Thrall.

(APPETITE.)

HATTIE TYNG GRISWOLD.

I am held like a captive knight,
I am hidden away from sight,
I cry like a child for the light.

I am bound by the cruelest thongs,
I quiver with outrage and wrongs,
Like a slave I sing a slave's songs.

At night when the mad moon gleams,
Still viler my vile lot seems,
For at night I dream a slave's dreams.

At morning, at evening, at noon,
The thong far or near, late or soon,
Makes me cry out for death as a boon.

I quail 'neath a tyrant's dread eye,
I mutter vague threats, and still try
To sunder the horrible tie.

But my struggle is all in vain,
My captor claims me again,
And anon, I clank the same chain.

O, cruelest bondage of all,
Which well may the strongest appal,
Body free, but a soul in thrall.

Reform Needed.

Those who plead for temperance reform are daily charged with exaggeration. There never was prophet or reformer against whom the same charge has not been made. We have no cause to exaggerate, our cause is overwhelmingly strong in unvarnished realities, and we have nothing to do but to set forth things as they are. The highest scientific authorities tell us that even the moderate use of liquor is the cause of many painful disorders, and thousands of premature deaths. Alcohol is a drug which has the power of creating a crave. To be a drunkard means an awful shipwreck of life and body. Nor is it only the bodies of men that suffer, it is their souls. The curse does not stay with who caused it. The drunkard drags his wife and family into the whirlpool of retribution. To follow the drunken man or woman into the place they call home, while threats and blows resound, the children ragged, miserable, half-starved, huddle together in terror. The money that should feed and clothe his wife and little ones is poured into the till of the rum shop. Do not these men, these women, these children deserve our pity and demand our efforts at reform.

The Remedy.

The Rev. Canon Wilberforce, of England, delivered a temperance address in Tremont Temple, to an audience which filled the hall with an appreciative and enthusiastic assemblage. He charged directly home upon the conscience, and fired the moral nature of his hearers. His own radical convictions were impressed by his personal impact and tremendous earnestness. High license he characterized as an attempt to make a bad business respectable, remarking that if Judas had received a thousand pieces of silver it would not have made his conduct more respectable or less traitorous. The remedy for intemperance, he said, is simple, and is found in the text, "Be not drunk with wine, but be filled with the Holy Ghost." If men and women will substitute for the exhilaration of wine the enthusiasm of life enkindled by the Divine Spirit, they will have genuine inspiration. It is the duty of Christians to work on this theory, and when they attempt to work on any other they are of no more use than a lighthouse when its light is extinguished. America, he said, has the opportunity to lead the world, because she is not tied up by the usages, customs, and hoary institutions of the Old World; but America can lead in the moral contest only as she owns allegiance to the "King of kings." "This terrible evil," he said, "is creeping into your halls of legislation, to taint your law-makers, and I come here to warn you of your terrible danger. There is nothing that so weakens a nation as to have laws upon its statute books that are not enforced." He quoted the Bishop of London, that "if you people who have power and respectability would abstain at once and forever from the use of liquor, the bitter cry of the poor of London would cease in three years." Of the temperance movement in Boston he said, "Its promoters need the power of Christ. Get you this instant at the feet of the Crucified One, and you will be holier, happier, and keener of intellect than ever before." Canon Wilberforce was very powerful in his arraignment of Christians who are aristocratic and yet "dead in their orthodoxy."

Temperance Notes.

An English M. P. asserts that, as a result of the drink habit of the parents, 50,000 children in London go to school each morning unfed.

It is as plain to me as the sun in a bright summer sky, that the license laws of our country constitute one of the main pillars on which the main fabric of intemperance now rests.—Rev. Heman Humphrey, 1833.

The law which licenses the sale of ardent spirits is an impediment to the temperance legislation. Whenever public opinion and the moral sense of our community shall be so far corrected and matured as to regard them in their true light, and when the public safety shall be thought to require it, dram-shops will be indictable at common law as public nuisances.—Judge Platt

In the following vein a contemporary serves up one of the greatest social "institutions," of the era: "Have you a boy to spare? The saloon must have boys or it must shut up shop. Can't you furnish it one? It is a great factory; and unless it can get 2,000,000 boys from each generation for raw material, some of these factories must close out, and its operatives must be thrown on a cold world, and the public revenue will dwindle. "Wanted—2,000,000 boys" is the notice. One family out of every five must contribute a boy to keep up the supply. Will you help? Which of your boys will it be? Have you given your share to keep up the supply for this great public institution that is helping to pay your taxes and blindly electing public officials for you? Have you contributed a boy? If not, some other family has had to give more than its share. Are you satisfied, voting to keep the saloon open to grind up boys, and then doing nothing to keep up the supply?

