

character of the Mackerel has been uniform and reliable, and in many cases has brought higher prices than Mackerel inspected in Mass. We think the character of the fish has improved this year. As far as we have met the different brands, they have proved reliable. In previous years the inspection of Mackerel at P. E. I. has not been so good as this; and we think the improvement is due to the recent laws for inspection there.

Vary truly yours,

MEAS. WISE & RUSSELL:
GENTS.—Your note received respecting the character of Mackerel, Alewives, &c., packed the last season at P. E. Island. As we have purchased several lots of these mackerel of you we can answer your enquiries with pleasure. To your first question, we reply that the character has been superior to our Mass. inspection of the same number. Secondly: The market value has, in our opinion, been much improved by the Inspection Law of the Island, and the extent of their being carefully sought for in preference to our own fish. Thirdly: As far as our experience goes, we have found the different brands perfectly reliable. Fourthly: The character of the P. E. Island fish previous to the Inspection Law of 1865 was unreliable, and we think the improvement due to the new Inspection Law of the Island, without doubt. We shall be happy to furnish you with further information on this subject if you desire it.

Yours truly,
(Signed) CHAS. H. MANSFIELD & Co.,

MEAS. WISE & RUSSELL:
GENTS.—In reply to yours of the 23rd we would state that the character of the Picked Fish the past season has been good, and the inspection much improved from past years, so much so, we have preferred buying this inspection to many others.

The brands we have received from the Island have been reliable, and none, to our knowledge, have been otherwise. Previous to this year we could not rely upon the Brands received from the Island, and were obliged to examine every lot very carefully before buying them, and, in our opinion, the cause of the change is in reason of an uniform Inspection Law.

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. O. CHURCHILL & Co.,

THE RAILWAY CONTROVERSY.
MR. EDITOR—

There are some people who will take part in newspaper controversies, though untaught by nature and education for literary efforts, they will scribble. They cannot form a single argument, when it is presented to them, they become hopelessly perplexed in trying to follow the simplest train of reasoning. So contacted are their minds that they cannot take an enlarged view of any question. Many of them cannot write a single sentence without committing the most glaring blunders. Still the blockheads will write. If they cannot reason, they can abuse; if they cannot state facts clearly, they can misrepresent them. These gentry deal in the grossest personalities, and glory in inventing successful falsehoods. Manifest and honesty are terms which never had a place in their vocabulary. To gain small points by low chicanery and impudent lying is the height of their ambition. To attain their ends there is no advantage too mean for them to seize upon—no work too dirty for them to perform.

A crew of such writers has taken part in the Railway discussion which has lately occupied so large a share of public attention in this community. They, of course, had not a single word to say on the subject under consideration. This was immeasurably beyond the reach of their feeble intellects. But they could abuse those who opposed the project, and they could misstate the facts connected with its agitation. This is what any old woman could do, and this is what they did. One of these worthless writes in Ross's Weekly over the singularly inappropriate signature "Veritas." He is evidently the most spiteful and envious, and at the same time, the most impotent and illiterate, of this class of writers. He makes the discussion of the Railway question a mere pretext to vent his spite on some of his fellow townsmen who have been so fortunate as to have opposed him. His letter, written in the vilest English, is made the vehicle of much of the senseless slander and petty gossip of the town of Summerside. He drags matter into the controversy which has no more connection with Railways on this Island than with the Fenian movement in the United States. He complains of the unfairness of attacking private character over an anonymous signature; yet he attacks in this cowardly manner some of the most enterprising, the most intelligent, and the most respectable business men of Summerside. "Veritas" convicts himself. By his own showing he belongs to a class of literary assassins that forms one of the greatest nuisances with which society in these days is pestered. He complains of the Summerside Journal lending itself to the dirty work of personal detraction. This is not true. The pages of the Journal have not yet—except in one solitary instance—been defiled by attacks on private character; but he spreads his fifth broad-cast over the columns of Ross's Weekly. He makes Mr. Ross the dupe which he asserts others have to make of the Editor of the Journal, with this very material difference: Messrs. Beattie and Bernard try their best to rectify a blunder inadvertently made, while Mr. Ross gives the widest circulation to an anonymous and ungenerous attack upon private character, and upon a youthful and an unassuming contemporary.

