The Favorite

Medicine for Throat and Lung Difficulties has long been, and still is, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and Asthma; soothes irritation of the Larynx and Fauces; strengthens the Vocal Organs; allays soreness of the Lungs; prevents Consumption, and, even in advanced stages of that disease, relieves Coughing and induces Sleep. There is no other preparation for diseases of the throat and lungs to be compared with this remedy.

"My wife had a distressing cough, with pains in the side and breast. We tried various medicines, but none did her any good until I gave a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has cured her. A neighbor, Mrs. Glenn, had the measles, and the cough was relieved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have no hesitation in recommending this to every one afflicted."—Robert Horton, Foreman Headlight, Morrilton, Ark.

"I have been afflicted with asthma for forty years. Last spring I was taken with a violent cough, which threatened to terminate my days. Every one pronounced me in consumption. I determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Its effects were magical. I was immediately relieved and continued to improve until entirely recovered."—Joel Bullard, Guilford, Conn.

"Six months ago I had a severe hemorrhage of the lungs, brought on by an incessant cough which deprived me of sleep and rest. I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief until I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. A few bottles of this medicine cured me."—Mrs. E. Coburn, 19 Second st., Lowell, Mass.

"For children afflicted with colds, coughs, sore throat, or croup, I do not more speedily relief than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have found it, also, invaluable in cases of Whooping Cough."—Ann Levejoy, 1237 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

Life in Japan.

From an article in the September Century by the artist Wores we quote the following: "In Japan women have always held a higher position than in other Asiatic countries. They go about freely wherever they please, and the seclusion of the Chinese is wholly unknown to them. The schools receive as many girls as boys; and as a result of my observations I can safely say, without idle compliment, that the former are brighter than the latter.

"By degrees and under these favorable conditions for general observation, some of the causes of the people's happy spirit of independence began to be revealed to me. The simplicity of their lives, in which enters no selfish rivalry to outdo one another, accounts in a large measure for this enviable result. Regarding one another very much as belonging to one family, their mode of life is more or less on the same plane, and consequently a spirit of great harmony prevails. A very small income is sufficient to supply the ordinary necessities of life, and everything else is secured with but little effort. Household effects are few and unpretentious; and should everything be destroyed by fire or lost in any way, it is not an irreparable calamity. All can be replaced at a small outlay, and life goes on as before.

"The tenant upon renting a house is put to little expense to furnish it; indeed, he requires absolutely no furniture at all. The floor, finely-woven mats which cover the floor serve as table, chair and bed; and as it is the universal custom to remove the shoes before entering a house, there is no danger of one's bringing with him the dirt from the streets.

"His bedding consists of cotton quilts, which are spread out on the floor at night, rolled together in the morning, and stored away in a closet during the day. A few pictures (shakemono) and specimens of beautiful script decorate the walls, a few vases contain sprays of flowers, and a number of cushions on the floor complete the furnishing of a room. Yet it does not seem empty or cheerless; for the general arrangement of harmonious colors, the different woods employed in its visible construction, and the beauty of the finished workmanship, make a most harmonious and pleasing combination. Paint is never used to cover the wood, much less to substitute a false grain."

Old Age and Gardening.
Ex-Vice President Hannibal Hamlin is at Bangor, Me. He is 81 years old, and was vice president so long ago that the present generation need to be told that it was during Lincoln's first term. The old gentleman is in full vigor of health and mind. He walks fifteen miles a day frequently. The pride and delight of his present existence is a wonderful garden and orchard in which he works with his own hands and rears marvellous flowers and fruits.

There is something peculiarly attractive in this serene, bright sunset to one of the busiest lives of the century. The storm and excitement are past, and the old man tends his lilies and roses and gathers great luscious pears in the sunshine and blue air.

It is the ideal close of a long and busy life. Englishmen know it. When one of them approaches old age, and has won a competency, he retires to a house and garden in the country. He is cheated out of life with nature, in the open air, during his early years of struggle, and now he makes up for it. He communes reverently with the sublime mother, he watches the green things grow, he listens to voices that he did not hear in the heat of the strife, and is happy. We seem somehow to drift naturally back to the earth at last.

If any life could fit a man for heaven, after he has deserved well of mankind, it is this. The old Greek and Roman philosophers recognized that and betook themselves to groves and villas in the country. Our American men will recognize it too, in course of time, and as they approach the philosophical age will learn to retire gracefully and give the younger man a chance, while they themselves sip that elixir of youth that outdoor life has for all of nature's children.

