Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — A mild rally toward the close of the stock market Wednesday pulled prices up a little from their lows but it didn't balance a downward drift that developed early in the session. Declines throughout the list outnumbered gains by about three to two, but new highs outscored new lows more than three to one.

Senior base metals traded in a half-point range. Noranda, Steep Rock and Sherritt eased. Consolidated Smelters added ⅜. Profit-taking cut values of a string of lower-priced mines 15-20 cents, but most had reduced the losses to about 10 cents by the close. Barvue was one of the better issues, gaining 12 cents at $1.50. East Sullivan and Maritimes firmed pennies. Kilembe moved up 15 at $3.75.

Uraniums moved sluggishly. Beaucage's 20 cents at $3.10 was the best gain. McIntyre and Hollinger eased fractionally in golds. Holding companies had Ventures down $1.12.

Western oils were dull. Calvan and Triad advanced 15 cents. Pacific Pete was off ⅜.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market made its second decline of the new year Wednesday with only moderate selling pressures developing.

But there was one bright spot for the bullish element in Wall Street in the action of the market—the tempo of trading picked up during a late rally and diminished as the price level subsided to a quiet close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 80 cents at $178.50. The industrial component was off 80 cents, rails were down $1.10 and utilities dipped a dime.

Volume amounted to 2,290,000 shares as compared with 2,390,000 shares traded Tuesday. For the first time in many days, there were more new lows than highs—11 as against 8—for 1955-56.

Canadian issues were mostly higher. McIntyre and Hiram Walker both added ¼ while Dome Mines and Distillers Seagram both gained ⅛. Canadian Pacific fell ¼ and International Nickel remained unchanged.

On the American stock exchange Royalite Oil was up ⅛, Giant Yellowknife added 1-16 and Lake Shore remained unchanged.

Britain Too Prosperous For Her Own Good In 1955

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain was prosperous in 1955—too prosperous for her own good.

It was the year of the big spending spree and the bigger "credit squeeze" clamped on to check inflationary conditions caused by the boom.

Times were good for John Bull. Never before—in war or in peace—had so many Britons been employed in jobs that paid so well. With extra pocket money, workers were buying more of the things they couldn't get or couldn't afford before—such as cars, furniture, television sets and clothes.

EXPORTS SUFFER

This funnelled goods with made-in-Britain labels away from the vital export market and into shops at home. And for items they could not get from British manufacturers, Britons turned to foreign exporters.

As a result, Britain's delicate export-import balance took a turn for the worse. This meant a serious drain on the sterling area's "bankbook"—shown in the dwindling gold and dollar reserves and Britain's balance-of-payments difficulties.

Chancellor of the Exchequer R.A. Butler started the year by raising the bank rate from three to 3½ per cent in January in an effort to drain off excess credit. One month later, he shot the bank rate up to 4½ per cent, and tackled the problem of "too much money" by restricting instalment buying.

In the April budget, he lifted sixpence off personal income tax, in a move his political opponents condemned as an election bribe. And after the Conservatives returned with an increased majority in the May general election, a series of dock and rail strikes hampered the country's bid to "invest in success."

When the rail strike ended in June, the dock tie-up loomed even larger, and its harmful effects continued even after it was settled in July.

THE OCTOBER BUDGET

At this point, Butler began to get tough—a policy that was culminated in his October supplementary budget. He sought to soak up extra cash, firstly, in a pre-budget move, by tightening the curbs on hire-purchase and also by asking banks to make a "significant reduction" in advances.

His October budget, first emergency budget since the currency crisis of 1947, increased purchase and profits taxes. Telephone charges went up, and housing subsidies were restricted.

At the same time, there was a promising increase in exports, with sales to the United States reaching an all-time record. Even so, Britain's share of world trade fell off, causing concern in a country that must sell vigorously abroad to live prosperously at home.

In the last half of the year, it appeared as if Britain's mild form of inflation was being duplicated elsewhere in the world. Germany, a chief competitor, found its wage bill going up, thus eliminating its advantage in producing goods for the world.

CAPITAL INVESTMENT HIGH

Economists probed Britain's financial ills to discover the reason for the inflationary trend. They said that possibly the chief influence was an extraordinary rate of capital investment.