The communication signed "Justice" in the same paper is much less offensive in its tone, and much better written than the incubation of the erudite "Veritas"; but it is quite evident that he has not a very clear idea of the meaning of the term "definite," and that he considers the words "conclusion" and "resolution" to be synonymous. Besides, does he not see that he places himself in a very awkward and unlighted position by undertaking for Mr. Hunt a justification which he is either too prudent or too conscientious to write for himself. "Justice" should have allowed Mr. Hunt to do his own dirty work.

The star of the Islander completes the trio. This genius is evidently some village pick-ninny, who has somewhere in his travels picked up the wonderful piece of information that your correspondent, "A Proser," is the St. Elcanor's Schoolmaster. If the fellow were not an unmitigated jackass, he would have known that it did not in the least concern the public to know who "Proser" is. If his letters were well written, it would be of little importance to the readers of the Examiner whether the writer is a tinker, a tailor, or a candlestick-maker; and if they were badly written, the circumstance of their author being even so great a dignitary as a Justice of the Peace would not make them good reading. Yet, this ignorant, pompous fool takes upon himself to lecture the talented editor of the Examiner as to what he should and what he should not admit into the columns of the journal which he conducts with such marked ability!

But the "bright particular star" is not all a fool. There is a very considerable spice of the knave in his composition. Whether the knave or fool is most prominent in the following barbed literary forgery, I will leave the readers of the Examiner to determine. My private opinion is that the fool predominates; but I confess the question is a nice one. The star writes "that one resolution only was submitted" (at the first Railway Meeting held in Summerside, viz:—) "That in the opinion of the meeting, the time had arrived for the Government to enter upon the construction of a Railroad from the Western to the Eastern end of this Island." This is plain enough. There is no ambiguity here. The above, according to the very truthful star, was the only resolution submitted to the meeting. What would your readers think of the man who would willfully falsify a resolution of a public meeting to suit his own views? What would the learned, pious and Reverend editor of the Islander think of the man who would commit such a flagrant breach of the ninth commandment? Well, such a breach does his favoured correspondent and valiant bottle-holder unblushingly commit. No such resolution as that above quoted was submitted to the meeting. The resolution that was submitted, was the following—(I quote from a letter in the Summerside Journal, signed "Harry C. Green")—"That the time had arrived for the Government to take into consideration the propriety of constructing railroads on the Island." Let the reader compare the wording of the two resolutions. The star's so definite, the Chairman's so general in its terms. The cunning little star, to make out his case, and to misrepresent the public opinion of Summerside with regard to Railways, stily—very stily indeed—put a resolution of his own manufacture in place of the one really submitted to the meeting by the Chairman, Harry C. Green, Esq. This is bearing false witness with a vengeance.

Apologising for occupying so much of your space in noticing what is really too contemptible for serious criticism,

I am, yours truly,
A PLAIN TALKER.
Prince County, March 10.

SUMMERSIDE BANK.
MR. EDITOR—

Sir,—I observed a communication in the Weekly of Thursday last signed "Spectator," treating on Summerside affairs, but more particularly alluding to the Bank lately established in that flourishing town. "Spectator" complains that some of the Directors are not fit to fill the responsible office to which they have been elevated by the stockholders; and seems much annoyed that the note of a certain individual, who, by his own admission, has withdrawn the largest portion of his business from that part of the Island, was rejected, and therefore wishes to frighten parties holding stock into selling out before that gentleman arrives from England, and in the meantime threatens to crush the young institution.

