

THE DAILY EXAMINER

NOVEMBER 20, 1894.

MR. FRANCIS BAIN.

Mr. FRANCIS BAIN passed away, at his residence, North River, at 8 o'clock this morning. The sad event has been anticipated ever since he was stricken down by paralysis, the result of effusion of the brain, two months ago. Everyone in this Province, who is at all interested in science, will deeply regret the early removal of this gifted man. He was from his youth an industrious, honest, careful and highly intelligent student of nature. He had not, unfortunately, the advantage of a collegiate training. He followed, assiduously, year in and year out, the laborious occupation of a farmer. He was interested in the politics of the Province and was a candidate in at least one election. He took an active and leading part in almost every movement of local importance to the district and settlement in which he resided. Yet, withal, his knowledge attracted the notice and commendation of such men as Sir William Dawson. Decidedly the best account of the birds of Prince Edward Island was written and published by him. He was a recognized authority among the luminists of this part of Canada, and his luminous botanical lectures will long be remembered by those who were so fortunate as to hear them. He was the author of the "Natural History of Prince Edward Island," ordered for use in our public schools. He was appointed by the Government of Canada to be the geologist for the P. E. Island tunnel survey, his special knowledge of the geology of this Province enabling him to render important service. He was Secretary for P. E. Island of the Royal Botanical Society of Canada. He was the contributor of numerous scientific articles which appeared in scientific magazines and in THE EXAMINER. Above all, he was an honest and religious man, faithful to his friends and faithful to his duty and his God. Perhaps his most lasting memorial will be the fossil discovered by him, to which his name has been given.

It is perhaps needless to add that we sympathize deeply with his wife and family, who have suffered a loss that cannot be repaired.

FINANCES OF CANADA.

Goats to the dogs! Being ruined by extravagance! Increasing expenditure! Increasing burdens! Such are the cries of the opponents of the government.

Now first as to extravagance. We have been extending our railways, building canals, completing public works during the past six years; and yet look at the expenditure! Is it increasing? The official and correct figures show not. The annual expenditure chargeable to revenue during the same years from 1888 to 1893 was as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Expenditure. 1888: $36,718,494; 1889: 36,917,334; 1890: 35,934,031; 1891: 36,343,267; 1892: 36,755,894; 1893: 36,814,402.

It will be noted that though there have been variations from year to year, as might be expected, the expenditure was practically stationary during these years, and the trend has been downward since 1889.

Now look at the burden of the debt. The true test is the amount of interest per year. The net interest paid by Canada during the several years of Mr. Foster's term of office as Finance Minister was as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Interest. 1888: $8,891,287; 1889: 8,843,539; 1890: 8,274,570; 1891: 8,506,509; 1892: 8,677,508; 1893: 8,556,722.

It will thus be seen that the net interest paid in 1893 was actually $244,565 less than it was five years before. There has, therefore, been no "trend upward" in the annual interest charge.

Then as to taxation the showing is still more favorable. We find from the trade returns that so far from there being any increase, the trend, especially of late years, has been emphatically downward. During the same years, from 1888 to 1893, the average rates per cent. of duty paid on all goods entered for home consumption in Canada were as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Rate. 1888: 21.67 p.c.; 1889: 21.65 " ; 1890: 20.21 " ; 1891: 20.26 " ; 1892: 17.56 " ; 1893: 17.38 "

It will be noted that for several years past the Government has been reducing the rate of tariff taxation. But another large reduction was made by the late revision, and from the official returns in the Canada Gazette, recently published, it is seen that the average rate of duty under the present tariff is about 14 per cent.

Here then are the figures that dispose of the three old cries of extravagance, increasing taxation, and increasing weight of interest.

But there was in the past four months a smaller revenue and a larger expenditure than in the same period of last year; and the alarmed Patriot anticipates a deficit of $6,000,000! The falling off in revenue is contingentaneous with a very much larger falling off in other parts of the world, and is due (1) to depression of trade, and (2) to the reduction of the tariff effected at the last session of Parliament. Of the expenditure we have not seen the details, though we have no doubt that the additional outlay of the Government was necessary and warranted by the requirements of the country. It is to be hoped that next spring's trade will be brisk, and that the revenue will be replenished. In any case, it is safe to say that the financial position of Canada will be, at the end of the year, far better than that of other countries. For instance, Victoria, Australia, has just announced a deficit of $11,000,000, and New South Wales $7,000,000! The revenue of the United States is, according to the latest reports, falling behind the expenditure at the rate of $3,500,000 a month. Even if there should be a small deficit this year, the financial record of the present Government of Canada is one of which the country ought to be proud. Look at the following list of surpluses:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Surplus. 1881: $4,137,43; 1882: 6,316,352; 1883: 7,084,492; 1884: 7,542,255; 1885: 87,313; 1886: 1,865,635; 1887: 3,885,894; 1888: 2,235,743; 1889: 155,978.