Britain, they argued, was trying to do too much too quickly.

With the workers in a good bargaining position because of the manpower shortage, there was a rash of new wage demands after Butler's autumn budget. This brought the fear that Britain was treading closely to the danger of pricing her goods out of the world market.

During the year, too, the strength of sterling abroad weakened, and foreign investors seemed afraid to hold sterling any longer than necessary. As a result, there was a sudden and serious exodus of capital from the London money market.

It was only when Butler told the world bank meeting at Istanbul that Britain would not devalue sterling, or allow the exchange rate to find its own level, that the pound was restored as a fairly firm currency.

As the country emerged from 1955, economic signs pointed to a fair degree of internal stability.

U.S. Planning To Unload New Batch Surplus Butter

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States announced Wednesday that it plans to unload another 10,000,000 pounds of surplus butter on the world market at cut-rate prices.

The butter, to be offered immediately on the commercial market on a competitive bid basis, will come out of government-owned stocks of slightly more than 50,000,000 pounds built up through the U.S. farm price support program.

The U.S. agriculture department announcement came just a week after New Zealand, a major butter exporter, protested to Washington that its policy of selling surplus dairy products to the highest foreign bidder constituted unfair trading and was undermining New Zealand's traditional United Kingdom market.

ADVISED BEFOREHAND

Before Wednesday's announcement, the state department made U.S. plans known to Canada, New Zealand, Australia, Sweden, Denmark and The Netherlands, all producers of dairy products.

Agricultural attaches of the six countries were notified Tuesday at a meeting here, arranged partly to meet protests that the U.S. was offering dairy surpluses without consulting them.

Informants here thought it unlikely that Canada would protest the butter offering since she is not a major butter exporter. However, Canada has in the past protested the competitive bid method of selling agricultural products on the ground it disturbs the price structure of world food markets.

There was speculation that the butter offering, identical with one made last spring, marks that star of an intensified drive by the Eisenhower administration to unload some of its food surpluses before the 1956 congressional elections. Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson, under political pressure to lighten the surpluses, has said he plans to step up the disposal program.

The 10,000,000 pounds of butter offered in the export market last spring sold largely at prices five to six cents a pound below the regular U.S. butter export price of 41 cents a pound. Much of it went to Britain and West Germany.

Booming Economy Revealed In Federal Revenue Figures

OTTAWA (CP) — The government, which started the current fiscal year last April 1 expecting a budget deficit, has come through the first eight months in better shape than it did a year ago.

With federal revenues to the end of November totalling $2,713,900,000 and expenditures $2,608,300,000, Finance Minister Harris was able Friday to announce a surplus for the light-month period of $105,600,000.

That compares with a surplus for the corresponding period last year of $91,700,000 after expenditures of $2,518,000,000 were taken from revenues of $2,609,700,000.

A booming economy has thrown out Mr. Harris' April forecast of a $16,000,000 deficit for the year by $65,600,000—on the credit side. But heavy expnditures that tend to pile up toward the end of the year might trim the sails before March 31. Despite the $90,000,000 surplus at the end of November, 1954, the government wound up with a deficit of $152,000,000 for the year.

DEFENCE SPENDING

Defence spending continued to surpass last year. Of total November revenues of $354,300,000 and $340,200,000 in expenditures for a $14,100,000 surplus, defence took $152,535,000 compared to $148,902,000 a year earlier. Total November revenues in 1954 were $330,000,000 and expenditures $330,200,000 for a deficit of $200,000.

Revenues from personal and corporation income taxes were down this year from last.

Personal income tax collections in November amounted to $9,326,000, almost the same as a year earlier, but were down to $774,807,000 from $794,621,000 in 1954.

Corporation taxes were $81,558,000 in November compared to $83,497,000 a year earlier and $645,450,000 for the eight months compared to $661,729,000.

Health and welfare costs were $300,520,000 in the eight-month period compared to $283,214,[illegible] in 1954. Interest on the public [illegible] was $324,355,000 against $31[illegible].

The old-age security fund, operated separately from budgetary transactions, had a November deficit of $5,900,000 and a cumulative deficit of $39,100,000 for the eight months. It was covered by a temporary loan under terms of the old-age security act. The cumulative deficit for the eight months last year was $40,400,000.
