

Britain Is Arming The RAF With Hydrogen Bombs

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON (CP) — Britain reaffirmed her faith in the nuclear deterrent Thursday and announced she is producing her own hydrogen bombs and delivering them to the Royal Air Force.

The annual defence white paper said the Western nations must understand that if Russia were to launch a major attack even with conventional forces they would have to hit back with strategic nuclear weapons.

"It is best that these stark facts should be stated plainly; since the one thing which might conceivably tempt the Soviet Union into military adventure would be the erroneous belief that the West, if attacked, would flinch from using its nuclear power."

The white paper, tabled in the Commons by Defence Minister Sandys, does no more than outline what is known to be the basic strategic policy of the NATO powers. It states plainly the West will never start a war against Russia.

WILL DEFEND SELVES

But it bristles with emphasis of Britain's determination to defend herself.

The announcement that hydrogen bombs are actually being developed to Britain's bomber force came as a surprise.

The white paper also announced that a British ballistic rocket that can be launched from under the ground is being developed on the "highest priority." The rocket, which will be able to carry an H-bomb warhead, is described as "more advanced" than the United States intermediate-range rocket.

No estimate is given of the date the 1,500-mile rocket will be available but it may be significant that arrangements are going ahead for the supply of the U.S. missile to British forces. The white paper says terms of the agreement covering the arrangement will be published shortly.

DEFENCE COSTS DOWN

The paper also said:

1. Defence estimates for the year starting April 5, 1958, will amount to £1,445,000,000 before receipts for costs of the British forces in Germany. This compares with the 1957-58 defence estimates of £1,483,000,000.
2. Increases in pay and allowances will give an unwarmed private enlisting for a six-year engagement with the regular forces a basic monthly pay of £5 15s 6d—24 shillings and sixpence more than the previous rate.

The navy will have a balanced all-purpose fleet of "appreciable strength" based on Singapore but naval forces in the Atlantic and Mediterranean will be equipped predominantly for anti-submarine warfare.

Death Of Mrs. J. W. Phillips Here Thursday

The death of Mrs. John W. Phillips occurred yesterday afternoon at her home 55 Upper Prince Street. Death came after a long and painful illness which she bore with the Christian fortitude she had developed throughout her life.

Mrs. Phillips, formerly Catherine Nicholson, was born in Darlington on April 4, 1886, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholson. On her father's death some four years later she went to live with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. David Rennie, Darlington, with whom she resided until her marriage.

She was married in 1954 to John W. Phillips of Charlottetown who is left to mourn her passing. There are no children.

In her youth she was an earnest and faithful Christian worker in Young People's Society and in other phases of the work of the Presbyterian Church in Hantsville. In Charlottetown her religious affiliation was with Zion Presbyterian Church.

Besides her sorrowing husband she leaves to mourn her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Rennie; her mother, who is now Mrs. H.C. Bernard of Charlottetown; her brother Randolph of Charlottetown; a half-sister Mary Bernard, and a wide circle of friends.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the MacLean Funeral Home to Zion Presbyterian Church, service starting at 2 o'clock.

Noted Racing Sportsman, Dr. Hooper Dies At Boston

Friends in Charlottetown, in particular, members of the local horseracing fraternity, were sorry to learn of the sudden passing of Dr. Harry C. Hooper.

Dr. Hooper who was in his 59th year, died suddenly in Boston on Jan. 16.

Born in Charlottetown, he was a son of the late Henry C. Hooper and Mrs. Hooper, the former Matilda Grace MacCoubrey.

Every summer the late Dr. Hooper spent several weeks relaxing in his native city. The late doctor was an ardent horseracing fan and during his vacations here was a regular patron of the local track.

The large number of friends, professional associates and former schoolmates that attended his funeral attested to the great esteem in which the late Dr. Hooper was held in his adopted City.

Obtaining his primary education in West Kent School the late Dr. Hooper entered business college and following graduation accepted a position with the Civil Service, finally being appointed a railway mail clerk.