A Government that can show such a list of surpluses ought not, we submit, to be condemned if, in a year of world-wide commercial depression, and directly after a considerable reduction of taxation, chiefly in the interests of our farmers, it should be compelled to show a deficit. At any rate the Patriot ought to save its denunciations until after the end of the year.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

We learn that it is the intention of the friends of Hon. Senator Ferguson, to tender him a public banquet at an early day.

"Ignorant," "presumptuous," "foolish," with "brazen front" and "shallowness" and "ignorance"—these are the rhetorical weapons with which the Canadian Ministers of the Crown are now being assailed by the Opposition press. An election is believed to be at hand!

Until a few days ago, the more enthusiastic of our devotees of the bath were wont to take their morning dip in the harbor. Yesterday morning Government Pond was frozen over almost hard enough to carry the small boy. The warmth and rain of yesterday opened everything up again. But there came a sudden, unexpected, chilling frost last night, accompanied by a westerly gale, and our bathers are now getting out their skates. It is not likely that there will be any more swimming this year.

WHOLESALE MASSACRE.

About Two Thousand Armenians Said to Have Been Slaughtered.

A despatch to the London Times from Vienna says that a letter has been received there from a Turkish marshal with a detachment of Nizams and a field battery, massacred two thousand Armenians at Sasun. The bodies of the dead were left unburied and their presence has caused an outbreak of cholera. Many Christians are reported to have fled by secret paths across the Russian frontier.

So far there has been no official confirmation of this news, but if it is true, it is time the powers share in the responsibility for their failure to enforce article 11 of the Berlin treaty which imposes on them the duty of seeing that the Porte takes measures to protect Armenians.

The latter declare that they hope for nothing from Europe, but that they still have confidence in Great Britain. Numerous appeals have been made by the Armenians to the British foreign offices. The last appeal received says that the Armenians do not wish to see more of their territory annexed to Russia, but if Great Britain is unable to help them they will be compelled to look to Russia, under which yoke they would be better off than under the yoke of Turkey.

A despatch from Constantinople to the London Standard says that in response to the protest made by Sir Phillip Currie, British Ambassador to Turkey, the Porte, had unreservedly withdrawn the charge against Mr. Hallward, British consul at Van, of inciting the Armenians at Sasun and elsewhere to revolt. The charge grew out of the investigation made by Mr. Hallward into the Armenian massacre and his report to the British Ambassador. The governor of Bitlis, who is seriously involved in the outrage, made the charge, it is said for the purpose of revenge.

The Sultan has decided to send a commission composed of three military members of his household to Sassun for the purpose of making an impartial inquiry into the outrage on the Armenians. The latest news is to the effect that many of the Armenians who were supposed to have been killed, fled from the soldiery and are now returning.

STORM BOASTS.—Owing to the violence of the heavy gale blowing from the northwest this morning, the movements of the St. Lawrence became all disarranged. The St. Lawrence did not leave port for Pictou. The Eastern left port, but after getting as far as St. Peter's Island she had to return. The Jacques Cartier, now at Orwell, reports that she cannot leave the wharf, owing to the heavy blow and rough sea. The Coleridge was to have sailed this morning for Cape Breton and Newfoundland, but remained in port. The ferry steamer Southport is aground at the Southport side of the harbor, near the wharf, about ten o'clock this morning and did not get off until after one. At the time of writing, considerable ice had formed in the cove between the west side of Connolly's wharf and the bridge near Government House, and at an early hour the mercury in the thermometer had fallen to only 10 above the cypher.

THE MACNEILS OF BARRA.

