cook at one of the packing plants at Red Head this spring and following that she plans to open a dress-making parlor in the village.

Mr. Bill Eldershaw, has been on the sick list for quite some time this winter. Now with spring weather just around the corner it is hoped to see him in better health again. He is one of Bristol's best fishermen and that season is getting near.

Mr. Lkyd Cox, that busy business man here who has been in the hospital for several weeks is expected home this week much improved and ready to grapple with the many ups and downs of a big lobster packer.

Mr. Arthur Blaxland was a business visitor to the city last week. Mr. Blaxland, a veteran, has considerable trouble with a bad leg and was forced to resign his position on one of the government dredges two years ago and spent a long time in hospital. Arthur is one of the seven Blaxland brothers that served in the armed forces during the last war.

Funeral arrangements for the late Will Kanahan were not completed when this news was written, owing to the fact one daughter was expected from Maine and two sons from Toronto for the funeral that will be held from his late residence, Morell, east to the Little Flower Church where he was an usher for many, many years.

The very sudden death of Mr. Will Ranahan, occurred early on Sunday morning. He suffered from a heart ailment for some years but his condition was not considered serious and on Sunday morning he was up as usual. He finished his work and had gone to the stable to harness the horse to drive to ten thirty mass at the Little Flower Church when he took a heart attack and passed away in a very short time. He leaves a widow and a grown family.

One day last week as we stood in front of the old Hughes estate here a man walked along and said, "It's a long time, Mister, since the post office was in that building and I wonder where George Hume is now, dead I guess." True it is a long time since the Bristol post office was moved from that old site and a longer time since George Hume, the gentle post master and tailor left Bristol. Thirty-three years have gone since the post office was moved and Mr. P. R. Sinnott, a young man then took on the position and moved the office half way to Morell against the protests of every one. He later moved back near the old site. If memory serves us right, Mr. Hume moved away about a year before his kind wife resigned from the position and moved to the states to reside. But we understand that both Mr. and Mrs. Hume our good friends of a life time are still living. Though well along in the evening of life their memory lives here despite all the years and all the water that has passed under the bridge of time. The old office building still stands and the boxes used for the mails are still there and Mr. and Mrs. George Hume, would be very welcome visitors here once again after all these years.

ROME March 18—(Reuters)—Thousands of placard-waving students streamed through the streets of Rome and Naples Saturday, yelling for the return to Italy of the Free Territory of Trieste. Police in the capital broke up an attempt by the students to storm the United States Embassy and the Yugoslav Legation.

WARSAW, March 15—(AP)—Two Poles were sentenced to death today by a military court at Szczecin on charges of spying for the former British vice-consul, Joseph Walters. A third man was sentenced to life imprisonment and two others to 15 and four years respectively. The court said they confessed.

NEW YORK, March 21—(CP)—The Canadian dollar was down 1/2 cent at a discount of 4 1/2 per cent in terms of United States funds in closing foreign exchange dealings today. The pound sterling was unchanged at $2.80 1/2.
