Wheat Takes Old Role Of Economic Leadership

VANCOUVER (CP)—The new president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce says Canada has suddenly turned full circle to where wheat is the determinant of our prosperity."

Says Howard Mitchell of Vancouver:

"Do you remember the days when everyone held his breath to see what kind of crop was maturing? How 50,000,000 bushels meant the difference between a prosperous year and a poor year for the whole country?"

Publisher Mitchell is not saying that Canada is back in that fix, but in an interview here he emphasized that recent wheat sales are indeed of profound importance.

And the importance extends far beyond economics.

Mr. Mitchell, who was elected at the annual meeting of the chamber in Quebec City this month, said the Canadian economy has in recent years become so diverse crop reports are just absorbed in the general news.

WHEAT SALE VITAL

Sale of $500,000,000 in wheat and flour to Russia now means that scores of millions of dollars will be pumped into the economy through the Prairies.

"We have the situation of 19,000,000 Canadians producing the vital part of the food to sustain two Communist countries whose populations approach 1,400,000,000. In our relatively free economy, our production is doing this job."

He said the sale calls into question how much of Russia's need is due to drought and how much to lack of encouragement of farmers to grow all they can, as efficiently as they can, through being able to keep the product of their labor.

"But this may be the greatest single secret that a delegation of Communists, coming to Canada, would discover. If they were to transpose the terms of reward to their own countries, they might produce a great deal of their own food."

EXCHANGE REQUIRED

Another factor to ponder was the long-term ability of buyers to maintain enough foreign exchange to pay for the wheat. Only sales in large quantities to the West can guarantee this, he said.

"If, in the future they have the physical need for the food, but not the money to pay for it, what do countries like Canada and the U.S. do about it."

The key to this problem and the key to economic relations with countries of East and West alike is open discussion, Mr. Mitchell suggested.

Gold Find In Arctic Expected To Touch Off Fresh Activity

OTTAWA (CP)—A flurry of drilling and prospecting activity is expected to break out in Canada's Northland next spring after prospector-bush pilot Gerald Bruce went in this year and struck big gold.

There is no doubt about a burst of activity, a northern affairs department official said here. "A lot of people have made inquiries."

Qualifying under the government's Prospector Assistance Program, Bruce went into the Coronation Gulf area this summer—about 300 miles north of Yellowknife — and at Caribou Bay he struck a vein with a reported half-ounce of gold per ton. And it's only half a mile from open water where drilling supplies can be hauled in.

Within a few weeks of the discovery, about 700 claims were staked by a variety of firms. The James River Syndicate, which Bruce represented on his prospecting journey, has earmarked $100,000 for further work on the area as soon as the spring breakup comes.

While this is going on, the department expects the biggest concentration of prospectors and drillers so far congregated in the North to be combing the nearby areas in search of other strikes. And while it won't be another Klondike, it could result in a big lift for the economically troubled North.

Bruce's discovery was the first major strike to result from the Prospector Assistance Program, first announced by former prime minister Diefenbaker in Yellowknife two years ago.

Opening lead—nine of hearts.

You're playing six hearts and West leads a trump. You don't see West's hand of course, you can judge from his overcall that he has all the outstanding high-card strength.

If the trumps are divided 2-2, it is not difficult to make the slam, but when you take the nine of hearts with the ten and cash the queen, you learn of the 3-1 trump break.

This creates a man's - size problem because, while you can get rid of the queen of diamonds on the ten of clubs (after the finesse), you will still have to take care of two spade losers after giving up a spade to West. You can ruff one of them safely in dummy but not the other, because of East's jack of hearts.

Nevertheless, with proper care the slam can be made. At trick three you play the queen of clubs. West covers and you cash the ace and jack. Now you lead a heart to the king and pick up East's last trump.

You cannot afford to cash the ten of clubs at this point, because any discard you make will later prove fatal. Instead you ruff the six of clubs in order to remove a possible exit card from West's hand.

All these preparations turn out to be necessary when you now lead the queen of spades. West is forced to win the trick with the king, but, regardless of what he returns, the contract is in the bag.

If he leads a diamond, you cash the ace of spades, ruff a spade in dummy, and discard the ten of spades on the ten of clubs.

If he leads a spade instead, you ruff a spade in dummy and then discard the queen of diamonds on the ten of clubs.

The suggested plays are all reasonable, even though West's hand is not actually seen. Their success depends in part on how West's cards are distributed, but it is obviously proper to assume distribution that permits the contract to be made.

