by an officer of H. M. Navy in the Bay Chaleur, who asked for his papers, etc. Captain Clark asked this officer if they (the Americans) were to be driven out of the Bay, and was told that so long as they kept three miles from the shore, they were perfectly safe. If this arrangement had been authoritively made, and was also applicable to the Bays of this Island, the change had been effected without our knowledge or consent. Mr. Heard then advised the people of this Colony to look at the question broadly and fairly. "If," said he, "you lose the opportunity now presented, you will never, probably, have a better opportunity to secure your rights, with regard to your own invaluable fisheries, than you have at present. If you say you will be content with a small compensation for the concessions in their favor which the Americans are so anxious to obtain, you will get but little therefor. It will be well, therefore, to put on a good face, and to drive as hard a bargain as you can with the Americans." One point, above all others, Mr. Heard regarded as of great value. It was better, he thought, to get customers to come here than to send away our own productions ourselves. If we can get them to come here, it will be better for us than any other mine of wealth outside the fisheries. Mr. Carvell told him recently that inquiries were being put to him daily, by persons in the States who had heard of our delightful climate, pure, bracing air, splendid agricultural country, etc., and who would flock by hundreds to our shores, and spend the hot summer months here, had we only suitable Hotel accommodation for them; and, addressing the many gentlemen farmers present who had "made their pile," Mr. H. endeavored to impress upon their minds that their responsibility did not terminate with their attendance upon such meetings as the present. He reminded them that a number of Charlottetown gentlemen had put their hands in their pockets, and liberally subscribed towards the erection of a suitable Hotel for the special accommodation of the strangers just alluded to, and whose visits could not fail largely to contribute to the general prosperity of our beautiful Island. "Let the farmers now see to it," said Mr. H., in concluding his very excellent, though, we fear, imperfectly reported address, "that they have the interests of P. E. Island at heart; let them come forward and take shares in the proposed Hotel, and they would, he undertook to say, get more interest for their money than many of them appeared to have any idea of."

The following Resolutions were unanimously passed at the meeting on Friday evening last:—

Whereas the subject of Reciprocal Free Trade between the United States of America and the British North American Colonies has been recently discussed at Portland, in the State of Maine, by a convention of delegates, representing the principal commercial interests of the said States and Colonies; and whereas there has been lately submitted to the United States Congress, by an influential member thereof, certain Resolutions, containing a proposition for the establishment of reciprocal Free Trade with Prince Edward Island, in certain productions of both countries, including fish, and the modification of the present regulations for granting licenses to American fishermen to fish on the shores of this Island, which resolutions are likely to be entertained with favorable consideration by the American Congress and Government; and whereas there appears to be an almost universal desire, as enunciated at the said Portland Convention, for the establishment of reciprocal Free Trade between the United States and the North American Colonies; and whereas the Treaty respecting Free Trade, and the extension of the Fishery rights entered into between Her Majesty the Queen and the United States of America on the 5th June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four, proved to be of great advantage to the people of this Colony:

Resolved therefore, That the re-establishment of Reciprocal Free Trade between the British North American Colonies, and the United States of America upon a similar, but more extended basis, with respect to enumerated articles, and also a similar extension of the Fishery rights, more especially if connected with the rights of registration and the coasting trade for our vessels in the United States, would be to the mutual advantage of both countries.

Resolved, That the conditions of extending to the fishermen of the United States the right of fishing within three miles of the shores of this Island, and the privilege of access to the ports and harbors thereof, ought to be such conditions as shall be prescribed and fixed by the Government and Legislature of this Colony, in all respects, so far as the same shall not be opposed to any existing constitutional principle of the Laws of the United Kingdom.

Resolved, That the Secretary of this meeting do furnish to the several members of the Legislature, representing Queen's County and Charlottetown, a copy of the Resolutions passed at this meeting, and respectfully request them to give the subject their cordial support in the Legislature, in order to obtain the object and wishes of this meeting, as understood by the said resolutions.

WINTER WHEAT.

We have much pleasure in transferring to our columns from the "Patriot" of Thursday last, the letter of the Hon. Daniel Davies, respecting Winter Wheat, grown by him. We feel satisfied, that as the experiment has proved successful, in a very short time our farmers will not only be able to supply their families with the staff of life, but will have flour to export, thereby keeping in circulation a large amount of money, which has heretofore been sent off the Island to enrich our neighbors. Mr. Davies and Mr. Beer, deserves the thanks of the community for the efforts put forth by them to introduce good Seed Wheat into the Island.

To the Editor of the Patriot.

