

Learning to Howl.

It is an old Spanish proverb, we believe, "He who lives with wolves will learn to howl." He who lives with the faults of his friends, and counts them over and sets them, weighs them and measures them, will soon have equally grave ones of his own, which his friends will be sure to see, and which he will be positively unable to cure.

There is nothing that so deteriorates character as this undue looking after faults and blemishes in others while we are blind to our own. We may abhor meanness and stinginess in our neighbor, and be able to give a hundred reasons why he should give away more in charity, and see a thousand little things indicating his smallness of soul and at the same time we may be so engrossed with one phase of meanness in him as to forget another phase of meanness in ourselves.

We may abhor another untruth so vehemently in some one else that we shall forget to hate impurity in ourselves. We may despise our neighbor for his sharpness and trickery, and spread our own slowness and idleness and shiftlessness the coverlet of—"Thank God, I'm not a sharper!" The idle, thriftless man can never reform the overshrewd speculator; the impure man can never lift the untruthful man out of the mire; the gossip is not fit to cure the miser of his selfishness.

There is only one way to reform the world. Not by learning to howl at its faults, or to bark at its mistakes, but by beginning the work of reformation first with ourselves. We come back inevitably to the old truth so often before stated, "In order to make the best of others, we must first make the best of ourselves."—Golden Rule.

What Women Like in Men.

Women, I think, like manly, not lady-like men.

They like honesty of purpose and consideration.

They like men who believe in women.

They like their opinions to be thought of some value.

They like a man who can be strong as a lion when trouble comes, and yet, if one is nervous and tired, can button up a shoe and do it with an amount of consideration that is a mental and a physical bracer-up.

They like a man who can take hold of a baby, convince it of his power and get it to sleep after they have been worrying with it, and walking with it, until their eyes are tired and they feel as if they had no brains.

They like a man who is interested in their new dresses, who can give an opinion on the fit, and who is properly indignant at any article written against women.

They like a man who knows their innocent weaknesses and caters to them; who will bring home a box of candy, the last new magazine, or the latest puzzle sold on the street, that will do more than its duty in entertaining everybody for the whole evening.

They like a man who is the master of the situation—that is, who has brain enough to help a woman to decide what is the best thing to do under the circumstances, and who has wit enough to realize, when one of the fairer sex is slightly stubborn, that persuasion is more powerful than all the arguments in the world.

They like a man who likes them—who doesn't scorn their opinions, who believes in their good taste, who has confidence in their truth, and who, best of all, knows that the love promised is given him.

That's the sort of a man a woman likes, and her every sigh of satisfaction, as his virtues are mentioned, is a little prayer that says: "God bless him."—Ladies' Home Journal.

If You Want to be Loved.

Don't find fault.

Don't contradict people even if you're sure you are right.

Don't be inquisitive about the affairs of even your most intimate friend.

Don't underrate anything because you don't possess it.

Don't believe that everybody else in the world is happier than you.

Don't conclude that you have never had any opportunities in life.

Don't believe all the evil you hear.

Don't repeat gossip, even if it does interest a crowd.

Don't go untidy on the plea that everybody knows you.

Don't be rude to your inferiors in social position.

Don't over or under-dress.

Don't express a positive opinion unless you perfectly understand what you are talking about.

Don't get in the habit of vulgarizing life by making light of the sentiment of it.

Don't jeer at anybody's religious belief.

Don't try to be anything else but a gentleman—and that means a woman who has consideration for the whole world, and whose life is governed by the Golden Rule.

Don't do to others as you would be done by.

Odds and Ends.

Wees of an Elitor.—Some two years ago we did a job of printing for a man just over the county line. Last week, thinking he might have forgotten the transaction, we sent a bill. He answers as follows: "Don't be in such a dazed hurry; I'll have another job next spring, and will pay you for both together."

This paper is the best medium through which to make your wants known. Only yesterday we printed the following advertisement:

"Wanted, a large house.

Address Manager."

Last night the troupe had a full house.

Another of same date:

"Wanted: Help, by man who has just fallen into the river. Apply at Landing."

There was a great rush and the man was saved. Now is the time to advertise."
