A Bully Es-capeade.

MR. WILLIAM YOUNG, of Kingsboro, Lot 47, is the owner of a very fine graded bull. The animal was kept on tether with a ring through his nose. Occasionally a neighbor would take him to board for a while. Being of a kindly disposition and docile, he was easily led from one place to another by a small cord tied to the ring in his nose. On Wednesday evening last, during the owner's absence at the shore, a young lad by the name of Keley called for the bull, alleging that he had been sent by a farmer who resides at South Lake. Into his charge the bull was given, but instead of leading him East, he led him West, fetching him to Souris, where he sold him to one of the resident butchers for the sum of fifteen dollars, part credit and part cash down. Keley then thought he would enjoy himself a little, so he invested a part of his money in something stronger than tea. The night passed away pleasantly enough, but the morning came, and with it the man in search of the stolen bull. After hunting round a little, the bull was found tied to a fence and living. At this juncture Keley took in the situation and took to his heels, running along the railway track with the swiftness of a trained racer. He was pursued, however, and brought back to Souris by the big watchmaker and some small boys, and handed over to the J. P.'s, or rather to a constable. Meantime the butcher went to East Point where the culprit hailed from, with the view of getting his money back in some shape or other. The result was that about dark the owner of the bull obtained possession of his property, and started for home satisfied. The culprit was kept in custody, but through the night, by means of a ladder placed against the sill of an upstairs window, he made his escape.
Keley, we need scarcely say, is not the man of motor fame.

The Mortality of Liquor Sellers.

A physician has been making investigations to ascertain what proportion the life expectation and the frequency of certain causes of death among alcohol dealers would exhibit in comparison with the other population of the same age and of the same sex. He has had access to the statistical material of the Royal Bureau of Statistics, to which all the numerous register offices of Prussia have sent the death records for the years 1879-1883 of all persons who were engaged in the manufacturing and selling of alcoholic beverages. The number amounted to 14,295 males, of whom 13,528 were over twenty-five years of age. The life expectation in Prussia has been as follows:

At the age of	Among the male population in general (1816-1869)	Among those more or less engaged in the alcohol trade.
25 years	32.08 years.	26.23 years.
35 years	25.92 years.	21.01 years.
45 years	19.92 years.	15.19 years.
55 years	14.45 years.	11.16 years.
65 years	8.75 years.	8.04 years.

In pointing out the particular diseases which have been the causes of death, the following table will show the proportion:

Retail liquor sellers are not insurable risks, in the opinion of American life insurance companies. Whether they are sellers who sit in a counting-room, or who stand behind a bar, or who experienced company wants to insure them. Some say that the beer made in this country is more deleterious than beer made in Germany, and that beer drinkers and beer sellers there are better risks than they are here. The Insurance Gazette says: "But experience has taught our companies that it is not prudent to insure a man whose business is the handling of retail packages of any kind of intoxicating liquor."

In Brief, And to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.
Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.
Remember: No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

The enormous duties do not exclude British iron from the markets of the United States. The official bulletin of the Iron and Steel Association shows that during the half year ending June 30th the consumption of what is called domestic pig was less by 200,000 tons than during the preceding six months. This was caused by an increase in the import of pig from 129,654 tons in the last half of 1886 to 223,000 tons in the first half of 1887, and an increase in the imports of manufactured iron from 329,662 tons to 434,000 tons.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

Powderly on Rum.

Now a word about the cause of the laboring man—strong drink. Had I 10,000,000 tongues and a throat for each tongue I would say to each man, woman and child here to-night: "Throw strong drink aside as you would an ounce of liquid hell. (Tremendous applause.) It sears the conscience; it destroys everything it touches; it reaches into the family circle and takes the wife you have sworn to protect and drags her down from her pinnacle of purity into that house which no decent woman goes alive. (Applause.) It induces the father to take the furniture from his house, exchange it for money at the pawn-shop, and spend the proceeds in rum. It damns everything it touches. I have seen it in every city east of the Mississippi, and I know that the most damning curse to the laborer is that which gurgles from the neck of the bottle. (Cheers.) I had rather be at the head of an organization having 100,000 temperate, honest, earnest men, than at the head of an organization of 12,000,000 drinkers, whether moderate or any other kind."