Later he left this employment and entered Saint Dunstan's College. Having obtained his B.A. degree, the late Dr. Hooper then entered Tufts College in Boston, graduating from that institution with the degree of Dental Medical Surgeon.

He spent his entire professional career as a practicing dentist in Lynn, Mass.

Dr. Hooper is survived by one brother, George R. Hooper, Charlottetown; and two sisters: Ruth, Mrs. Lawrence R. Clarke, Wayland, Mass.; Grace Matilda, Mrs. J. Frank Hobbs, Charlottetown.

Three brothers, Fred, Bert and Brent, predeceased him some years ago.

Burial took place in Wayland, Mass.

St. Paul's Church Loyalty Dinner Held Last Evening

The loyalty dinner of the members of St. Paul's Anglican Church as a prelude to the consolidated fund raising effort inaugurated last night, brought 225 members together in a memorable session at the Charlottetown Hotel.

Dr. F. W. Jelks, general chairman occupied the chair and successively called on committee heads to deal with their respective charges in the light of the overall objective.

A. James Haslam dealt with the replacements necessary in the whole church property particularly the heating and electric wiring and stressing the danger of irreparable loss should the beautiful stained glass windows be allowed to deteriorate further.

Ivan Horne said that giving freely would have a tremendous influence on the spiritual life of the church as he urged a concentrated effort of all to meet the requirements set forth.

Arthur Hogan urged that satisfaction giving according to the dictates of conscience would more than achieve the desired end of the fund raising movement.

Rev. A. E. Kingsbury, Rector of the Anglican Church at St. Lawrence, N.S. vividly described the reverses there beginning with the MacGregor Mine disaster in 1952 and subsequent discouraging happenings and the closing of mines and loss of employment.

"Faith in your undertaking, with prayer and sacrifice will bring you success and sufficient to carry out unplanned work, as we were able to do recently," Mr. Kingsbury said.

"It is our responsibility to fill the needs of our day in Christian Stewardship as an aggressive force in our Church and the Christian faith," George Ives said in stressing the question "How much shall I give?"

"I am absolutely thrilled by the activities and leadership given by the young people of St. Paul's not only in the Parish but in the activities of the Diocese," Rev. Canon Ibbott said in a brief address which concluded the meeting. "St. Paul's was given to us and did not cost us a cent. I am looking forward to its new which will deepen our acceptance of a responsible whole spiritual life and make your church one of which you and your children may well be proud."

The hostess committee consisted of Mrs. G. A. Purvis, Mrs. A. J. Haslam, Mrs. Arthur Hogan and Mrs. W. E. Scantlebury.

The meeting was closed with the reciting of the canvass prayer in unison followed by the Benediction by the Rector.

N. S. Liberal Opposition Moves Non-Confidence Vote

HALIFAX (CP) — Opposition leader Henry Hicks expressed lack of confidence in employment, agricultural and forests policies of the Progressive Conservative government in the Nova Scotia legislature Thursday.

A formal motion censuring the government was proposed by the Liberal leader.

"This is a do-nothing, post-pone, pass-the-buck government," Mr. Hicks said.

"If all the references in the speech from the throne to reviews of projects started by the previous Liberal government and to federal-provincial arrangements were removed, you would have a speech of about three paragraphs."

His non-confidence motion criticized the government for providing "no program" to deal with unemployment or "the plight on farmers and others who normally derive cash incomes from the sale of forest products."

LIBERAL RECORD BETTER

The former premier said that in November, 1956, when his government was defeated at the polls, employment and production were "at their highest point."

"The trends of that time are being reversed now. The only thing on the increase in Nova Scotia today is unemployment. There are 27,076 more Nova Scotians looking for jobs than in 1956 before the Liberals were defeated."

Mr. Hicks criticized provincial-municipal relations, federal-provincial agreements, patronage and an agreement between the government and Premier Robert L. Stanfield and Nova Scotia Pulp Ltd., a company backed by Sweden's world-circling Stora Kopparberg Corporation.

