
SMOULDERING RUINS OF MORELL CREAMERY

Early Morning Fire Levels Butter Plant

MORELL — Fire of undetermined origin early yesterday morning wiped out the Morell Co-Operative butter and cheese making plant at Morell and resulted in a loss estimated at $200,000.

The blaze was discovered by Melvin MacLaren at about 5.30, and by the time the Morell fire department arrived on the scene it was out of control.

The assistance of fire fighting units from St. Peter's and Mt. Stewart failed to contain the fire. Both the building and its contents, which manager Reg MacAdam said was completely covered by insurance, are a total loss.

The butter-cheese plant employed a total of 21 people, including plant workers, bookkeepers, and cream and milk truck operators. It served 670 cream and milk producers in Kings and Queens Counties, and arrangements are being made to keep the routes intact.

Mr. MacAdam said yesterday morning that cream and milk pickups will be made as usual, and a meeting was held last night to get plans moving for the immediate rebuilding of the butter and cheese operation.

The loss included all the machinery in the plant, including the cheese-making equipment purchased only this year when the plant started making cheese in June. Some five tons of newly-made cheese was lost in the fire, but only a small amount of butter was on hand. Just Wednesday, two truckloads of butter were shipped to the mainland, and very little was left on hand.

Mr. MacAdam managed to save the records by entering the office through a window.

Yesterday afternoon plant officials announced that it had been discovered that the contents of the individual coldstorage lockers was almost undamaged and were salvagable.

Locker holders were advised to remove the contents within 24 hours, because with the refrigeration machinery destroyed the contents of the lockers would start to deteriorate by that time.

Drug Firm Gets Recognition For Millionth Prescription

SUMMERSIDE — A pharmaceutical award, the first of its kind in Prince County, has been presented the Enman drug store in Summerside. It is in recognition of the firm having filled one million prescriptions. The award was made by the firm of E.R. Squibbs.

Only eleven other drug companies in the Atlantic provinces have qualified for the award since it was inaugurated about eight years ago.

Accepting the award was the president of the firm, Hon. Henry W. Wedge, provincial minister of welfare and labour.

ONE OF OLDEST

The Enman Drug Company is one of the oldest on the Island. Originally founded by John Muirhead, it was sold to his nephew, P.N. Enman, in 1902.

Mr. Enman ran the business until his death in 1931. At that time it was sold to Eric MacKay. It was at that time that the firm was incorporated as a limited company

Henry W. Wedge, who graduated in pharmacy at Dalhousie University in 1934, became manager and later president of the drug company.

STEADY GROWTH

Indicative of the steady growth of the Enman Drug Company are figures on the number of prescriptions filled. In 1943, the store compounded 11,000 prescriptions. Almost twenty years later, in 1962, the number had increased to 20,000.

Because of Mr. Wedge's time consuming duties as MP for Third Prince and minister of welfare and labour, much of the management of the store is in the hands of his son, J.H. Richard Wedge, who is also a Dalhousie pharmacy graduate.

Impairment Case Is Adjourned

SUMMERSIDE — A Summerside resident, Clifford McGuigan, appearing before Magistrate R. S. Hinton, QC, in town police court yesterday on a charge of impaired driving, had has case adjourned until Monday, Sept. 30.

Defence council Alex Campbell requested an adjournment following the testimony of three crown witnesses. The accused entered a plea of not guilty to the charge.

For permitting an unlicensed person to drive his vehicle, Clifford Aitken, Summerside, was fined $10 and costs.

Dwight Peters, Summerside, was fined $10 and costs for exceeding the speed limit on Water Street.

Also on the docket were two persons charged with drunkenness. One pleaded guilty but has his sentence deferred until Tuesday, Sept. 24, at the request of Sergeant Harry MacKay of the town police.

The second accused, represented by Mr. Campbell, pleaded not guilty and had his case adjourned until today (Friday) at the request of his council.

Death Monday Of K. MacLeod

SUMMERSIDE — The death of Kenneth MacLeod, Spring Brook, occurred in the P.E.I. Hospital on Monday morning following a short illness caused by appendicitis and complications.

The son of Duncan MacLeod and the late Winnifred (Dolly) MacLeod (nee Baglole), he was in his 21st year.

Surviving besides his father are; two sisters, Edwena, (Mrs. James Cousins), Kensington and Vivian at home. The remains are resting at the Davison Funeral Parlor, Kensington.

inform the public on the subject.

"We feel," Mr. McCabe said, "that the public had very little details of the plan proposed. No one knows what it will cost them, their children, and their county. The public doesn't know the advantages of other possible systems."

S'side Committee Chooses Fountain

SUMMERSIDE — The local centenarial committee met at the town hall last evening and decided that, following formal approval by the central centennial committee, Charlottetown, construction of the proposed $11,200 Dominion Square fountain would begin as soon as possible.

Local centennial chairman Edgar Cannon said that a verbal agreement had already been reached with the centennial committee in regard to the project and work on the two-stage fountain will likely be carried out under this year's winter works program.

The Town of Summerside has agreed to let the committee go ahead with the project and has specified that it should be erected on the southwest corner of Dominion Square, Summer and Church streets.