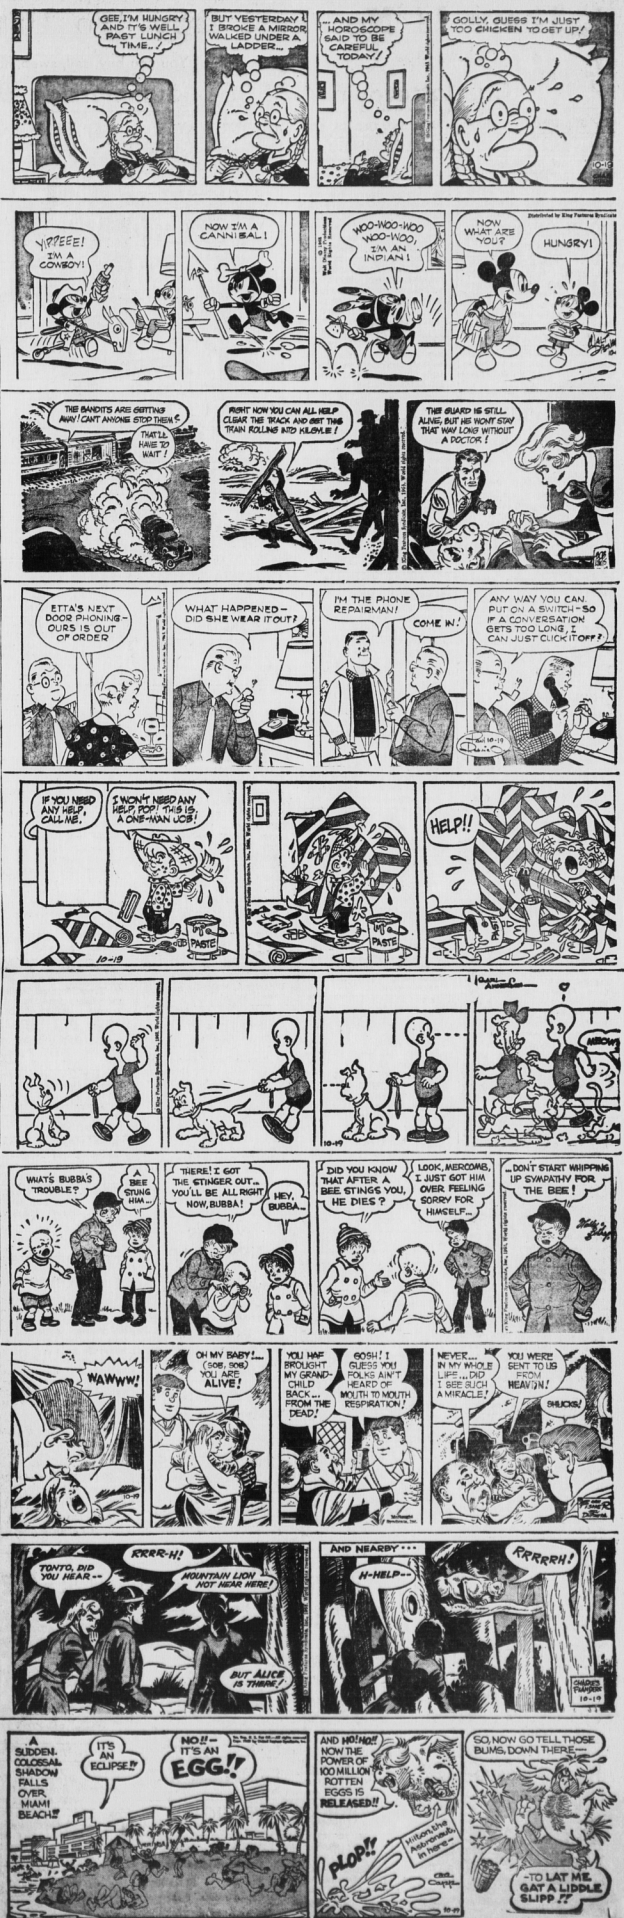
Theatre Guild To Present Three Plays

Two one-act plays written by Mrs. Adele Townshend of Souris will open the 1963-64 season of the Charlottetown Little Theatre Guild next week. A third play by another Canadian author will also be presented.

The theatre group will open its curtain for the season Wednesday Oct. 23 on "Lady's Slipper" and "For the Love of a Horse," both prize winning plays written by Mrs. Townshend.


The third presentation will be the "Blue Willow Plate", also written by a Canadian author. "Slipper" is being directed by Miss Germaine Doucette with Eric MacGregor and Sterling Walker, co-directing "Horse". Lloyd Yeo is directing "Blue Willow Plate."
