Movie Review

Next of Kin is a movie which mixes downtown Chicago with downhome country life. It features Patrick Swayze as Detective Truman Gates, a man with the city in his hands and the country in his heart. The movie begins with Detective Gates displaying his down-to-earth detective style by apprehending an out of control country boy. The movie then focuses on an Italian, Chicago family which in the process of trying to steal a truck kills the truck driver, Truman Gates' brother. From here the movie takes off, we see Truman torn between two worlds; one of upholding the law, the other a fierce family loyalty where murder is avenged.

Next of Kin is a mafia style show between two different types of people, the Italians who want material things and the Hill-Billys who just want to be left alone in the hills. When the Italian family steals the truck and kills Truman's brother they meet with a family loyalty as strong as their own. Since Truman doesn't seem to want to do anything about his brother's death, their older brother comes down to avenge the death of their brother. Truman tells them that the law will get the person responsible but his brother won't listen and ends up getting killed. Truman's boss says that the Italian family may get of the hook for this murder because Truman's brother had broken into the trucking company and had killed a few of the men inside. Truman's family loyalty finally wins over at this point and he turns in his badge to the chief. He tries to avenge the death on his own but what he doesn't know is that his family had been notified of his brother's death and are on the way to Chicago. The movie ends in a big gang-like war between the Italians and their guns and the Hill-Billys with their arrows and other primitive weapons.

I have never been to war

I have never been to war.

I have never seen many mangled friends.

Nor have I smelled the stench of death.

The repugnant smell it sends.

I have never seen the blood that drenches one's soul, one's mind.

Nor the sound of guns have I heard that have made many a young man blind.

I have never touched death, the stinging cold that creeps in, along with fear.

Fear of dying, lying there away from loved ones held so dear.

All I have seen are the haggard faces that gather each year on parade.

To honor comrades whom few of us remember.

To bury the dead in the mud war has made.

As I glance at the dates and look at the names

as I try to imagine through films, books of fame.

I catch only a glimpse of what men had to suffer

young soldiers sent out, leaving youth, land and mother.

As we gather to honor our gallant, strong fathers

may we also remember the fear, death and slaughter.

May their memories live on, to remind us of war.

Let us pray that man learns to make war no more!

24 Hours of Continuous Music!

The Music Society is at it again! Earlier in the year we had a carwash and we said to keep an eye out for us because we would be up to something new before long.

As a fundraiser for the Music Society Scholarship fund, we are holding our second annual Play-a-thon on Friday, November 17th. You are probably asking yourselves, "What is a play-a-thon?" Well, a play-a-thon is 24 hours of continuous music of varying styles. The event will be starting at 1:00pm on Friday afternoon and proceeding until 1:00pm Saturday afternoon.

Different styles of music will include different ensembles, jazz and classical to name a few. Some of the highlights of Friday evening will include the 4:30 Society Challenge to all non-music societies and clubs to send a representative to make an attempt at conducting our jazz lab. At 7:30 pm, the UPEI jazz band will have an open rehearsal until 9:00 pm from 9:00pm to 9:30 a jazz trio will be performing. At 10:00, Charlottetown's own Curfew will be performing. Come on out for an evening of musical enjoyment!

The official opening ceremonies for the Play-A-Thon will begin at 1:15 pm, Friday with President Elliot conducting the first piece by our Choral lab. Local dignitaries have been invited to attend these ceremonies. Local media may also be present. Be sure to make the 17th and 18th of November on your calendar. Hope to see you there.