Over an Embankment.

A Winnipeg despatch says: "A heavily laden freight train came thundering round a curve on the Canadian Pacific Railway, eight miles this side of Hawk Lake at the second trestle point, being known as the Summit, about seven o'clock on the night of the 28th ult. The trestle had been filled in, but the embankment has slid into the lake, carrying with it about twenty yards of track. Engineer George Gould whistled down brakes, but the application came too late, and the engine and ten cars were pitched down the embankment and rolled into the lake. They were frightfully wrecked. The engineer stuck to his post till the train went over the embankment, he then jumped with it. He escaped miraculously with a fracture of rib and other more trifling injuries. The accident caused considerable stoppage of traffic."

Home Rule.

An Irish landlord writing to the London Times says that a Home Rule spirit has sprung up among some of the Irish land owners in consequence of the concessions being made by Salisbury to the opposition. It is remembered that Parnell gave assurance long ago that the Irish proprietors would be better off under a Dublin Parliament than with Imperial supervision. This great issue is fast coming to a head. Everything that Lord Salisbury has said indicates that he is in a fighting mood, and that he wishes to get before the people once more upon the Home Rule issue. In his address at Norwich a few days ago he went so far as to warn the Conservative Party to prepare for a possible dissolution. Parliament, he said, had often met with an early termination when its life seemed endangered, and the Conservative Party must organize to instruct the people against the election of the separatist apostles who are only too numerous.

The Panama Canal.

Lieut. Charles C. Rogers of the United States navy, who made a tour of inspection of the canal with Charles DeLesseps makes a report exceedingly unfavorable to the project. He declares that with all the men, machines and money necessary for the work it would require seven years of the hardest work to finish the canal. He estimates the remaining expense at not less than $275,000,000. Unfavorable as Lieut. Roger's report is it is not as discouraging as that of R. Nelson Boyd, a member of the London institute of civil engineers. He estimates that the entire excavation for the canal will reach 150,000,000 cubic meters, of which one-fifth has been excavated and at the present rate of excavation ten years will be required to complete this work.

The United Free Methodists of Great Britain at the recent Assembly at Louth received the following resolution with the greatest enthusiasm:

"That the Assembly records its emphatic condemnation of the policy of coercion for Ireland, believing that the constitutional liberties of the Irish people would be forfeited by the passing of such a measure; and, further that it is the profound conviction of the Assembly that the policy of Home Rule for Ireland advocated by Mr. Gladstone is the only solution of the Irish question."

Mr. Blaine, who is at present starring in Scotland, has taken occasion to say a great many very civil things of his hosts. In a recent speech he said that "the men of Scotch blood in America are far more numerous than they are in Scotland and no portion of the inhabitants have contributed more to the general welfare of the republic, have established higher character, and have exhibited in all great fields of labor for progressive talent. We must never forget in reckoning the immense influence which Scotch blood has in the liberty-loving character of the people."

The German and Prussian Parliaments have voted together $39,000,000 to dig the North Sea and Baltic Canal through Schleswig-Holstein. Of this Prussia contributes $12,500,000 outside of her quota in the imperial vote, her contribution representing the cost of fortifying the canal. "Not so much trade as war traffic," is the government's maxim. The canal will double the effectiveness of the German navy in war time.

Farmers in the States who have been led by the prevailing low prices of late to plant less tobacco than usual this year, will not be specially pleased with themselves over the sudden and remarkable rise in prices for the local, but general, and a drouth down South comes in handy to assist in making a corner possible.

A large number of members of the British House of Commons have signed the memorial in favor of a Pacific mail subsidy. Sir Charles Tupper has interviewed Mr. Goschen on the subject.
