The Action Will Be Here

THIS WILL BE one summer that you shouldn't hear Islanders complain about having nothing to do.

Centennial Year has brought a host of events to Prince Edward Island never before realized. Don't head for the mainland for your vacation this summer, stay in P.E.I. and enjoy what will probably be the province's greatest season in history.

There will be sports events the province has had every summer. — Baseball, track and field, harness racing, go-karting, swimming, fishing, golfing, bowling, softball and more. But there will also be a host of special, outstanding events.

The inter-Maritime rifle competition will get things underway this Saturday as defending champion P.E.I. hosts Nova Scotia at Squaw Point. Fast becoming a spectator sport, golf will take the spotlight June 27-28 for Belvedere's Pro Open tourney. Entries have been coming in from the Maritime provinces, Maine and Quebec.

Prince Edward Island's first sky-diving demonstration will be given at Sherwood, July 3, as part of the communities Centennial celebrations. The Summerside Lobster Carnival gets underway July 13, and their big track and field meet will probably go July 16. And there will be plenty of horse racing.

Amateur Golf Championships

THE NEW BRUNSWICK-Prince Edward Island Amateur golf championships will take place at Belvedere July 20 and the Island's rifle championships will be held in Charlottetown, July 23-25.

The biggest event of the summer for many athletes and sport fans will be the Eastern Canadian Age Class track and field championships slated for Summerside's new sports complex, July 24-25. The nation's top young athletes including Abbie Hoffman, Nancie MacCreadie, Howie Jackson will be competing.

The $5,000 Northumberland Strait Swim is on Aug. 1, and John LaCoursiere will be defending his title against a list of international swimmers. Aug. 1 is also Borden Day.

The P.E.I. Ladies' golf championships will be held at Belvedere Aug. 7-8 and the national Boy Scout sailing regatta is set for the Charlottetown club, Aug. 9-15. Old Home Week will be Aug. 17-23 with special racing events each night.

The P.E.I. Open golf chmapionships will go at Belvedere Aug. 22-23, and the always competitive Maritime Invitational track and field championships will be held at Memorial Field, Aug. 22. The Shediac to Charlottetown yacht race will also be held in August.

Canada's top young golfers will battle for honors in the national Junior championships at Belvedere, Sept. 1-5. The P.E.I. Open swimming championships will be held in Charlottetown Sept. 5, and the Open Labor Day golf meet will be held at Cavendish, Sept. 5-7.

We think that's a terrific list of summer sporting events for Islanders to enjoy. There isn't much point in going to the mainland for your enjoyment this summer, all the action will be here.

Off The Cuff

VERN HANDRAHAN saw action with Kansas City against Washington Senators Tuesday night. He pitched 3 1/3 innings, giving up two runs on two hits, two strikeouts and four walks. Both runs were earned. Last Friday night Handraham went 3 1/3 innings against Boston. That time he allowed one run on two hits, three walks and two strikeouts. He hasn't been plagued by the home run in his last few appearance, but he's been giving up quite a few walks . . . The horses are off again tonight at the Charlottetown Driving Park, 9:15, because of the Billy Graham Crusade. We have what we think might be a hot tip on Zither in the second . . . The Summerside Town Baseball League has had two top-notch pitching performances in its opening games. Tuesday night PAUL MacWILLIAMS pitched no-hit ball for 6 1/3 innings on way to a one-hit 4-1 win over the Legion, and in the opener Saturday DONNIE SCHURMAN came up with a 7-0 one-hit win. The Summerside league seems to be going a lot smoother now that the Junior players aren't all on the same team, as was the case last season . . . The Charlottetown ball loop has announced its opening date will be Monday. The City softball league hasn't finalized its opening plans. . . . Seven persons were named to the Hockey Hall of Fame Tuesday. They are the late Babe Siebert of the Montreal Maroons and Canadiens: BILL DURNAN, of the Canadiens; Black Jack Stewart of Detroit Red Wings; Doug Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks; builders Angus Campbell and Frank Dilio and referee Bill Chadwick.

Harness Racing Held At S'side

SUMMERSIDE — A bettor's long shot finishing first in the curtain raiser and a number of large pays featured the first racing card of the season at Summerside Raceway last night.

Despite a rain downpour and intermittent lightning and thunder, fans, horse owners and drivers saw the entire eight dashes run off with a number of photo finishes adding zest to the program.

The upset victory of the night saw Jolly Lass, a brown mare owned by Billy Companion, beat a field of seven other horses to the wire to return a "whopping" pay of $81.60 for a $2 wager.

