KEEPING THINGS MOVING

Soldiers of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division check for Viet Cong mines along Route 13 as Vietnamese civilians pass by, winding through the maze of bomb and mine craters that scar this stretch between Lai Khe, 30 miles north of Saigon, and Quang Loi, another 30 miles further north. The route, known as "Bloody Route 13," passes through Viet Cong territory and has been the scene of many hard battles. (AP Wirephoto)

Seven Days Is Shelved

TORONTO (CP) - The CBC has shelved the controversial television show Seven Days and replaced it with a new hour-long public affairs program called Sunday.

A spokesman for the CBC said Tuesday that Seven Days will not be seen again, "at least not this fall."

The new show will be shown at 10 p.m. EDT each Sunday, the time when Seven Days was shown. The first program is scheduled for Nov. 6, the CBC said in a statement.

The statement said the show will have a "variety of formats, including magazine shows which will investigate topical subjects of national and international interest to Canadians."

Daryl Duke, 37, has been named executive producer on Sunday. A native of Vancouver, Mr. Duke joined the CBC there in 1953 after working for the National Film Board. He left the CBC two years ago to do freelance work in the United States.

Seven days ended in an uproar when CBC management fired the program's co-hosts Patrick Watson and Laurie LaPierre Douglas Letterman, the show's producer, was dismissed last month and Reeves Hagan, chief of CBC public affairs programming, resigned in protest against Mr. Letterman's dismissal.

Metropolitan Toronto Faces Housing Shortage

TORONTO (CP) - Metropolitan Toronto, one of Canada's fastest-growing areas, probably will face down more houses this year than it will build.

That is one of the problems facing local real estate officials, increasingly worried by rapidly growing demand for accommodation and a 34-per-cent increase in price during the last 12 months.

In the first six months of this year, only 2,028 detached, semi-detached or duplex houses were started in Toronto, a real estate spokesman says.

"This means we will have 5,000 new units at the most this year—but we demolish more than that."

"During each of the last three years 10,000 units were started. And to meet today's demand, not even 10,000 a year is enough, so where does that leave us?"

For one thing, the spokesman says, it has caused the average price of new houses to soar to $27,622 at the end of June, compared with $23,800 at the end of January and $21,914 in January, 1965.

APARTMENT RENTS RISE

It also has resulted in a jump of five per cent and more in apartment rents. And the vacancy rate for Metro Toronto apartments has declined to an estimated less than one per cent compared with 1 1/2 per cent a year ago and a normal rate of four or five per cent.

Home economists figure it to buy a $27,000 home a person should be earning at least $10,000 a year, the real estate man says.

"Since only about four per cent of the population is in that category, it means a lot of people simply are forced to do without."

Total accommodation starts in Toronto—stumped 19.1 per cent in the first six months of this year, to 10,460 from 12,934 a year ago. But the situation now may be even worse than these figures indicate, the Toronto Real Estate Board says, since the decline in June was a starting 40-per-cent drop to 2,698 from 4,461 in June, 1965.

OTHER CITIES HIT TOO

Similar declines have taken place in other centres. In Montreal, Canada's largest city, the first six months of this year

Cattle Breeders Issued Permits

OTTAWA (CP) - Permits to transport 229 head of French Charolais cattle have been issued to 191 cattle breeders across Canada, the federal agriculture department reported Tuesday.

Earlier reports said 252 Canadian buyers had sought permission to bring in 1,730 Charolais, a top-flight breeding stock. Quarantine facilities can now cope with that number.

Of the 229 to be imported this year, 10 will go to British Columbia, 92 to Alberta, 61 to Saskatchewan, 10 to Manitoba, 38 to Ontario, 17 to Quebec and one to Nova Scotia.

The number of Charolais brought in is limited by the size of the department's quarantine station at Grosse Ile, Que., which is being enlarged to handle this year's imported stock.

Last year the station's facilities to handle 110 cattle were stretched a little when 113 Charolais arrived. Of these, 109 survived the quarantine period and were released to their owners early this year.

The demand for the cattle has risen sharply since the first arrived last year under a new arrangement worked out between Canada and France.

STOP OVER AT BREST

The cattle to be imported this year—now being purchased in France by Canadian buyers, will enter the French quarantine station at Brest early in September, where they will remain for 30 days.

They then will be moved by ship to Grosse Ile, in the St. Lawrence River near Quebec City. The quarantine period there is for a minimum of 90 days but because of winter ice conditions in the river it is not expected the cattle will be released until next April.

The station can process only one shipment a year because health regulations prohibit the importation of cattle after they have been vaccinated in France against foot-and-mouth disease.

"As all cattle in France are vaccinated at the age of six months, Canadian importers must choose young calves."

And since most French cattle are born in late winter, this means that selection is made in July after the calves have matured enough to give some indication of their potential.

The stringent quarantine procedures at Grosse Ile are necessary to prevent the entry of a foot-and-mouth disease carrier into Canada.

Earlier this year, there appeared a danger that a winter epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease in Europe might bring an end to the fledgling import program. However, the outbreak did not spread to France, and it has died down in the affected areas of Western Europe.

Ferries Back On Schedule

Wood Islands and Caribou ferry schedules returned to normal Sunday night following a mechanical breakdown on the Prince Nova the latter part of last week.

The Prince Nova was out of service Friday, Saturday and part of Sunday while efforts were made to locate the source of trouble in the engine room. Part of the crew of the 'Nova' augmented the crew of the Lord Selkirk during the breakdown period to help the remaining ferry meet traffic demands.

Northumberland Ferries Ltd. reported that while the difficulty was overcome and the service back to normal, the breakdown served to emphasize the importance and dependency placed upon this avenue of transportation to and from the province.

Liquor Store Opens

The P.E.I. Liquor Control Commission will take occupancy this week of a newly-constructed city branch on lower Queen Street.

Construction of the project, which began in April, has just been completed. The store will operate under the management of Edward Martin and staff from the old branch on Great George Street.

The Commission's new outlet will feature double-decker beer feeders and a modern push-button conveyor system which is designed to move stock from the lower floor to the sales section of the two-floor structure.

Cascumpec Cottage Open

ALBERTON - Cascumpec cottages recently acquired by Evelyn and Russell Hayes of Alberton, are ready for occupancy by tourists to West Prince County. In addition to four cottages which were on the site last spring, they have erected six attractive new cottages each with sleeping accommodation for four persons and roomy kitchenette, livingrooms with all the facilities needed for housekeeping.

Cascumpec cottages are situated at a scenic spot just off the Lady's Slipper Drive, six miles from Alberton. The cottages, on which they are located, is surrounded on two sides by water and has a sandy beach suitable for swimming and sunbathing.

Gordon's Point is of local historic interest because it was once the western terminus of a ferry service operated across the river before bridges were built. Not far down river, at another point on the opposite side, is what remains of an old wharf which was the other terminus. It is more than sixty years since this ferry service was discontinued. The last persons to operate it were a Mr. and Mrs. MacPhee and the abandoned house in which they once lived still stands near the old wharf.

Those eligible shall be unemployed or underemployed persons, who have previously been gainfully employed or seeking work and if under 20 years of age have been out of the regular school system for at least 12 months, where such training is considered necessary to enable the individual to participate effectively in the labour force.
