HEROIC LIFE SAVERS.

An Entire Crew, With One Exception, Lost To An Attempted Rescue.

In the series of "Heroes of Peace" there is an article in The Century on "Heroes of the Life Saving Service," by Gustav Kobbe. Mr. Kobbe says: District Superintendent Jerome G. Kiah, with headquarters at Sand Beach, Mich., is one of the heroes of the life saving service. He holds the gold medal, the highest award the United States government can bestow for heroism in saving life. His name is associated with what was both one of the most daring attempts at rescue and one of the greatest tragedies of the service—a tragedy which wiped out an entire crew with the exception of this sole survivor.

Mr. Kiah was at the time keeper of the Point aux Barques life saving station on Lake Huron. A vessel struck too far out to be reached with the shot and line. The peril of attempting a rescue with the surfboat was only too apparent, but Keeper Kiah mustered his men and made the launch. For awhile their strength and skill enabled them to surmount or push through the tumultuous seas, but, once in the open lake beyond the shoals, where the storm was free to riot at will, the real danger began. It was a test beyond human powers. The keeper remembers that twice the boat capsized and was righted. After that he has a vague recollection of the boat capsizing and righting herself several times, and of the crew clinging to it until, one by one, the surfmen, perishing of cold, let go their hold and vanished beneath the waves. He has a dim remembrance of the boat, with himself clinging to it, grating over the shoal, and then being flung up on shore.

He was found by two men, standing, with one hand on the root of a fallen tree, steadying himself with a lath in the other and swaying as if walking, but not stirring his feet—a dazed, tottering wreck of his former self, murmuring in an incoherent way:

"Poor boys! Poor boys! They are all gone—all gone!" Temporarily shattered in mind and body, he was obliged to resign from the service. He was long in recovering, but finally it was possible practically to reward his bravery with the appointment to his present position.

Michigan's "Jug Act."

"The laws that are passed by some of our state legislatures are absurd and puerile in the extreme," said Mr. C. L. Milbous. "In Michigan there is a statute known in the cities as the 'jug act,' under the sweeping provisions of which an officious policeman can bring almost anybody before the local courts. It mixes up all sorts of offenses in a way that would be ludicrous if it were not harmful. A man, for instance, who threatens to leave his wife and children is, by the act, a disorderly person and subject to arrest; so also is an innocent exhibitor of a Punch and Judy show, or a rope or wire dance performer, or the giver of a drink to a friend who has already had perhaps a few smiles too many.

"The trouble with a law like this, which the supreme court of the state has declared constitutional, is that it may easily become an instrument of persecution. It may be employed as a dragnet to entmesh respectable citizens who thoughtlessly violate some of its provisions. Domestic infelicity might cause a man while in bad humor to threaten to abandon his home, though he really cherishes no such purpose. My theory is that legislation intended to regulate the morals of a people is out of place in the closing years of the nineteenth century."—Washington Post.

An Agreeable Arrangement.

When a certain general was camping on the lower Mississippi, his negro boy, Harry, was one day asked by a friend whether the general was not terribly annoyed by mosquitoes. "No, sah!" said Harry. "In the evening Mars George is so 'toxicated he don't mind the skeeters, and in the mornin' the skeeters is so 'toxicated they don't mind Mars George.'"—San Francisco Argonaut.

Made Sure It Was Used.

An old farmer and his wife, noted for their rigidity, had a custom of allowing the servant only one match to light the fire with each morning.

One morning the match failed to kindle, so the servant went to their bedroom door and asked for another one.

A whispered consultation was held between the two; then audibly the wife said:

"Will you risk her wi' anither one, John?"

"I doot we'll hae tae risk her, Janet," replied John, "but be sure an seek a sicht o' the ane she got last nicht."—London Answers.

Sympathetic.

"Do you suppose Mrs. Manyed really loves her lawyer admirer?"

"In a way, yes. You see, he secured all her divorces for her, and he's a sort of a connecting link with the past."—Philadelphia North American.

Still They Tramp.

All but four states in the Union have tramp laws. England sends the tramp to the workhouse. France makes him do convict labor. Germany and Belgium put him on penal farms. But in all countries and in all states the tramp goes marching on.—Boston Globe.

WATCHES

THE watch trade has been rather fluctuating of late, first the price went up, after a long period of low prices, now the prices have dropped again, whether because of war or greater variety of production we cannot say, but the fact remains that you can buy from us a reliable timekeeper cheaper than ever before, in fact that there is no need to buy shoddy goods at all.

If you want a good and also the cheapest watch for the money, we recommend a good movement in a nickel case instead of a poor one in a fine looking colored case that will only wear a very short time.

Soliciting a share of your patronage, we remain, Yours respectfully,
