

THE DAILY EXAMINER. JUNE 27, 1887.

The Queen's Jubilee.

We insert the letter of "Fontenoy" with pleasure. "Fontenoy" is quite right in supposing that the editor of THE EXAMINER is anxious that no reason or excuse whatever should be given the enemies of the Irish people for charging them with disloyalty.

"Fontenoy" points out that "individually" the members of the Benevolent Irish Society will take part in the Jubilee celebration. If individually, why not collectively?

"Fontenoy" pleads that a Coercion Bill is now before the British Parliament, and that the Bill, when passed, will be enforced in the most heartless manner by the Government of Queen Victoria.

THE body found in the Jonathan creek, Moncton, Saturday, proves to have been that of Patrick Power, of Merland, Antigonish, N. S., who left his home May 2 for Boston.

QUEEN'S JUBILEE

Services in the City Churches.

Summary of Discourses by Revs. J. M. McLeod, Jas. Carruthers and Job Shenton.

In Zion Church, last evening, Rev. J. M. MacLeod preached from the following text:—Lev. xxv, ii: "A jubilee shall the fiftieth year be unto you."

The first part of the discourse had reference to the Jewish Jubilee. The preacher stated that at the sound of the jubilee trumpet debt was cancelled, prisons released, slaves liberated, and forfeited property restored.

He then stated that the principal purpose for which this text had been chosen was that we might unite with British subjects throughout the world in commemorating a memorable epoch in the annals of our country's history: the fiftieth anniversary of the reign of our beloved Sovereign, Queen Victoria.

The speaker then contrasted the cruel reigns of Queens Mary, Elizabeth and Anne with the peaceful and prosperous reign of Victoria. He stated that the only deep blood stains on the annals of the last fifty years were the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny.

The jubilee services in St. James' Church yesterday were largely attended, both morning and afternoon. The afternoon service was the children's jubilee service, the Sabbath school at Rocky Point uniting with the Sabbath school of St. James Church.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH.

The jubilee services in St. James' Church yesterday were largely attended, both morning and afternoon. The afternoon service was the children's jubilee service, the Sabbath school at Rocky Point uniting with the Sabbath school of St. James Church.

Reference was made to the wars of the period—Tiber, Pass, Crimea, and the Indian Mutiny—and an earnest prayer breathed that war might nevermore stain the escutcheon of civilized nations.

ests and declares that we ought to view ourselves as citizens of the world and extend our benevolence equally to all nations. This position would place man in antagonism to God, who has designed that we should be linked together by natural affection, first to our families and children, next to brothers, sisters, friends and acquaintances, and then to the several societies and communities to which we belong.

He contended that the man who argued against patriotism was devoid of affection, or perhaps wanted to conceal the fact that he actually preferred another country to his own. The preacher pleaded for the good old common sense laws which resolved to love our native country and a firm adherence to that which has ever characterized us as a great nation, viz. the love of the land.

In the second place, in applying these sentiments to the present occasion, he went on to show what reasons we had, as citizens of this great nation, to manifest our loyalty to the crown. He said: From the nature of the British constitution, the attitude of our sovereign is not that of the legislator, or the hero, but of the parent of the people.

Continuing, he drew pictures from her life of piety and sympathy to her subjects and the people of other nations, and concluding said: These are the virtues which we this day acknowledge. I would, therefore, appeal to you all. Born as many of us have been beneath her benign reign; sharing in the honor which the virtues of a Sovereign ever throw over her age, and in the blessings which Heaven sheds upon the throne that is "established in righteousness" carried in all "every year of this long period" as we and all our interests have been in her bosom, and remembered in every day, in every prayer which she has offered up to heaven, ours is now the duty to nourish her old age with the tenderness of children; to guard with jealous love the throne which she fills, alike from foreign and domestic enemies; to press with more affectionate loyalty to our bosom that head over which adversity has shed other sorrows than those of time; to smooth with fond hands that inevitable path which conducts virtue as well as glory to the grave; and to ask with fervent prayer that her remaining course may like the summer sun when he sets at last slowly and serenely in the west amid the blessings of a grateful world.

He then stated that the principal purpose for which this text had been chosen was that we might unite with British subjects throughout the world in commemorating a memorable epoch in the annals of our country's history: the fiftieth anniversary of the reign of our beloved Sovereign, Queen Victoria.

The Strawberry Festival.

THE Strawberry Festival in aid of the Convent de Notre Dame, opened at three o'clock this afternoon and will be continued to-night. The hall has been tastefully decorated for the occasion. The tables fairly groan under the load of good things thereon. Every conceivable delicacy has been provided. Following are the names of the ladies in charge:—

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Queen's Jubilee.

SIR,—In an article in your paper of Thursday last, headed "The Jubilee Celebration," reference is made to the Benevolent Irish Society declining to take part in the "Societies' Procession." You say that its action "lays its members—particularly its leading members—open to the charge by their enemies of disloyalty to Her Majesty's person and government, and is calculated to cool considerably the warm sympathy which has been excited for old Ireland and her wronged people."

In reply to an invitation from the Secretary of the Jubilee Committee, the Benevolent Irish Society some time ago informed the committee that, while not taking part as a Society, that individually they would co-operate and assist in the celebration. The Society, no doubt, considered before they came to this decision. Perhaps it is just as well that they did not decide to take part when requested; for had they consented, they would, I feel sure, at a late date be obliged to reverse their decision, owing to the one-sided shape the celebration has assumed within the last few weeks.

Among other matters, the Masonic Society is requested, by a resolution of the Jubilee Committee, to perform a work in connection with the celebration which, by right and custom, should be performed by the Mayor of the city for the time being. You have not, sir, in the subject we are discussing, said, "it is not too late to correct the mistake, and we are not without hope that it will be done." Oh, no; that would never do. Cardinal Manning's good opinion of His Eminence is given in your article. What, I ask, sir, would be the opinion of His Eminence as to the corner stone of a public building being laid, on an occasion of this kind, by a Society that is disapproved of by the Church which has appointed him as a teacher and guide for his people. "It is a poor rule that does not work both ways."

"Even the Orange Society," you tell us, "which has never been able to obtain official recognition or an act of incorporation, have signified their intention to take part in the Queen's Jubilee." There must be very just reasons why this "loyal" institution "has not been able to obtain" these privileges. Still, this body will assist to make the celebration a "grand success," in the opinion of some.

Since you have connected "Old Ireland" with the action of the Benevolent Irish Society in this Province, I may be pardoned for asking what is about to be done towards the "Dear Old Land" in this Jubilee year of Her Majesty? There is now before the Imperial Parliament one of the most stringent and obnoxious Acts that was ever passed by a civilized nation. This Act will shortly become law, and will be put in force against the Irish people in the most heartless manner by the Government of Her Majesty Queen Victoria. A great many people may say, "Oh, the Queen is not personally responsible; she has to be guided by the advice of her ministry." All very good; but when Irishmen in this or any other Province are requested to honor her as the head of that nation whose ministers adopt such cruel and tyrannical laws to govern a people whose descendants they are, it is not naturally to be supposed they could look upon such a request with favor.

Everything considered, my opinion is that the Benevolent Irish Society in this city did perfectly right, and that they will adhere to their decision.

Yours, &c., FONTENOY.