Sir,—

Having heard that some Canadian farmers, settled at Tignish, had succeeded in growing some fine samples of winter wheat last year, and as it struck me that my fields were well adapted for its growth, I imported two varieties from Canada, which were sown in September last, with the following results:—

Four bushels of large grain, midge proof wheat, were sown on a piece of land—about two acres—well sheltered from west to east, and having a nice southern aspect. The land was in excellent condition. It had been sown down to grass after barley on the previous year. Upon viewing the field in June last year, I found it covered with daisies. These were mown down and burnt, the land salted to the extent of five bushels to the acre, and then plowed up. The seed wheat was sown about the 10th of September, the land having been previously top dressed with compost. The centre of the field is rather hollow, and ice formed on it after the heavy thaw in March last, which killed about one third of an acre of the wheat. With this exception it has turned out well. The wheat has been housed, and is estimated at 20 bushels to the acre.

The other field—about three and three quarter acres—was an old meadow, well sheltered, which had been broken up in September, 1866. It appeared to have been lately limed. This field was sown down with oats in the spring of 1867, and produced a fair crop with a large yield of straw. As soon as the oats were housed, the field was plowed up, top dressed with compost, and about the 15th September sown with eight bushels of white bald wheat. This field is rather level, and the lower part retains the water in some places after the water thaws. Wherever the ice formed on the field the wheat was killed. I estimate three quarters of an acre to have been so killed; the rest of the field has produced a luxuriant crop of wheat, which is now being reaped and is estimated at twenty to twenty-five bushels to the acre for the entire field. Many persons who have viewed both fields, consider the white bald wheat much the most productive, some ears producing sixty grains of well filled wheat. Apologizing for occupying so much of your space, but with matter which I hope may prove interesting to farmers.

I remain yours truly,

DANIEL DAVIES.

Carlton's Condition Powders

It is gratifying to observe the number of buildings in the course of erection or finish during the present summer. The Messrs. Davies have set an example of mercantile building and ornamentation that we would gladly see followed. The Roman Catholic Episcopal Palace will, when erected, be an ornament and an honor to the City, and render the memory of Bishop McIntyre dear not only to the descendants of his flock, but to all persons of taste and intelligence of whatever creed they may happen to be. The School-house in the course of erection will, like the Davies' building, greatly add to the beauty of Queen's Square. The Islander laments that so many buildings, and these lofty and large, are being composed of wood, and suggests that there should be a law to prevent persons from building of wooden materials. We would gladly see such a law in force, but we greatly doubt whether the time has as yet arrived for the adoption of a measure so stringent. There are various impediments in the way of such an enactment. First, the want of capital. A few successful merchants can, it is true, afford to build of brick without intrenching on the capital employed in trade, but they are not many. The greater number of those who wish to build, either for the purposes of trade or dwelling, are compelled to borrow, and so long as money commands from seven to ten per cent and upwards, it is the interest, or the supposed interest, of such persons to build of the cheapest material, added to which a number of those who hold the fee simple of desirable locations are unwilling to part with the permanent tenure, and prefer giving leases for a term of years of longer or shorter endurance, and often clogged with covenants and conditions that are unfavorable to the investing of large sums in building. Besides, few people like to lend money on a leasehold interest, and the man who attempts to raise money on a leasehold tenure is certain to pay more for the money borrowed than those who can give security upon a freehold with a good title. We are pleased, however, to find that many are adopting a style of building which, though the material is principally of wood, will have externally the appearance of stone, such as the store and warehouse lately erected by Owen Connolly, Esq., the front of which is boarded, lathed and plaistered and is to be stuccoed so as to resemble freestone. The same process is to be adopted in the range of four storey buildings belonging to Messrs Dunn, McKenna and Costello, in Queen Street.

The Islander recommends the City Fathers looking to have brick or stone buildings instead of wood. The Corporation has no power to interfere, and any application to the House of Assembly is useless. A proposition was made to allow the City Council to impose a tax upon the owners of wooden houses, for the purpose of raising a fund to be exclusively appropriated to the sustentation of the Fire Department, but, like every other measure for the benefit of the City, and placing it upon a par with other municipalities, it was rejected. Anything that has the appearance of taxation—particularly if the taxes are to be levied from those who can best afford to pay them—meets with no favor from the members of the Legislature. And yet we cannot but think that such a tax would be attended with great benefit. It would be, by making the Fire Department more efficient, operate as a partial insurance, at all events have a tendency to lower the rate of the premium of insurance. If, as the Islander asserts, the British and other Insurance Companies are withdrawing their agencies, because of so many houses in the City being constructed of ignitable material, it becomes the owners of wooden houses to be on the alert, and a moderate tax which would enable the Corporation to multiply tanks and reservoirs, as well as to have steam and other engines in all parts of the city, would go far to inducing Fire Insurance Companies to resume their risks, and at lower rates of premium. By exempting brick and stone houses from the tax, an encouragement would be given to making such edifices of these materials in preference to the more perishable and inflamable.