"Spectator's" letter fully convinces me that the right men are in the right places. The Bank was established to accommodate principally persons residing and doing business at the west end of the Island; and the Directors, in my opinion, are perfectly right to confine the business of the Bank, as much as possible, to that locality; and, besides, I admire their discretion in not making heavy advances at the present stage of their proceedings, to persons largely engaged in shipbuilding.

It is very singular that everything calculated to improve our condition, in a mercantile point of view, receives so much opposition from persons who should be the very ones to foster and encourage them. But such is the case; and some men are not content unless they receive the lion's share. All young institutions, like young children, require careful nursing, and very many of both have been lost to the world by requiring of them more than their limited strength would admit of. I feel assured, Sir, that when the time arrives for the Directors of the Summerside Bank to give an account of their stewardship, they will be in a position to receive the thanks of those who have honored them with their confidence—"Spectator" to the contrary notwithstanding.

Yours, &c.
A STOCKHOLDER.
Charlottetown, March 9.

MR. WHELAN—

Sir,—My dream brought me to the new Market House premises, and on looking round, an imp sat on a big stone, reading a sort of handbill. Approaching him, he rolled up the handbill, and the paper, with the question: "Will you contract, Mister?" On looking at the paper it read thus: "Contracts will be entered into with persons wishing to obtain MODEL MARKET HOUSES, such as the one on Queen's Square, (known as the Patent Meat Safe) and that on the corner of Richmond and Great George Streets, known as the Rats' Nest! If the purchasers of these highly finished, spacious and beautifully ornamented and ventilated buildings, design taking them to the Western end of this Island, they must enter into bonds to forward them by the Summerside Railway, not later than one week after it is in full operation; or if they are designed to be taken out of the Colony, similar bonds must be entered into for their being conveyed by the very earliest train through the Northumberland Strait Tunnel! Meantime they must have a perfect running on the canal from the Hillsborough River to St. Peter's Bay, to enable the natives in the interior, who have never seen these noble structures, to have a squint at them, free of cost."

Turning over this bill, the other side had the following:—"Contracts will be entered into with persons willing to clean the Market Square and adjoining streets, taking the manure at the highest price per cord!"

"N. B. The party obtaining this contract will take notice that he must not commence operations till the members of the Corporation, with the "honour and interests" of the City at their head, are nearly knee-deep in the accumulating filth on these respective premises."

Yours truly,
SLEEPER.

FLAX!
TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER.

Sir,—Being in correspondence with firms in England engaged in the manufacture of FLAX, who have solicited my forwarding them samples of Flax grown on the Island, I shall be glad if any of your readers, who may have cultivated Flax this past season, will send to my office a small portion thereof, that I may be enabled, by remitting it to England, to ascertain more fully its quality and value, and to determine from the report I may receive whether I may not more earnestly than ever urge upon our farmers the cultivation of Flax.

Yours truly,
JOHN ALDOUS,
Land Office, 10th March, 1866.

FOR THE EXAMINER.
THE WATCHER.

Low bending o'er the couch of death,
A grief-worn, stricken mother lay,
To gather, from the struggling breath,
The words her dying child would say.

The rising sun its radiance threw
Upon that maiden's fragile form;
And rose-buds, decked with glittering dew,
Breath'd forth their fragrance from the lawn.

The little birds, so still before,
From blooming trees their matins raise,
And seem, in sympathy, to pour
A softer, richer song of praise.

The dying girl, aroused awhile
By strains she fondly loved to hear,
Kissed her dear parent, with a smile,
And sought her breaking heart to cheer.

Sweet music, mother!—soon to cease—
But sweeter far I hear on high—
Glad strains of welcome, joy and peace,
To cheer my spirit, ere I die.

O, mother dear, forbear to weep,
Love cannot stay the parting breath;
Say, what is death? but lengthened sleep,
To wake in heaven, as Jesus saith.

A little while, and we shall meet
Where pain and grief are never known—
To worship at Immanuel's feet:
Again to know, as we are known.