Andrew Perry's veteran brown mare, Miss Tom Scott, was the only double winner on the card. The mare, reined by George Frizzell, captured both ends of an open trot, the 3rd and 7th dashes, in respective times of 2.12.1 and 2.14.3.

The fastest times on the card were identical miles of 2.12 in the fourth and eighth races. Cadillac Gold Dust, owned by Andrew Perry, was the first to do the twice-around-the-oval in that time and Stanley Mayhew's Santiago did a repeat performance in the final dash of the night.

Other winners were Billy G. Command, Cathy Girl and Roger Parlay.

The largest combination pay of the evening was the second double which returned $54.60 on a combination of Miss Tom Scott and Santiago. The first double, on the first and second dashes, paid $51.20. The quinella returned $26.40 and the exactor, on the 5th, paid $8.40.

CAHA Requests Financial Help

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has asked the federal government for financial help in establishing a national amateur hockey team, possibly based in Ottawa.

This information was given in the Commons Wednesday by John Munro, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, in reply to a question by Eric Winkler, Conservative party whip and MP for Grey-Bruce.

Mr. Munro said the CAHA asked for a grant under the fitness and amateur sports grants. He said Ottawa has been suggested as a possible home for the team but the question is being studied by a committee of the CAHA.

Toronto's 'Punch' Imlach Grabs 2 Veteran Players

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach, astute general manager - coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, stole the show Wednesday at the National Hockey League's draft extravaganza by grabbing two veteran players who have achieved stardom in their careers.

For a total outlay of $40,000, the Leafs picked up leftwinger Dickie Moore from Montreal Canadiens, despite Moor's reputedly gimpy knees and a year's layoff, and goalie Terry Sawchuk from Detroit Red Wings.

It was the most outstanding grab of stars, veterans or not, since the draft was begun in 1954. Perhaps the last name player taken in the annual draft scramble was Bert Olmstead, now retired, who was picked up by Toronto from Montreal Canadiens.

Seven players in all were drafted. Outside of Moore and Sawchuk, they were minor leaguers or players who have served occasionally in the NHL.

Detroit drafted three players, Murray Hall, part-time rightwinger from Chicago Black Hawks; goalie George Gardner, from Boston Bruins, who played for Minneapolis of the Central Professional Hockey League last season; and defenceman Gary Bergman, from Montreal, with Springfield of the American Hockey League last season.

TAKE ONE EACH

The Bruins and New York Rangers plucked one player each.

Montreal and Chicago passed in each call in the draft.

New York drafted from Boston defenceman Jim Mikol, who had been picked in the minor league draft Tuesday, and announced dropping minor-league defenceman Bob Woytowich.

The Bruins immediately drafted Woytowich from the Rangers.

All six clubs started the draft with the maximum number of players on their protected lists —18 players plus two goalies undraftable. As a new player was drafted by a club, a protected man had to be dropped from its list.

Detroit dropped Sawchuk's name when Gardner was drafted. Earlier in the draft Detroit also dropped the name of defenceman Albert Langlois, formerly with Montreal and New York. No one drafted him.

WANTED BOOMER TOO

The Leafs indicated they would like to have acquired Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, veteran high - scoring rightwinger of Canadiens, who was placed on the voluntarily retired list Tuesday and will coach Quebec Aces of the AHL.

Imlach said after the meeting that he was not concerned over pessimistic medical reports about Moore.

"When I draft players I tell them to throw away medical reports and birth certificates. We'll start from there."

Along with veteran Johnny Bower, Imlach now has "two goalies who played in the Stanley Cup finals."

Imlach, whose Leafs now have won three straight Stanley Cups, said Bower "is the man to beat out for the job and either Sawchuk or Don Simmons will be the other man we'll carry."

Coach Sid Abel of the Wings said, however, that he is happy with his goal - tending setup.

"We have Roger Crozier, who is 22, and would have started in the nets regardless, and we have Gardner, Carl Wexel and Bob Champoux.

Moore said he is satisfied and welcomes a return to the NHL.

Is There A Rule?

Is there not some rule in softball that forbids a player on a coaching line to keep throwing sarcastic remarks at the pitcher? If there isn't then it's rather strange that more teams do not take advantage of trying to rattle the pitcher in this way. We're sure you will admit it's a rare thing in either softball or baseball to hear these verbal blasts from the coaching lines. Imagine big league coaches adopting these tactics. Baseball, in fact, does (or did) have a rule forbidding such things. Look it up. Does softball not have something similar? There is an old story which some players circulate that as long as you do not call a pitcher by his name, you can say anything you please barring obscenities, profanity, and the like. This has to be a bedtime story. If not, it's time the fellows with the white coats and the nets caught up with this goon before he puts some other silly clap-trap in the rules. Game rules are generally based on reason and common sense.