We wish, in common with a number of our fellow citizens, for some reliable information upon the discrepancy that exists between the postage on letters coming from the United States of America and that on letters sent from the Island to those States. Within a few months past the Post Office in the United States has allowed letters to be sent to the Island having stamps to the amount of six cents instead of ten cents as formerly. On these letters the Postmaster in Charlottetown demands six pence currency. Under what Law does the Postmaster justify this exaction? Formerly, when a letter came from the States to a person in Charlottetown with ten cents prepaid postage, the person receiving it had no more to pay. If the American Government choose to reduce the postage from ten to six cents, what is that to the Post Office here? Who bears the loss, the American or Colonial Post Office? Is the amount of postage divided between the Post Offices of the two countries, or does each keep its own? Is there no understanding or arrangement between the offices in each country? Is there any local law upon the subject, and what are its enactments respecting foreign postage? What is the rule respecting letters from France, Germany, or other foreign countries? Satisfactory answers to these questions will tend to remove from the minds of many the conviction that the conduct of the Post Office authorities is wholly unauthorized, and that the demand of full postage in addition to that paid in the States is a gross injustice.

THE RINDERPEST.

The Ottawa Times says the disease has broken out at Paris, Ontario. This intelligence has had the effect of causing the Government to issue an extra of the Official "Gazette," prohibiting the importation of horned cattle from the United States into any part of the Provinces of Ontario or Quebec. To give some idea of the nature of this disease, it is only necessary for us to state, that at Pittsburgh, Pa, out of one lot of 200 head of cattle 166 died in a few hours.

An Inquest was held by Dr. Beer, one of the Coroners for Queen's County, on Friday, the 21st inst., on view of the body of a young man named Hugh McEachern, (cooper) of Souris, belonging to the fishing schooner "Adino" found drowned in the dock between Peake's and Queen's Wharves. Verdict, "Found drowned." We understand the body of the unfortunate man was interred in the Catholic Cemetry on the same day.

The Alleghanians Coming!!—The Alleghanians, who appear here on Monday evening, August 31st, were very successful on their foreign tour. The Australian correspondent of the London Times says:—

"The delighted throngs who everywhere greet them, and the golden favors they receive, speak louder for the excellence of their entertainments than any encomiums of ours."

Summerside, August 18, 1868.—This morning shortly before 7 o'clock it was discovered that a small building, formerly used as an iron store by Colin McLennan, Esq., was on fire. It was latterly used by Mr. J. Grady as a place wherein to spin oakum, of which a large quantity was consumed in the fire. A large warehouse, the gable end of which was in close proximity to the scene of the origin of the fire, and which afforded the most effectual supply of combustibles, had the fiery element not been restrained, was saved only by the plucky and well directed efforts of the members of the Fire Department, aided by the co-operating agencies of the outsiders, all of whom showed a laudable spirit of obedience to the powers that be (however occasionally that same power may be exercised,) that ought to reduce the premiums of insurance in the good town of Summerside, much lower than the present rates. —Com. to Isl.

The American "Phrenological Journal. for September, we welcome to our sanctum. This work, edited by Samuel R. Wells, well known in this community by the able lectures delivered by him some few years ago on Phrenology, will fully repay the time expended in a careful perusal of it.

A Sea Serpent at the East Point.—A correspondent at Souris writes:—"Quite a sensation was caused last week amongst the boats of Chepstow by the appearance of a monster sea serpent. It appeared to be, as near as the fishermen could judge, 100 feet long. It made no attempt to molest the boats, but gave the men that saw it a great scare. It glided along quite leisurely, showing its head, which was a tremendous size. There have not been any catches of mackerel made on the South side as yet.—Her.

We observe that the Islander of yesterday states that all the Foreign Insurance Companies have withdrawn their agencies from this Island, with the exception of that represented by Mr. DeBlois. This is not strictly correct, for the Royal Insurance Company of Liverpool, G. B., we learn, is again prepared to take risks here, and parties wishing to insure may make application to William Full, Esq., who acts for that Company in this city.—Pat.

In thirteen fathoms of water off the East Point Reef, is to be seen, every day, the spar of a sunken vessel, supposed to be the schooner "Fashion" of Gloucester, Mass. The spar is broken off at the deck, reversing it, and in that shape it appears to us, a mark, as it were, to point out the last resting place of some poor fellows, as they slumber in "deaths cold embrace," deep beneath the waves of the merciless ocean. In twenty fathoms near her, lies another which would remain unobserved, no doubt, were it not that some French Fishermen, who frequent that spot annually to fish, came this July as usual, and in fishing there became fastened into something on the bottom, which caused them some trouble to get clear of, and did not succeed until they had cut away a good deal of their gear. They, however, drew several fathoms of the sunken vessel's rigging over the surface of the water. They report that, to all appearance, it was sound and in good condition, and would appear as if not long under water. An opinion prevails that those two vessels collided, and sank where they now lie on the bottom. The spot where the last of those wrecks lie, can yet be found, as those who discovered it took land marks, by which the spot could be pointed out if sought for.—Com.