The commemorative structure is to consist of a twin-faced, rectangular fountain, surrounded by walks and grass and engraved on one side in 1964 and the other side in 1967. Included as well will be 10 flag poles forming a semi-circle that will likely fly banners of the provinces.

A main flag pole facing the 1964 engraving on the fountain, is to be added in 1967 at which time the rest of the engraving will be completed at an estimated cost of $4,000 bringing the total cost to $15,200.

It was decided at last night's meeting that tenders would not be called for the erection of the project. M. F. Schurman Co. Ltd. will be sent a letter of proposition concerning the construction and limiting the company to a ceiling price of $11,200.

Fall Start Planned On Housing Projects

Construction for senior citizens housing is planned this fall and winter in five Island localities. They are Summerside, Alberton, Kensington, O'Leary and Wellington.

Provincial town planner Walter deSilva said that by having all projects underway at once and by the fall would result in a better cost picture and also provide winter employment.

Mr. deSilva will meet with Alberton town officials today to decide on a site for the project in that centre.

On the Summerside project Mr. deSilva said a master plan had been prepared to serve two purposes. The first enabled the government to fit all the planned housing into one park-like centre and at the same time permit real planning for development of all the adjoining land area.

He added in every instance where senior citizens housing has been involved the government has ensured future expansion if required by the purchase of sufficiently large sites in the first instance.

More Economical Way Of Providing Pensions

BY NANCY WHITE

"We think the Canadian taxpayer is getting into something which can be provided more economically under another system," Claude McCabe, field consultant of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, said yesterday, in discussing the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

Mr. McCabe, who last evening addressed a dinner meeting of the Life Underwriters Association of P.E.I., said in an interview yesterday, that the cost of the contributory pension plan to the individual could double, triple, or quadruple in the future.

"A similar system in the United States was costing two per cent in 1937, and now costs seven and a quarter per cent he stated, adding that legislation has been approved to increase the cost to a nine and a quarter per cent tax on payroll by 1968.

There are two major reasons for the inevitable increase in cost, of the Canada Pension Plan, Mr. McCabe explained. "PAY AS YOU GO"

"This is a pay-as-you-go plan, so that all the money is spent as soon as it's collected, and there is no accumulation of interest. Under a normal pension plan the compound interest loan will pay for half the pension," he said.

Secondly, the generation now working will be subsidizing all the people retiring within the next 40 years. Mr. McCabe said that people now in their 30s would be those most affected by this. Furthermore, he added that government surveys show that the number of pensioners is increasing faster than the number of workers.

Mr. McCabe commented that the subsidizing of those retiring by those working would not be bad in itself "if the subsidies were properly directed."

If the proposed plan goes into effect, the greatest subsidies will be paid out to the people of highest earnings.

For example, a married man now age 64 earning $4,000 a year would receive a pension worth $8,300 when he reaches 65. The same man, earning $2,000 a year, would get only half the subsidy, and yet his need would be as great or greater.

CANADIAN ECONOMY

"The federal plan would reduce investment capital in Canada by $500,000,000 a year," Mr. McCabe said, explaining that at present, money put into private pensions is invested in Canadian enterprises. The loss of this investment would necessitate borrowing money from the United States at a time when economists are already complaining about the heavy borrowing from that source.

These people would incur losses on money already paid to these pension funds, he said.

COMPULSORY PURCHASE

Mr. McCabe said that three government-appointed commissions—federal commissions in 1950 and 1958, and an Ontario study in 1959—each studying for a number of years, all recommended a plan whereby purchase of private pensions would be made compulsory by government regulation.

This is the plan supported by the Life Underwriters Association and the Canadian Welfare Council.

These two groups, said Mr. McCabe, feel that not enough study has gone into the preparing of the Canada Pensions Plan, and ask that a commission of inquiry be appointed to receive briefs from interested groups, and study the picture of pensions in Canada.

A major purpose of Mr. McCabe's visit here as to discuss the aspects of the Canada Pension Plan with the members of the Island branch of the association, so that they may better that once the government of Canada enters into the agreement, Parliament is prevented from doing anything to alter the signed word of Canada."

The opposition leaders birthday was on Wednesday while he and Mrs. Diefenbaker were en route home from a visit to the Middle East. At the late - afternoon party in his office he blew out candles on a blue-and-white cake and opened gifts behind a huge array of birthday cards.

COMMENTS ON SPEECH

Mr. Diefenbaker also commented to reporters on the speech by Prime Minister Pearson at the United Nations earlier in the day. Mr. Pearson suggested an enlarged Security Council and evelopment of UN peace-keeping forces.

The Conservative leader said the bigger Security Council was "a laudable objective without possibility of acceptance." Russia had always insisted that Communist China occupy the Security Council seat now occupied by Nationalist China before any change could be made in the UN charter.

Regarding the peace-keeping forces, Mr. Diefenbaker suggested Mr. Pearson was offering to enlarge Canada's contribution to such a UN force.

"Personally I think before Canada determines on any increase in her forces, whether for peace purposes or otherwise, that the whole defence policy should have been discussed and considered by Parliament."
