Rustico Notes.

Mr. Lemuel Clarke recently lost a valuable horse, which took ill and died almost instantly.

There is great rejoicing among our fishermen, as a good quality of mackerel is becoming plentiful and prices more satisfactory.

Several young men are at present conten-plating the construction of stores in this locality. Their selection of sites was made on the premises of Mr. George Gallant.

The old Anglo Rustico School is at present doing good work under the management of Miss Barrett, though the birchen rod of correction is too freely wielded, which may not prove very incentive to the pupils.

Friend Burke is doing quite a business in the dry goods and groceries line. We learn that he recently paid a visit to Moncton, with a view to the establishment of another store in connection with his Island firm.

Mr. Thomas Balman has in course of construction one of the finest dwelling houses in this section of the country. It is being erected by Mr. Daniel Gay, who is one of the best mechanics we have.

The Seaside Hotel is closed for the season. It has not been opened in vain.
Many guests, on their departure from it, expressed their gratification at having selected such a favorable summer resort.
The proprietor, Mr. Newson, has been well remunerated for his daring enterprise, judging from the large share of patronage which he was favored with this season.

RENOVATO NOMINE.
Rustico, Sept. 7, 1885.

A Glimpse of the Dead Sea.

The Dead Sea is an old and deep-seated salt lake in a very advanced stage of evaporation. It lies several feet below the level of the Mediterranean, just as the Caspian lies several feet below the level of the Black Sea; and as in both cases the surface must once have been continuous, it is clear that the water of either sheet must have dried up to a considerable extent. But while the Caspian has shrunk only to eighty-five feet below the Black Sea, the Dead Sea has shrunk to the enormous depth of 1,292 feet below the Mediterranean. Every now and then some enterprising De Lesseps or other proposes to dig a canal from the Mediterranean to the Dead Sea, and so re-establish the old high level. The effect of this very revolutionary proceeding would be to find the entire Jordan valley, connect the Sea of Galilee with the Dead Sea, and play the dickens generally with Scripture geography, to the infinite delight of Sunday School classes. Now, when the Dead Sea first began its independent career as a separate sheet of water on its own account, it no doubt occupied the whole bed of this imaginary engineer's lake—spreading, if not from Dan to Beersheba, at any rate from Dan to Edom, or, in other words, along the whole Jordan valley, from the sea of Galilee and even to waters of Merom to the southern desert. (I will not insult the reader's intelligence and orthodoxy by suggesting that perhaps he may not be precisely certain as to the exact position of the waters of Merom; but I will merely recommend him just to refresh his memory by turning to his atlas, as this is an opportunity which may not again occur.) The modern Dead Sea is the last shrunken relic of such a considerable ancient lake.
Its waters are now so very concentrated and so nasty that no fish or other self-respecting animal can consent to live in them, and so buoyant that a man can't drown himself, even if he tries, because the sea is saturated with salts of various sorts till it has become a kind of soup or porridge, in which a swimmer floats, will he nil he. Persons in the neighborhood who wish to commit suicide are therefore obliged to go elsewhere—much as in Tasmania, the healthiest climate in the world, people who want to die are obliged to run across for a week to Sydney or Melbourne.—Cornhill Magazine.

Editor Stead's Peculiar Position.

The charge is brought against Editor Stead, of the Pall Mall Gazette, that in the course of his investigation into the depravity existing in London, he conspired with soldiers of the Salvation Army and others to abduct an innocent girl, in order to illustrate, for his own satisfaction and the satisfaction of others, how easily it could be done. In other words, he made an experiment which involved the stealing of a child, her submission to improper treatment, the anxiety of her parents, and a very serious violation of the law. The child, however, was not criminally assau-led. The experimenters, it is claimed, simply went far enough to prove that with the aid of a procress the abduction and ruin of a young girl was made not only possible but easy of accomplishment. Upon this charge Mr. Stead has been arrested, and the probabilities are that he will be prosecuted.

Doubleless Mr. Stead and his associates went too far in this matter and yet the results which they were desirous of obtaining will justify them. It had been asserted that the stories published in the Pall Mall Gazette were absurd; that children could not be so easily dragged from their homes and ruined, and that young girls were not subjected to so many perils as claimed by the agitators who backed up the newspapers course. To prove that his position was right Mr. Stead made the experiment mentioned, and his enemies are now determined to make the most of it.
He has hit so many persons in high official life, he has dragged before the public the vices of so many men of alleged respectability, he has broken up so many haunts of vice patronized by the "first gentlemen of London society" that this chance to "get even" with him will not be neglected. But we cannot but feel that the editor will receive fair play and justice at the hands of English courts. He went too far, but he did so in the interest of virtue, decency and humanity.

