

Welcome From a New Editor

Mélanie Bernard
Managing Editor

Being the managing editor of the Cadre this year is an honour.

For the last three years I have been working towards this. I graduated high school and I knew I wanted to go to university right away to get it over with. So I started at UPEI in the fall of 2003 as a student in the Print Media program.

This program requires me to complete one year at UPEI, two at Holland College in the Journalism program where a diploma in Newspaper Reporting must be obtained and a final year at UPEI. That's where I am now. So when I found out I'd be the managing editor of the Cadre, I was thrilled.

I am here to put my education in journalism to work. Journalism isn't a field of work people go into for the money, because there isn't any. It's not about making a difference in the world, because that rarely happens. It isn't about the fame, because very few of us will make it in the big leagues and we will not become household names like Peter Mansbridge. It seems harsh, but these are the realities.

I'm in this because I love it and that's really the only reason most journalists do it.

This year, I hope to bring you guys some stories that really matter to you. If you see me around and I don't look like I'm rushing to get to a class, let me know what you think and if you have any ideas, let me know. This is your paper, and the staff at the Cadre want to bring you what you want to read.

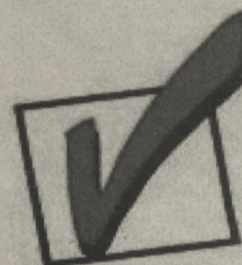

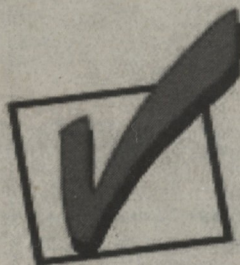

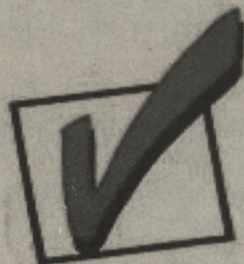

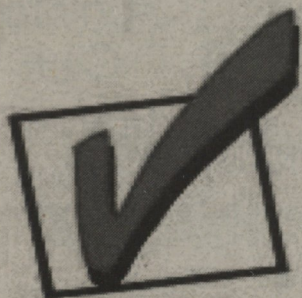

I look forward to working with all the great students here and I know it's going to be a blast!