Marry a Scotch Girl.
I know a young fellow who was very sweet on a Scotch spinster. She was a wealthy Scotch spinster, but if there is any kind of a woman who must be loved economically and for herself alone it is this Scotch spinster. Scotch spinsters are warranted to make good wives all the time. It is awfully hard to be untrue to a Scotch woman. She makes you so very comfortable and holds you to her not so much by her heart as by your bank account. She doesn't always want new bonnets; she is rather liable to object to your having a new hat until the old one is quite worn out. A Scotch wife can keep her husband neat and trim, and herself and children as well, at a smaller expense than any other. She doesn't want diamond earrings for her birthday. All you have to do is to show her your bank book and kiss her, and tell her that you owe the big balance to her and she is quite satisfied. This young fellow did not understand the Scotch spinster, and when he thought to please her he sent her a lovely and expensive basket of flowers. He went up to receive her thanks and smiles, and he was quite knocked over when she told him he hadn't a big enough salary to waste in buying flowers for her or a tiddy else, and she was sorry he was so extravagant, because otherwise he was "a very pleasin' young man." He lied himself back into her good graces by saying he had got the flowers for nothing, and he had got the could not make better use of thought he said graciously and said: "Seein' they didn't cost you anything it's a great compliment." She was a woman after all.

Interesting to Brides.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR YOUNG WOMEN ABOUT TO COMMENCE HOUSEKEEPING.

If you have a great desire to be married in white, select a fine Swiss muslin and have it made up tastily with creamy ribbons for trimming, and natural flowers for adorning, or cashmere, made to clear the ground, that it may be worn the following summer.

It is so out of harmony with all good taste and judgment to think only of preparing a dress for a short wedding ceremony, and putting time and money into a piece of elegance, with a long train that cannot appropriately be worn more than once more, in the sphere in which the bride is to move.

The better way is to be married in simple white, or the plain travelling dress, if desired, while a pretty silk or tawny wool dress, for church and for returning calls, receives some thought and elaboration.

A book might be written, and they all not be said on many subjects of interest to brides.

I only wish to call attention to a few things. In buying for the furnishing of the home, fine linen for the tables is often overlooked, or the fund exhausted before it is thought of.

The bride should remember at least, one handsome linen cloth, three and one-half yards long, for her table, with one dozen large napkins. Those will last a long time for guest days, and will add much to the table. Linen cloths for table use should not be more than two yards long, and the napkins medium sized, as they are easier to take care of.

A little kitchen, well stocked, makes life much easier for the young housekeeper. It is the rule in one family to lay aside one dollar a week for the utensils needed in the kitchen, or, if more is necessary, something for the dining table. The sum is small, hardly missed, and yet quite proportionate to the needs, after what you think necessary has been bought.

To any who are not strong enough to take upon themselves all their work, I would like to suggest the pleasant and cheaper way of hiring the washing done out of the house, and having a woman occasionally a day to sweep and clean rather than to hire a girl.

Nothing is pleasanter than to be alone in one's own home. There is a fearful leak with much of the foreign help now in this country. Besides their waste, it is often found they are helping others of their own nationality from their mistress' slender resources.

To those either afraid of gasoline, or living where it is not used, I wish to recommend a small kerosene-oil stove with two burners, costing only two dollars.

It requires the same care, as a lamp must not be filled while lighted, and must not be left long alone, as the wicks sometimes rise off themselves when the object above becomes heated. This is only to supplement a wood or coal stove. There should be baking days, and then there will be days when this stove will do the work, and tea can be got quickly without soiling the dress.

I think it requires about three hundred and fifty dollars to furnish a little cottage comfortably. Many a couple have commenced on less, and died with a great deal more. And the happiness can be much greater in the little homes, where love is not frightened away by envy, pride, and a long train of their ill-favored relations.

A lovely bride of my acquaintance is to enter upon housekeeping soon without hired help, and her knowledge of cooking is summed up in the fact that she can fry potatoes!

How does anyone dare to begin to care for as sacred a place as home without any training? Suppose you expect luxury and a servant, can you direct her? You will often be imposed on if you do not know how the work should be done yourself.—Ladies' Home Companion.

The Color Line.

TRouble AND ANXIETY IN THE SOUTH—BOTH SIDES ARMING.

There is a good deal of anxiety over the news of the threatened race war in the New River Valley, Virginia. The trouble seems to have begun on Friday evening, when a negro entered Bear, Cooper & Co.'s store at Echo, and brandishing a club threatened to "go up" all the employes. One clerk, after receiving a blow from the club, shot the negro dead. Echo is the centre of a considerable colored population, and Sunday night information was received that a mob of negroes had collected and contemplated an onslaught on the whites. Orders were received by the Charleston hardware stores for all the Winchester rifles available, and a considerable shipment of these arms was made. Citizens of Charleston were also gathering arms, and it is apprehended that the military will be ordered out.

The Times-Democrat, commenting on the Goldsboro' riot, says: "The act of vandalism of burning the negro church close to the scene of the disturbance was a wanton atrocity in keeping with the similar crime of incendiarism which occurred in the Getta riot of months ago. It was a wanton, deliberate, detestable crime, and the men who committed it are a disgrace to their State and their race. This whole affair should be submitted to the most rigid investigation by the local and State authorities, and those who can be pointed out and found responsible for it should be punished to the very extremity of the law.

Few children can be induced to take physic without a struggle, and no wonder—most drugs are extremely nauseating. Ayer's Pills, on the contrary, being sugar-coated, are eagerly swallowed by the little ones, and are, therefore, the favorite family medicine.

Three thousand looms have been stopped in Blackburn, England, owing to depression in trade.
