Souris and Vicinity

Miss Lois Bushey returned recently from Montreal where she spent the winter.

Miss Anna Marie Mullins, St. Peter's visited relatives and friends in Souris last week.

Friends of Mr. William Power will regret to learn of his illness at his home in Little Harbour.

Miss Marina Malone, Charlottetown spent the Easter holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer MacDonald, Souris.

Friends of Mrs. Frank Keays will regret to learn that she is a patient in the Souris hospital. Her many friends wish her a speedy return to health.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrien MacInnis returned to their home in Souris last week after having spent the winter in Boston with relatives and friends.

The funeral of the late Benjamin Bushey, a highly respected resident of Souris and whose sudden death has been already recorded, took place on April 6, from his late residence to St. Albans cemetery.

Mr. McCallum, Brackley, claim adjuster of the P. E. I. Mutual Fire Insurance Co. paid a visit to Souris and vicinity on Wednesday in the interests of the Company.

Msgr. J. A. Murphy, Souris and Rev. George MacDonald, St. Margaret's left by plane on Monday for Antigonish, N. S. to attend the funeral of the late Archbishop Morrison.

The passengers of the Charlottetown-Souris train were subject to a two hour delay Tuesday forenoon when one of the trucks of a reefer car left the rails at Grant's Crossing between Harmony Junction and Souris. The train was powered by one of the new Diesel engines, which with the assistance of the section men placed the derailed truck back on the rails. No damage to the road bed was reported excepting the splintering of ties for a distance of fifty yards.

Soothe Your Throat! Help Prevent a Cold

If you are suffering from a miserable head-cold, try this: Sprinkle a few drops of Catarrh-o-zone into the inhaler and breathe in the soothing vapor of this fast working remedy. Catarrh-o-zone goes to work instantly; it spreads a thin film of healing antiseptics over the entire lining surfaces of the breathing organs. Mucous is loosened—air-passages are opened—discharges commence to dry up—the tendency to sneeze and cough is lessened. In an hour or two the worst of the cold may be over! Your druggist has Catarrh-o-zone, in 30c and 75c sizes.

letter and let husband or wife read it, or else drop it in a drawer and forget it, and leave it for any curious eye to peruse.

DON'T WRITE IN ANGER

And still another letter that should never be written is the one that is written in anger. All of us, when we are provoked or offended at something those we love have done, say things to them which we do not really mean. Even then our words hurt like the blows of a two-edged sword, but we are there to heal the wounds we have made with kisses, with caresses, with apologies, and to save our unkindness with some generosity. But what we write in anger is cold, hard, final, a bullet shot from a distance that pierces the heart and kills love before we can get to it to render any first aid, and undo the harm we have done.

Above all, the letter that never should be written is the dark-blue pessimistic letter that simply drips with woe. All of us have correspondents whose letters we dread to open because we know that they will flatten us out with depression and break down our morale completely.

Why, I do not know, but many mothers seem incapable of writing any other sort of letter than these tear-soaked missives to their children who are away from home. They begin with a jeremiad about how they miss dear John or Sally, and how lonely it is at home with all the children gone, and how the crops haven't been very good, or business has been bad at the store, and so on, and on, and if there is a pleasant thing that has happened in the community or if anybody is well and healthy, they never mention it.

And in reality there isn't a thing the matter with mother. She is happy and prosperous and glad her children are off, doing well in the world, and she never dreams that her wailing letters take the pep out of them, and that they have to nerve themselves to read them.

So there you are. And there is the problem of when and where and how to write, and whether it is better to be too handy with the pen, or to be afflicted with pen-paralysis.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.