When the Str. P. of Wales come to the Wharf, on Tuesday night, two men, on landing, carelessly walked over the wharf on the opposite side. Mr. Reilly, Tobacconist, of this town, being present, instantly sprang after them, seizing one, he swam with him to a vessel near by, caused him to lay hold of a rope hanging over the side, left him there, then went and rescued the other. There was quite a sea at the time; as the wind and tide were both high. Mr. Reilly's prompt activity, and manly exertions are worthy of the highest praise. We have been informed that these are not the only persons who are under obligation to him, as a means, by whom they were saved from a watery grave. All honor to such men.—S. J.

Sad Accident.—We understand that David Lang, formerly of Tryon, was yesterday on his way home, after an absence from the Island of about twenty-five years, and by some means or other met with an accident on the wharf at Point du Chene, which, sad to relate, severed his head from his body. We deeply sympathise with his bereaved friends.—Ib.

On Thursday, the 6th inst., Herbert Bell Esq., Alberton, launched a very handsome fishing schooner, called Jane Bell. She is built with a centre board, and for model and workmanship surpasses any of her predecessors. We wish her enterprising owner success.

Great harm and discomfort is caused by the use of purgatives which gripe and rack the system. "Parsons' Purgative Pills" are free from all impure matter, and are mild and health-giving in their operation.

At this season of the year, cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels, dysentery, diarrhœa, &c., are quite common, and should be checked at once. "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" is the best article that can be used in all such cases, and should be kept in every family.

London, Aug. 20.—Evening.

Advices from Rio Janerio are to July 31st. An attack on the Paraguayan fortress of Humaita took place on the 16th of July in the morning.

The combined Brazilian and Argentine forces under Marquis De Caxcais advanced to the assault in three columns numbering 16,000. At the same time a heavy fire was opened upon the fort from the fleet of iron clads and land batteries. After desperate and prolonged fighting at the foot of the entrenchment the allies retired without affecting a lodgment in the enemy's works. The reported loss of the Allies is 3,000 killed and wounded. Nothing is known of the loss of the Paraguayans; but as they fought most of the time under cover of their entrenchments, it is supposed that their losses were far less than the Allies. The allied force in Gran Chaco also advanced with the object of cutting off the communications of Lopez in the forest, but they found them defended by a large body of Paraguayans, protected by breastworks, after an obstinate engagement the Allies withdrew. The loss of the battle is not stated. The hope of the War party in Brazil rested upon the success of this enterprise, and its failure will give a great impetus to the peace movement.

Apprehensions are entertained that the recent attempted rising against the Turkish authority in Bulgaria will be renewed. The attention of the Austrian government has been called to this threatening state of affairs by the unusual demand for fire arms from the other side of the Danube, and orders have been issued prohibiting the exportation of arms or ammunition from Austrian territory into the Danubian Principalities.

Holloway's Pills.—Everybody's Wish.—One of the many causes of the eminent success of this medicine is the quiet, purifying effect it exerts over the circulation; it watches over the new blood forming from the food, invigorates the distribution of the mature blood, and casts out the old which has done its duty, and whose further presence becomes detremental. By taking Holloway's Pills, agreeably to their accompanying instructions, every person may attain the best permissable state of health without interfering materially with his usual habits, pleasures, or pursuits. The weak and nervous will find themselves invigorated by judicious doses of this medicine, and by steady and persevering attention may confidently hope for increased strength, greater comfort, and better health.

Herbert Bell, Esq., of Alberton, who is now in this city, reports that the boats at Skinner's Pond, Mininigash, and Nail Pond, met with splendid luck in the early part of this, and the end of last week. The fish are very large and fat, and the catch ranging from 500 to 2000 each boat per day. Jerome Pino, of Minnigash, fishing for Mr. John Matheson, with three hands, caught 2700 mackerel on Monday last,—being equal to about 15 barrels and worth £45.

Arrived at Montreal, 13th inst, Brig Athlete, of Georgetown, McDonald, Matanzas, cargo sugar and molasses.

The value (£3214) of the cargo of the Alhambra on Thursday, was larger than our whole exports to the United States in 1848. The eggs exported last year amounted to more than double our exports to that country twenty years ago.—Ib.