This does not excuse the pitcher who goes on the war path because of this needling, but we do think the practice of shouting at pitchers gets very close to the border line of poor sportsmanship. Absolute silence is demanded when a golfer is taking his shot. Heckling a bowler when he is ready to deliver the ball is considered unsportsmanlike behavior, so why shouldn't a pitcher get some consideration too? Of course there is the crowd of spectators who can't very well be controlled unless, of course, they go beyond the limits.

Baseball Is Improving

Donnie Schurman and Paul MacWilliams have both turned in one-hitters in the two baseball games played so far in the Summerside league. We watched the second game on Tuesday and although it started out with a comedy of errors, the boys settled down and put up a good exhibition of baseball. The crowd seemed larger than usual and the take of the "hat" showed more mazuma than had been the case in any regular league game last year. So, it looks as if baseball in Summerside though still a little ill, may soon be able to sit up and take nourishment. The weather was ideal for both games so far, and don't you forget it, the weather man will have considerable to say about whether baseball will be a success in Summerside or not. If you get a string of those cold, cloudy, damp evenings, not bad enough to call for a postponement,but very discouraging to a fan who has left a warm room and a television set, well, we don't want to get a reputation as a pessimist so we won't pursue this train of thought any further.

Old Timers Team?

There is talk of the old timers organizing a team in Summerside. That, we predict, would cause considerable interest among the old-time fans. Maybe we're looking at the fifties through rose-colored glasses, but we think those old-timers played much better ball than most of the present crop of ball tossers. What would they do now? If Bob Schurman and Pony Daley formed a battery today, would a bunted ball go for a home run? How about Hank Landry at short? In the good old days he looked like a ballet dancer out there? Today he would look more like a performing bear? It's possible Joe Bernard's high hard one might be mistaken for letup pitch today, and it would be worth dropping four bits into the hat to see Charlie Deighan trying to steal second. "Little Beaver's" pivot play at second might look like a slow-motion shot today. But these boys could surely play exciting ball in the fifties and we old-timers would like to see them out there again.

Ch'town's Forbie Kennedy Is In Hockey's Best League

By JIM CULLEN
Special Sports Feature

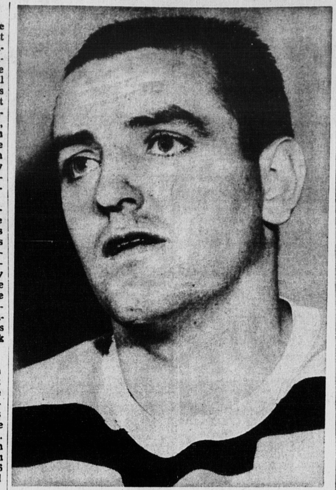
The most prominent figure among Island sports figures last winter was a stocky, little centre in the person of Forbes Kennedy who was toiling with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. Forbie was born in Dorchester, N.B., but shortly after his birth the Kennedy family moved to O'Leary, Prince Edward Island. When Forbie was approximately three years of age, the family again took up roots and this time they took up residence in Charlottetown, where they are now residing.

Kennedy is the Island's greatest player to reach the big time in the hockey world. He has easily counted for more goals and more assists then any other Islander, as well as spending more time in the penalty box. Other Islanders who have had spurts in the big time were Ivan 'Hickey' Nicholson, Chicago Black Hawks; Charlie Cahill, Boston Bruins; Wes 'Bucko' Trainor, New York Rangers.

Forbie played with the Charlottetown minor hockey system right from the paperweight ranks through to midget. He was playing with a Charlottetown juvenile team in a series against Bathurst and Newcastle when he was still of midget age. In this series the Charlottetown team emerged victorious with a score of 16-9 and out of the 16 markers Forbie garnered 11 and added five assists.

Forbes was playing with a Halifax junior team in which he finished second in the league scoring race. Although only playing since after Christmas, he was a single point behind the league leader when Sam Pollock scouted him for the Montreal Canadiens.

The next fall when Forbie was 17 he went to camp with the Montreal Junior Canadiens. Forbes was an immediate success with the club and came along strong under the coaching of Sam Pollock. Forbie played out his junior career with the Montreal organization and during the period played with such noteables as: Henri Richard, Phil Goyette, Claude Provost and Ralph Backstrom.



FORBES KENNEDY

When his junior days had expired the Montreal brass informed Forbie that he had been sold to the Black Hawks and that he would go to camp with Chicago in the coming fall. The Hawks were on the bottom of the ladder at this time and Forbie caught their eye so they decided to keep the young Islander with the parent Hawks.

