Against South's contract of 3 diamonds you start off with 3 rounds of spades, declarer ruffing the 3rd round. The Queen of Diamonds is led and run to your partner's king. East returns the 9 of Clubs and South plays the 3. How do you defend?

If your partner's nine of clubs is a singleton you can defeat the contract by giving him a club ruff. But first see if you can count the hand. Declarer has 2 spades and presumably 5 diamonds. (if he has 4 he is going down anyway) He must have 4 hearts or he would not have inquired about the majors, therefore he can not have more than 2 clubs. Since a club ruff for partner is no longer a possibility, your best chance is to take your ace of clubs and lead a fourth round of spades. Declarer has surely no losers in the side suits so a ruff and a discard cannot help him. On the contrary, it is likely to embarrass him considerably, and if your partner's diamonds are as good as 763 it will defeat the contract for certain.