Ere the poor mother could reply,
The guileless spirit of the maiden past,
To dwell with ransomed souls on high,
Long as Eternity shall last.

FOR THE EXAMINER.
MR. EDITOR:

As the Union of the Colonies, the Tenant League and the Reciprocity Treaty, though once receiving so much public attention, are now in a great measure nearly forgotten, and as, through the scarcity and dearth of cotton, the cultivation of Flax should be now the prevailing order of the day, and a desirable beneficial order, it, therefore, as the columns of the Examiner are always open for the development of any subject which may tend to advance the interests of the Island or to ameliorate existing grievances, acting on these premises, I hope you will give insertion to the following, which lately came under my observation, on the cultivation of Flax in Ireland, which statistics are taken from the report furnished by the Registrar General, Wm. Donnelly, Esq., with a return showing in statute acre the extent under flax in 1850 to 1861. The total acreage grown in Ulster in 1850 was 123,421; and in 1861, 143,036; showing an increase of 19,615; in Leinster in 1850 the number grown were 1,289 acres, and 1861, 1,143; decrease 146; in Connaught the number were in 1850, 2,216; and in 1861, 2,169, leaving a decrease of 47 acres; and in Munster in 1850, the number grown was 1,885; and in 1861, 1,518; showing a decrease of 148 acres. The total acreage in 1850, was 128,505, and in 1861, 147,806 acres, showing an increase in the latter year of 19,271 acres; the excess arising in Ulster. These tables show the extent of flax grown in Ireland from 1854 as follows: 1854, 151,403 acres; 1855, 157,975 acres; 1856, 166,311 acres; 1857, 167,921 acres; 1858, 171,646 acres; 1859, 136,282 acres; 1860, 128,529 acres; and in 1861, 147,806 acres. I hope Mr. Warburton, who is so tolerably conversant with Irish affairs, and who may have the reports of the number of acres under cultivation of the succeeding years up to 1865, will furnish through the columns of the Examiner the statistics of the number of acres now under cultivation, for there must be a great deal more, owing to scarcity of cotton, in consequence of the late disastrous American war. Any information of this nature ought to stimulate the energies of the inhabitants of this beautiful little Island, to set their shoulders to the wheel and exert all the means in their power for cultivating this useful and beneficial article, for next to Education, it ought to engage public attention. I think it may be desirable that the Legislature, at its next sitting, would take this subject into consideration, by giving a small bounty as an encouragement for its cultivation, for it is quite obvious that the soil and climate are well adapted for raising flax; in short, by perseverance and industry, we would not only raise enough for domestic use, but also have some for exportation, especially as our Yankee neighbours are now on the verge of casting us aside; therefore our only course now is to sail in the haven of our own resources, which eventually may turn out to our own benefit and happiness, which no doubt would be the case, as the fair daughters of this Sea Gem Isle of the West are eminently qualified and capable for its manipulation; besides it would be a regular absurdity, as machinery would be soon introduced and Flax Mills established for its perfection. It believes all this to be well united in order to show a strong and bold front; and as the press is the vanguard of mostly every progress and improvement, it should be very desirable and necessary that it should display its strategic tactics, in order to put us in a proper position, so as to be able to outtalk our opponents, and not to be their craving supplicants no longer. I hope it may not be deemed presumptuous of me to say, it would be better that the powerful aid of the press would be brought to bear upon this measure, than in the discussions of the visionary and expensive projects of railroads, tunnels and canals, which at present is only leading to bitterness, strife and contention, in place of advancing the public weal.

As I have already, Mr. Editor, rather trespass too much upon the columns of your able and well-conducted periodical, I will conclude by quoting these beautiful lines of the poet—

"It is to the pen and press we mortals owe
All that we have and all we seem to know."