Forbie was one of the few players in the NHL to jump from junior hockey into hockey's greatest league. Kennedy played the entire 1957-58 season with the Hawks and banged home eight goals and added 13 assists, while sitting out 102 minutes in penalties.

The following year Forbie was traded to the Detroit Red Wings where he ran into a dark spot in his career as he failed to see eye to eye with Jack Adams, who was then the boss of the Detroit club. Kennedy despite frequent disagreements with the Wings straw boss went about his business of playing hockey as he blinked the red light on 11 occasions and picked up 16 assists for a total of 27 points.

In his third season in the NHL Kennedy's disagreements with Adams were constantly growing more serious and because of this Forbie spent a lot of time keeping a spot warm on the Wings bench. Forbie only managed one goal and four assists in 67 games and this wasn't at all to the liking of Mr. Adams. Forbie became involved in a bitter argument with Adams and the result being that Kennedy was shipped out to Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League, where he spent the 1959-60 season.

SHIPPED TO SPOKANE

Forbie attended the Detroit camp in the fall of the 60-61 season and was promptly shipped to the Spokane Comets of the WHL. Forbie's hopes were at a low ebb at this point in his career and he had thoughts of quitting hockey. He stuck with it though and had a great year with Comets, scoring 23 goals and assisting on 38 others for 61 points. During his stint at Spokane there were two NHL clubs interested in purchasing Kennedy, but Mr. Adams would not release him.

The 61-62 season saw Forbie sent to the Flyers at the beginning of the season when he felt he should have remained with the Red Wings. The gritty little Islander starred with the Edmonton team and collected 23 goals and 31 assists in only 58 games. Along with this Forbie was easily the most popular player in the Flyers uniform as a result of his aggressive style which included his willingness to drop the gloves with any of the players on the oposing teams.

Kennedy got the call to return to the Wings near the end of the season. Forbie was still not getting along with Jack Adams and this could have attributed to the fact that he could garner only one goal in fourteen games with the parent club.

Mr. Adams didn't feel that one goal was enough for Forbes in those 14 games and another argument ensued in which Kennedy openly condemned Jack Adams.

GETS BIG BREAK

Edmonton here I come was what Forbie had in mind and, sure enough, the fall of 62-63 found Kennedy in the Flyers' uniform. Forbes promptly went on a scoring spree and was leading the Western League in this department when the Boston Bruins persuaded the Wings to sell Kennedy to the Boston club. This proved to be a big break for Forbes, as he was once again in hockey's best league.

Kennedy was a hit with the Bruins right from the time he donned a Boston uniform and he carved his mark as a centreman with the Bruins who were much in need of the shot in the arm. Forbie despite his 5'8" frame is one of the roughest competitors in the NHL. During last year's campaign Forbes was called upon to play all three forward positions with the Bruins.

Kennedy is primarily a centreman, due to his checking and stickhandling ability, but did an adequate job for the Bruins when weakness on the wings caused them to take Forbie off his regular beat. Kennedy fired eight goals and contributed 15 assists to the Boston cause in last year's action.

Forbie will attend the Bruins camp in September and will be doing his best to make an impression among the stars of the National Hockey League.

Forbie is married to the former Marie MacDonald of Charlottetown and is the father of four children. The Kennedys reside at 36 Alley Street during the summer months.

League Strength Is Questioned

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox, confronted by a National League hex, promised Wednesday "the best American League squad possible" for the 1964 All Star game.

Lopez, who has come out second best in two World Series and three previous All Star managerial efforts, was named Wednesday by Joe Cronin, league president, to handle the Americans in the July 7 interleague game at New York's Shea Stadium.

"It would do us a lot of good to puncture the talk about how much stronger the National League is supposed to be," said Lopez, now in his 14th season as an American League manager.

"I always thought the All Star game was just a game to play to give the fans a chance to see all their favorites on the same field. In the past, I tried to play everybody. I think that's what the fans want to see.

Lopez will fill out a 25-man squad after AL players themselves vote the eight game starters. Lopez picks his own pitching staff.

Lopez is confronted with the challenge of producing his first All Star winner in four attempts.

After his Cleveland Indians bowed four games to none to the New York Giants in the 1954 World Series, Lopez' American League team was nipped 6-5 in the 1955 All-Star game, a 12-inning affair at Milwaukee.

In the 1959 World Series, Lopez' White Sox were trimmed four games to two by the Los Angeles Dodgers. The following summer he took two more trimmings from the National League—5-3 at Kansas City and 6-0 at Yankee Stadium.

The Giants captured the opener behind the combined four-hit pitching of Bob Hendley and Bob Perry while slumpridden Willie McCovey provided the key hit, a two-run homer.