"We shall welcome Nova Scotia Pulp Ltd.," he said. "But I believe the present government has made a bad bargain in terms of the price received for Crown lands... which will result not only in smaller revenues than ought to be paid to the provincial treasurer but may well contribute toward depressing the value of the lands of every woodlot owner in Nova Scotia."

PRAS (AP) — Brigitte Bardot has a wardrobe of 100 gowns from top fashion houses, but none of them has ever done a thing for her.

Her fame, now world-wide, rests on her being the best undressed woman in France.

"The success of my films," purred Brigitte, slipping a lounging robe off her glistening shoulders, "proves that being nude is formidable."

Request Government Share Cost Of Foster Children

A request that private welfare agencies be reimbursed for the money they pay to foster-parents at the same per diem rate as is paid directly to foster-parents by the Provincial Department of Welfare when the department administers the placement of children in foster homes, was made to the Government yesterday by a delegation representing three welfare agencies in the province.

The presentation was made by the directors of the Catholic Family Center, the Protestant Family Service and the Prince County Catholic Welfare Agency.

Those presenting the brief included Walter Baker, director of the Protestant Family Service Bureau, Dr. Brendan O'Grady of the Catholic Family Center and Henry Wedge and Lorne Driscoll of the Prince County Catholic Welfare Bureau. Contacted last night, Mr. Baker said the delegation received a sympathetic hearing.

Their brief emphasized that while the three agencies are not legally required to handle foster-home cases, they are morally enjoined to do so by the terms of their charters and the expressed wishes of the public. The brief stated that experience to date has indicated that the welfare agencies concerned have proven their professional competence to deal with such problems. It added that a continuation and further development of co-operative action on the part of the governmental and private agencies in child welfare is emphatically desirable.

In making what they described as "such a reasonable request" the directors contended that "if the per diem rate were paid to the private agencies in repayment for their expenditures for maintenance of children they have placed in foster care, the work of the Provincial Department of Welfare would be appreciably lessened." It would then be financially feasible for the private agencies to process many cases which are now being cared for by the department there. They added that voluntary action of the private agencies would almost certainly result in "saving of significant sums of money to the public."

They offered as evidence the evidence the fact that the policy of the private agencies is to place responsibility for providing for children "on the parents, where the responsibility belongs" and therefore "it is the practice wherever good case work warrants, to collect expenses directly from parents of children placed in foster homes."

In the second place they offered as evidence the fact that cost of administration and travel incurred in the processing of such cases is not charged to the clients themselves nor to the government.

Thus the agencies argued, they are not asking for anything for themselves but are offering a continuation of their co-operative effort with the government in the "provision of competent, professional social services." They request "a reasonable extension of the accepted principle of per diem payments for maintenance of children in foster-home care."

B. I. S. Monthly Meeting Held

The February meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society was held last night with a small turnout of members due to the inclement weather. The president J. Pius Callaghan informed the meeting that rehearsals for the play "Red Headed Pat" were progressing very favourably and that the members could be assured of another Irish hit come March 15th and 17th at the Community Centre. He stated that tickets would be given out to the members shortly and would be placed in convenient locations in the City.

The St. Patrick's parade will be held on Sunday March 16th. The Emerald Branch of the B. I. S. are expected to swell the ranks of the marching Irish. Chief Marshall William McGarron asked the members to aid him in procuring silk hats for the occasion and to inform him if they owned one so that he would have an accurate count and not run short on the day of the parade.

Reports of the various committee chairmen were heard and adopted.

JUST WHO IS SIMPLE MINDED

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. W. S. MacLay, principal medical health officer of Britain's ministry of health, said Wednesday doctors' reasons for certifying a patient as being of unsound mind "often make one wonder whether it is the doctor or the patient who should be certified."

Dr. MacLay addressed the first Canadian Mental Hospital Institute, made up of some 150 psychiatrists and doctors.

He cited an example of the reason given for keeping a man in a mental hospital:

"He (the patient) is simple-minded. States that his wife, whom he last saw four years ago, is going to have a baby in the spring."