To which I may add—

Though I am weak and low,
Cultivate Flax, and you will give Yank a blow.
In spite of reciprocity, I will give Yank
Flax will conquer, and in the end prevail.
King Cotton's rule will be soon dead and gone,
And flax will set a new mode of gold on;
It will grow and flourish in our verdant clades,
And give employment to our lovely maids.
I will say no more, hoping some able man
Will take up his pen and this subject truly scan.

I remain, Sir, yours truly,
JAMES H. FITZGERALD.
Mount Hemlock, March 7, 1866.

P. S.—It is extraordinary, notwithstanding the numerous editorials of the press, that none, with the exception of Mr. Warburton, have advertised to the cultivation of the above beneficial staple of husbandry; and although that gentleman and myself are not sons of the soil, still we deem it our duty to develop and support any measure which may tend to benefit the people of this our adopted home.

HON. E. WHELAN:

Dear Sir,—I had occasion to visit St. John's, Newfoundland, last fall, and while there I became acquainted with a young man whose name was Andrew B. McNeill, of Georgetown, P. E. I. Since I arrived home I have been informed by a friend of mine in St. John's, that said A. B. McNeill, while making his way to a vessel in the quarantine, unfortunately fell over a wharf and got drowned. It may be considered to his friends and relatives at home and abroad to learn of his whereabouts; you will therefore be kind enough to convey the above facts to them, through the Examiner, and oblige.

Your most obt. serv't,
MICHAEL KILBRIDE,

LATE NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.
BOSTON, March 2.

New York, March 2.—Col. O'Mahony's call by the Fenians was responded to by largely attended meetings of all the Circles, which were held last night.

Worcester, Mass., 2d.—The Fenians of Massachusetts are on the alert. The news by the steamer last night caused great excitement here. Major M. S. McConnell, State Centre of Massachusetts, has issued a call to the Brotherhood in the State to be ready for immediate action. Gold 136.

BOSTON, March 3.

New York, 3d.—Col. Roberts, one of the Presidents of the Fenian Brotherhood, issues an appeal to the members of the order. He says—"England is seeking to crush out a rebellion here; it is well known, by killing her jills with patriots," and asks, "if Irishmen in America will stand idly by? Come forward to fight the common foe in the only way in which military aid can reach them. Not a moment is to be lost. Your prompt assistance will enable us to take the field within blank days. Let men who will fight report to Gen. Sweeney, and those who can contribute, send their money at once to these headquarters, for which they will receive Irish National bonds." Gold 134 1/2.

WASHINGTON, March 3.

Capt. John McCarty, late a State prisoner in Ireland and a special envoy of James Stephens, has caused quite a commotion among the Fenians of this city. He spoke in a subjugation immense meeting called to express the indignation of the Fenians of the Fenian Corps in Ireland. Other gentlemen also delivered speeches strongly denouncing the British Government. Fifty thousand dollars worth of bonds of the Irish Republic were sold at the meeting, and cheers were given for James Stephens and President Johnson, and were given with much enthusiasm.

The Captain said he had imparted information to a secret meeting of the Fenians, which he hoped would not be communicated to the public. The Captain had a long and interesting interview with the President of the United States, and will call on him again at an early day. Gold 132 1/2.

NEW YORK, March 4.

Notwithstanding the circulars which the Archbishop of New York sent to the clergy of the Roman Catholic Church on Saturday, and caused to be read in all the churches, admonishing Catholics in regard to the meeting to be held in Jones' Woods, there was an immense meeting of Fenians present at the time and since headed by the Rev. Head Center. Several city railroad cars were broken down by the crowds of people, and 100,000 people were present on the grounds at 3 o'clock, and it was consequently one of the largest meetings ever held on this continent. Upwards of 200 circles were represented. Four stands were erected for the speakers. Judge Connolly presided at the principal stand. Speeches were made by George Francis Train, Col. O'Mahony, Judge Connolly, and many others. They were nearly all of the same burden—money was wanted. The enthusiasm was emboldened, and no serious disturbance occurred.