The Last Survivor Gone.

DEATH OF THE SOLE REMAINING OFFICER OF THE WAR OF 1812.

Major Aaron Stafford, the last surviving officer of the war of 1812, died at his residence in Waterville, Oneida County, N. Y., on the 6th inst., in the 99th year of his age, having retained his mental faculties to the last. He was born in Cheshire, Mass., March 18, 1787. He was an ensign at Sackett's Harbor in 1812, and soon after was appointed adjutant of the 16th regiment, detached militia, and as such went to the Niagara frontier. He was soon after sent with a company to Buffalo to convey provisions to the army, and executed his difficult commission with so much skill and dispatch as to win the applause of his superior officers. This brought him to the notice of Gen. Scott, and he was by that officer given the command of the detachment left to cross after the main body of the army had crossed the river to the attack on Queenstown Heights. Stafford successfully performed the duties intrusted to his charge, and landed his men without loss, but on ascending the heights was attacked by a superior body of British and Indian. The resistance of the Americans was heroic, but they were soon overpowered by the superior numbers of the enemy, and nearly all were either killed or wounded. Stafford received two severe wounds, and was taken prisoner. He was soon after exchanged and promoted to be a major, but did not recover sufficiently to take the field until the war was concluded.

Archdeacon Farrar.

Archdeacon Farrar will probably arrive at Quebec on or about September 11. He goes thence to Montreal, Niagara, Chicago, Washington and Baltimore. In Philadelphia he will lecture in the course known as the Griswold lectures. He will be in New York on Saturday, October 17, passing the interval between that and the 20th at Riverdale-on-Hudson, as the guest of the Rev. Dr. George D. Wildes, Rector of Christ Church. On Monday, accompanied by Archdeacon Vesey, of Huntington, Eng., and Dr. Wildes, he will go to attend the annual session of the Church Congress in New Haven, Conn.
On Tuesday, Oct. 20, Archdeacon Farrar will be one of the speakers in the congress on the topic "The Christian Doctrine of the Atonement." On Wednesday he and Archdeacon Vesey will probably take part in discussing "The Grounds of Church Unity." Until the 30th he will be in New York as the guest of Mr. Cyrus W. Field.
Then he goes to Boston by invitation of Dr.
Phillip Brooks.

CURRENT NOTES.

Leibach, the German artist, is painting a portrait of Prince Bismarck for Earl Rosebery.

The expulsions from Eastern Prussia are now estimated at 10,000; nearly 9,000 Jews have been expelled.

The papers are poking fun at the Toronto Globe for crediting the authorship of the well known dictionary to Daniel Webster.

Prince Von Hohenlohe, the new governor of Alsace-Lorraine, intends to rule with greater stringency over Frenchmen in that province. He is supported in this policy by Emperor William and Prince Bismarck.

Mr. Michael Davitt's recent lecture in Dublin for the benefit of the fund for the support of ex-Head Centre Stephens, netted $850, and Mr. Davitt has handed a cheque for that amount to the aged Fenian leader.

Eighteen authenticated new cases of smallpox in Montreal were reported on Saturday last. Bishop Fabre, on Sunday, at the conclusion of his sermon strongly urged the people to submit to vaccination and to avoid visiting houses in which the disease is reported.

There were reported at the Health Office, Montreal, for the week ending on Saturday last, one hundred and three deaths from smallpox. This is six more than for the previous seven days, and shows that the efforts so far put forth have failed utterly to meet the necessities of the case.

Oscar Parry, eleven years old, committed suicide at Philadelphia Sunday morning by shooting himself at his home. The boy stood in front of a looking-glass, and guiding his aim by the reflection in the glass shot himself in the head. He had just finished reading a sensational story, and it is believed the story had affected his mind.

An actual case of mixing babies inextricably is reported in Milwaukee. There were two mothers of blue eyed, fair skinned boys in the same house. At the early age of four days the infants were carelessly bathed at once, and it was impossible to identify them. The parents are distracted, but they hope that, in a few months, resemblance may be developed that will settle the question. In the meantime they have agreed to keep up a kind of joint household.

A Deadwood, Dakota, despatch of Sunday says:—The unpleasant weather of the past two weeks culminated in a snowstorm yesterday morning. The outlook for grain is gloomy in the extreme. Four-fifths of of the crops are cut and the bulk is lying on the ground, heating and growing.
Much that is stacked is being destroyed, even for feed. Practically no threshing has been done yet and it begins to look as though there would be nothing to thresh.
Prices have advanced materially and few sales are made at any price. The farmers are greatly discouraged.
