

Published every day morning except Sundays... Represented nationally by Thomson Newspaper Advertising Services Toronto, 423 University Ave.

Subscription rates: $11.00 per year by mail or rural routes and areas not serviced by carrier.

Not over 32c per copy. Member, 7c per single copy. Not over 7c per single copy.

Suggests Better Course

Mr. J.M. Macdonnell, distinguished MP for Toronto-Greenwood from 1949 to 1962 and Conservative Finance Minister, has entered the controversy over increased allowances for members of Parliament.

In the first place, Mr. Macdonnell says he "entirely repudiates" the statements so freely made that Parliament is a full-time job and should be paid accordingly.

For example, special allowance could be given for education of children, which is already given in certain cases to civil servants when on duty abroad.

Further, there might be meetings of standing committees during recess with special remuneration. Special allowance might also be made as in the United States for a research staff so that Members will not be wholly dependent on the Government.

"In these and other ways," says Mr. Macdonnell, "the present need, which is very real, could be taken care of and the creation of a flat indemnity so large that it is completed as a financial plum could be avoided."

Waterloo Recalled

A Brussels commentator recalls that at the Battle of Waterloo in 1815 the British broke Napoleon's army and ended the Napoleonic empire.

The question now is whether President de Gaulle will emerge in command of what Napoleon failed to consolidate, a continental economic system.

The five, notes this correspondent, are torn by conflicting pressures and interests. It is to their presumed economic advantage to stay in the market with France.

EDITORIAL NOTE

If it has been of no other benefit, notes an exchange, the unusually severe winter in Britain has enriched the language.

FEARLESS MIKE & DAUNTLESS DIF

OTTAWA REPORT by Patrick Nicholson

Royal Commissions And Their Cost

The deep-probing scrutiny of the work of our burgeoning and burdensome bureaucracy was by far the most costly Royal Commission of recent years.

Two earlier Diefenbaker commissions have proved to be good buy-ins for Canadians. The Board's Commission on Energy Policies cost $414,357.

Those Turkish Bases

Defense-minded Americans should think twice before they explode with comment on the planned withdrawal of Jupiter missile bases from Turkey and Italy.

There will be no withdrawal of the United States' position. There will simply be an exchange of a far better and up-to-date missile system, the Polaris, for the obsolete Jupiter.

Our Yesterday's

Twenty-five years ago February 1, 1938 Americans, Netherlands, Jan. 31 - Crown Princess Juliana gave birth today to a bilingual fair-haired daughter.

TEN YEARS AGO

Miss Ariene Hanning, 18, of Toronto, Ontario, is representative of the Canadian girls in training to attend the coronation. She will travel with other members of the Commonwealth Youth Tour.

Two recent commissions will be done on active professional boxes incorporated in new bills laid before parliament. These are the commissions which studied our railroad problems and our imported magazines.

Those Turkish Bases

Defense-minded Americans should think twice before they explode with comment on the planned withdrawal of Jupiter missile bases from Turkey and Italy.

Congo Still Has Problems

The apparent submission of President Tomba of Katanga province opens the way for the Congo to emerge as a single, federated nation.

Our Yesterday's

Twenty-five years ago February 1, 1938 Americans, Netherlands, Jan. 31 - Crown Princess Juliana gave birth today to a bilingual fair-haired daughter.

TEN YEARS AGO

Miss Ariene Hanning, 18, of Toronto, Ontario, is representative of the Canadian girls in training to attend the coronation. She will travel with other members of the Commonwealth Youth Tour.

Study Shows

Price Of Boxing

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen AN ENGLISH neurologist, Dr. John D. Spillane, wrote an article entitled "Five Boxers' brains reported in the British Medical Journal. All were former professional boxers and developed the same syndrome.

But this is only one part of the story. The nerves going to the bladder and bladder control are affected. Periodic bouts of headache, blurring of vision occur in which he cannot see the target.

Two recent commissions will be done on active professional boxes incorporated in new bills laid before parliament. These are the commissions which studied our railroad problems and our imported magazines.

Two earlier Diefenbaker commissions have proved to be good buy-ins for Canadians. The Board's Commission on Energy Policies cost $414,357.

Those Turkish Bases

Defense-minded Americans should think twice before they explode with comment on the planned withdrawal of Jupiter missile bases from Turkey and Italy.

Congo Still Has Problems

The apparent submission of President Tomba of Katanga province opens the way for the Congo to emerge as a single, federated nation.

Our Yesterday's

Twenty-five years ago February 1, 1938 Americans, Netherlands, Jan. 31 - Crown Princess Juliana gave birth today to a bilingual fair-haired daughter.

TEN YEARS AGO

Miss Ariene Hanning, 18, of Toronto, Ontario, is representative of the Canadian girls in training to attend the coronation. She will travel with other members of the Commonwealth Youth Tour.

NOTES BY THE WAY

Many African highways were originally laid out by elephants says a new U.S. article. Canadian highways are being built by the same method.

Taxes are like dogs. When the country is in a hot spot they bark tremendously. — Brandon Sun

Treaty Outcome Doubtful

Canada and other smaller powers may have to exert intensified pressure on the United States to end their nuclear test-ban treaty.

Amid various public expressions of optimism about the future of these private negotiations, a well-informed Western diplomat has expressed a pessimistic opinion in predicting the outcome of the Washington and New York talks.

The Russian and American negotiators are on the side of the U.S.—are reported still quarrelling about the number of on-site inspections of Soviet territory to make a treaty effective in Western eyes.

There seems to be little doubt that the U.S. will be willing to give ground on the number of so-called "black boxes" needed to monitor a factory as part of the automatic policing system. Russia has offered to accept a reduction of 17 years and the U.S. has specified no allowance for this.

The Loneliest Island

Even if home is covered with lava, there's no place like a Tristan da Cunha. Tristan, a volcanic fragment on the South Atlantic, was called the "loneliest island in the world."

In October, 1961, a Spaniard called the "loneliest island in the world." The 260 former residents left in 1961, leaving the island unstaffed by modern tensions.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

NOTES BY THE WAY

The importance of the Red Cross blood donor seldom is more vividly demonstrated than in Russia. It has a "blood donor" list of 1.1 million. Two sailors who lined up about HMCS Venture to give blood were told they had better be there when they were right on the dot.

Taxes are like dogs. When the country is in a hot spot they bark tremendously. — Brandon Sun

Treaty Outcome Doubtful

Canada and other smaller powers may have to exert intensified pressure on the United States to end their nuclear test-ban treaty.

Amid various public expressions of optimism about the future of these private negotiations, a well-informed Western diplomat has expressed a pessimistic opinion in predicting the outcome of the Washington and New York talks.

The Russian and American negotiators are on the side of the U.S.—are reported still quarrelling about the number of on-site inspections of Soviet territory to make a treaty effective in Western eyes.

There seems to be little doubt that the U.S. will be willing to give ground on the number of so-called "black boxes" needed to monitor a factory as part of the automatic policing system. Russia has offered to accept a reduction of 17 years and the U.S. has specified no allowance for this.

The Loneliest Island

Even if home is covered with lava, there's no place like a Tristan da Cunha. Tristan, a volcanic fragment on the South Atlantic, was called the "loneliest island in the world."

In October, 1961, a Spaniard called the "loneliest island in the world." The 260 former residents left in 1961, leaving the island unstaffed by modern tensions.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.

Tristan is strategically situated about halfway between South America and Africa. It was occupied by British troops in 1816. When the garrison left, a Scotch corporal named William Glass decided to settle there with his family.