Local and Other Items

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.—The following sums have been received at the Charlottetown Hospital: G. T. Haszard $2; J. T. Murphy $3; a friend (per Mrs. J. D. Mason) $2; Captain Welsh $1; Rev. Allan McDonald $2.

TOUR ROUND THE WORLD.—Citizen George Francis Train is busily preparing for another world circling tour. He intends to make the trip this time in fifty days. Editor Radebaugh, of the Tacoma Ledger, and a big party are to accompany him. Train is to act guide, leader and chief of the lightning tourists. The party intend to start on September 1, and they expect to complete the tour by October 20.

A CLERGYMAN'S DILEMMA.—A clergyman in Somerville, Mass., has come to understand the misfortune of prosperity. His church recently received a fine homestead by will and demanded that he should occupy it. On his part he explained that on his salary he couldn't live up to the level of such an establishment, and the upshot of it is that he has resigned and is looking for a poorer church where he can afford to live.

RECITAL.—Next Thursday Miss McGarry will give one of her celebrated recitals in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. Let there be a full house to greet her—the most famous of Canadian Elocutionists.

Miss McGarry was excellent in her comic delivery, and threw the audience into convulsions of laughter.—Montreal Star.

A VOTE OF THANKS.—The Annual School Meeting was after due notice held in Little Harbor Schoolhouse on the 17th June, and all school matters pertaining to the district were discussed. Upon accepting the resignation of Leonard E. McDonald, teacher, a vote of thanks was unanimously tendered him for his valuable services in the school during the past two years, and for the steady progress to be noted therein under his management.

THE SEASIDE HOTEL.—We regret to learn that there is some doubt about the opening this season of the Seaside Hotel. The Patriot reports that this is owing to the illness of Mr. Frank Newson, son of the proprietor, John Newson, Esq., and says: "This young man and his mother had of late years the sole management of the hotel which they conducted in a highly efficient manner. The chief difficulty now is to procure a capable housekeeper. The Seaside was one of the chief summer resorts on this Island, and many persons abroad and at home will learn with regret that it is not likely to be opened this season."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Reason Why.

SIR,—In answer to a letter of enquiry signed "Clerk," which appeared in your issue of Saturday, the 21st inst., also in explanation to the grocers who so unanimously complied with the request, I may say that I had frequently been asked why the half holiday might not extend to the grocers' clerks, as well as to other branches of trade in the city. So, with the concurrence of the firm of which I an employe, I started on Monday last with a requisition, and succeeded in getting sixteen of the principal grocers to sign it, but when I reached the last, but not least, of the most prominent grocers of Queen Square, I met with a refusal, which, I must say, I did not expect. That was on Monday. On Tuesday, I renewed the attack, but with the same result, and on Wednesday, after exhausting all my stock of persuasives—failed. The worst of it was, he had not the ghost of a reasonable excuse for not closing, and of course, the scheme failed to take effect, as the condition was that all should close. So you see, Mr. Editor, that a small thing of that kind deprives about sixty persons of a few hours' pleasure, while the profits on the goods sold in those few hours would not pay the wages of one small messenger boy, as the trade on Monday afternoon is hardly worth keeping open for.

J. R. DAVISON.

Personal.

Mr. George E Full returned from Fredericton, N. B., on Thursday evening.

Edward Hackett, Esq., Inspector of Fisheries, wrs at the Osborne yesterday. He left for home this morning.

John L. Sullivan pleaded guilty to the charge of prize fighting and the court fined him $500.

Sarah Bernhardt is said to have fallen in love with Henry M. Stanley, and expresses eagerness to accompany him to the heart of Africa.

A London despatch says Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain have put off their visit to the United States till the end of July.

Revs. George Steel, Pownal; H. P. Cowperthwaite, Tryon; G. W. Fisher, Alberton; E. Bell, West Cape; E. C. Turner, Margate, and W. J. Kirby, Winsloe, returned home from the Methodist Conference at Fredericton on Thursday evening.

Edward Hanlan is greatly excited. Some thief has robbed him of the very valuable gold medal which Lord Dufferin presented to him in honor of his victory over Courtney at Lachine in 1878.

Mr. Farrar will receive $5,000 a year as chief editorial writer of the Toronto Globe, an increase upon his remuneration while in connection with the Mail.
