer in the navy when the disease struck in 1955.

He spent the next two years in hospital and then, his career in the navy blocked, decided to take up law — not a remarkable decision except for the fact that he had a wife and eight children to feed.

"Starting off with just a Grade 10 education to go through for a law degree was sort of rough," the cheerful 39-year-old shooter said in an interview Thursday.

GOT CO-OPERATION

"But the department of veterans' affairs was readily good to me. Supported me and my family, you might say. I've got a firnedly banker, too."

Atton, who was born and lived for 16 years in Cutknife, Sask., a town northwest of North Battleford, began practising law shortly after graduating from Dalhousie Law School in 1962. Within a year he was asked to do a five - month stint as acting Crown prosecutor for Halifax.

He is president of the Nova Scotia Rifle Association.

When he takes to the firing line Atton, who played end for the Shearwater Flyers football team and boxed and ran the half-mile while he was in the navy, doesn't ask for any favors. He insists on getting down unaided from his wheelchair and hauling himself over the ground to his shooting position.

Although his scores have been below average, Atton never uses his handicap as an excuse.

"I know lots of handicapped people who relegate themselves to the background. But that's no way to live. The more I do the better I feel.

"Last year we went hunting and got a moose I go on one of those little Penguin land cars."

SPORTS FRONT

Dodgers Stay In First Place

By PIUS CALLAGHAN

LOS ANGELES Dodgers are still in front of the National League pack by a narrow margin but the fact that they are frontrunners is one of the big surprises of the season.

Mind you, there were several experts who figured that the Dodgers had a chance in 1965 but when they figured that way they were counting on a healthy Tommy Davis. They didn't expect Tommy was going to be sidelined for the greater part of the season, thus depriving the Los Angeles gang of their greatest power.

But Tommy was lost and the Dodgers refused to fold. They indeed have been the hitless wonders, winning games on three, four and five hits. Those folks who were always yelling for Walter Alston's scalp hardly know what to say. The quiet-mannered skipper of the Los Angeles outfit appears to be making the right moves at the right time. He seems to be getting the utmost out of a pitching staff which has two greats in Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale but nothing sensational back of that. Claude Osteen, acquired from Washington in the deal that sent big Frank Howard to the Nats, has been pitching good ball but the Dodgers haven't been giving him much support with their bats.

WE AREN'T going out on any limb yet and call the Dodgers to grab that National League pennant. Truthfully we'd like to see them do it so as we could watch Koufax and Drysdale in another world series. In 1963 they sure looked impressive. If you're doubtful about that, then the New York Yankees who fell four straight will varify it.

However, it's a long haul from here to the end of that 162-game schedule and Dodgers could easily find several clubs passing them. The Cincinnati Reds, Milwaukee Braves and San Francisco Giants are right in the thick of things and are world series ambitious. We aren't figuring last year's champons, St. Louis Cardinals, to do any repeat. Their admirers will tell you about their great surge in the late stages of the 1964 campaign but we aren't expecting any recurrence.

Manager Of The Year

BY NOW the wise ones who pick the Manager-of-the-year must be giving serious consideration to naming Mr. Alston. Any guy who can keep this type of ball club up there among the leaders deserves at least honorable mention. If Alston ever reined his charges home a winner in 1965, they couldn't keep the honor from the big guy.

The LA skipper was never the noisy type. He didn't provide sportswriters with much color copy. Many of his critics felt he didn't belong in the big leagues. However, the Dodgers' management went along with him despite the cries to chop him down. Many names were mentioned as his successor over the years but old Wally still hung around, guiding the destinies of his players.

His Big Moments

WHEN the Dodgers moved from Brooklyn, Alston came along. He had given Flatbush a world crown in 1955 when Johnny Podres blanked the Bombers 2-0 in that seventh game. He gave Los Angeles its first crown in 1959 beating the Chicago White Sox in six games. In 1963 his Dodgers humiliated their former tormentors in a speedy four games.

Other clubs have made many manager changes through the last few years. Alston was mentioned as getting the axe on at least a dozen occasions but he's still the boss of the LA dugout. He' not a Casey Stengel or a Leo Durocher. Yet he seems to have a fairly good knack of getting a job done.

Undoubtedly Alston would dearly love to get another crack at a world series. It's old stuff for him now but no manager ever tires of it. If the Braves, Giants and Reds co-operate, he could bring Los Angeles another championship.

If he does, he will not find the New York Yankees facing him this time.

Familiar Faces Get Into Finals

By PETER McNAUGHTON

CONNAUGHT RANGES, Ont. (CP)—Familiar faces are creeping more and more into the limelight at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association championships as shooters from across the country battle the weather, the pressure and each other for Bisley team places.

Gerry Ouellette, who teaches high school in Ottawa, won the first of two main matches Thursday as the wind-swept defence department range west of Ottawa.

The stocky former Windsor resident needs no introduction in shooting circles, having won just about every top prize available including an Olympic Gold Medal, the coveted Queen's Prize at the Commonwealth championships at Bisley, England, and a world shooting title at Caracas Venezuela.

MAKE PERFECT SCORE

Ouellette scored a remarkable 105 in the Letson match—perfect for the 21-round event in which shooters fire from 200 500 and 600 yards.

"Close behind at 104 were three more familiar figures: Dick Hampton of Alliston, Ont., Bill Brown of Virden, Man., and Gunnar Westling of New Westminster, B.C.

All four top shots have represented Canada at Bisley more than once, and in 1960 they were there together.

Two other competitors had 103. They were Ron Ferris of Saint John, N.B., and C. V. (Chels) Heron of Moose Jaw, Sask.

Patricia Burch became the first woman to crack the top 10 in a major match this year. The 23-year-old brunette who works as a secretary in her hometown of Victoria, placed seventh with a score of 102

HALIFAX CADET WINS

Winner of the second of the day's two major matches, the City of Ottawa match fired from 200 and 900 yards, was Ralph Grant, a sea cadet who has packed a lot of experience into his 18 years.

The strapping, dark - haired cadet scored 98 of a possible 100 in the match to give Halifax area shooters a monopoly on the long-distance events—an oddity in view of the fact that the Nova Scotia marksmen have no practice range longer than 600 yards.

Grant, who won the Gooding junior title here three days ago, was runner-up in 1963 in the prestigious Governor - General's match won that year by Ken Besteck of Winnipeg.

Second to Grant in the Ottawa match was Jack Marshall of New Glasgow, N.S. Earlier in the week, Norm Moseley, a neighbor of Grant's, won the Gatineau match fired from 1,000 yards, and two days ago Howie Oliver of Digby, N.S., won the Alexander of Tunis match fired from 900 yards.

Pressure will continue to mount today as the shooters Connaught and the Presidents matches which both count toward the Bisley aggregate and form the second stage of the Governor General's match. The Letson was the first stage.

Third stage is to be fired Saturday, after which the Bisley list will be announced.