According to tradition, Nall Og, or John Neil, was the twenty-fourth chief of the Macneils of Barra. He was succeeded by his son Murdoch, who was succeeded by his son Roderick, who was succeeded by his son Gilleanan. Gilleanan received the Barra and Boleisdale from Alexander Lord of the Isles, in 1427. He was killed at Gristipol, in Coll. He was succeeded by his son, who was succeeded by his son, Gilleanan. Gilleanan was laid of Barra in 1545. He was succeeded by his son, Roderick, who was commonly referred to as the first Roderick.

The first Roderick married Margaret, daughter of Allan Maclean, of Ardnoosh, by whom he had three sons, Roderick, John and Murdoch. He was killed at the battle of Glenlivet in 1294. John and Murdoch were hostages in the hands of Angus Macdonald, of Islay, in 1585. John married Catherine, daughter of Lachlan Og Maclean, of Torloisk.

The second Roderick was known as a Maclean woman and had several sons by her. He afterwards married the daughter of Donald of Moylart, by whom also he had several sons. The eldest son of the first family both claimed the right of succession to the chieftainship of Barra. This occasioned a long and bitter quarrel between the two families. Rory died some time after the year 1633. He was succeeded by Neil, his eldest son, who was married in 1634. He married Catherine, daughter of John, 10th of Clanranald. He was succeeded by Roderick, who was probably his son.

The third Roderick married Isabel, daughter of Sir Norman Macleod, of Bernera. He was succeeded by his son Roderick.

The fourth Roderick married Alice, daughter of William Macleod, of Luskentyre, by whom he had Roderick, his successor.

The fifth Roderick was a lieutenant in the army. He married Ann, daughter of Hector Macleod, of Keolin, East Ross, MacRachainn. He had two children, Roderick, his successor, and a daughter. He was killed at Quebec in 1759. His daughter was married to Donald, son of Hector Macleod, of Skirval.

The sixth Roderick married in 1787 Jean, daughter of Ewen Cameron of Fasfiever, by whom he had five children, Roderick, Ewen, Ann, Louisa and Jane. He made his will in Liverpool, and left his estate, Barra and Ashfield, to Roderick. He died five thousand pounds to Ewen, and two hundred pounds to each of his daughters. He died at Manchester in 1822. His will was registered on the 7th of May in that year. Ewen, his eldest son, died unmarried in Trinidad.

The seventh Roderick was a general in the army. He married Caroline Brownlow in 1818. He had one child, Roderick. He died at Dover in October, 1863.

Marchand Amrose Macneil, a gentleman who resides in the United States, claims that he is the present chief of the Macneils. He is a son of John Macneil, who was the son of Edward Macneil, who was the son of Roderick Macneil, the chief who fell at Quebec in 1759. If Mr. Macneil can prove that the Roderick, who was killed at Quebec left two sons and that his grandfather, Edward Macneil, was a son of Roderick, we presume that he will be readily acknowledged as the chief of the Macneils of Barra. My own belief, however, is that the Roderick, who fell at Quebec, left only one son, Roderick, his successor.

One of the lairds of Barra had a son named Alexander. This Alexander had a son named James. James married a daughter of Neil Macneil, Neil son of John Og. James had a son who came to Cape Breton in 1802.

I am informed that Rory the Turbulent had a son who was known as John Og. John Og had two sons, Neil and Alexander. Neil was married to a daughter of Macdonald of Bornish, and Alexander to a daughter of Macdonald of Glenaladale.

It is said that one of the lairds of Barra had two sons, Gilleanan and Roderick, and that he gave the estate to Roderick the younger of the two. Gilleanan was still chief by blood, chief of the Macneils of Barra though not laird of the lands occupied by them. Gilleanan had a son named Roderick. Roderick had a son who was also named Roderick and who was known as Rory Og. Rory Og came to Barra in 1802, and in the year 1806, I am told that he was an emigrant agent. I should like very much to get some account of him. Are there any of his descendants in this country?

I am informed that James Macneil brought some passengers to this country in 1802. I presume that he was an emigrant agent. It is said that he was from Barra, and that he was known as James Macneil of Barra, son of Roderick, son of John Og. It is possible to obtain some information about him?

I have to thank Judge Alley for his clear, full and interesting information about the Macneils of Barra. A. MACLEAN SINCLAIR.

RESOLUTION OF CONDUCT.—At a recent meeting of the Division No. 1, A. O. H., Moncton, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Almighty God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to call unto him our beloved brother, Peter P. McNaughton; Therefore, be it resolved, that the members of Division No. 1, A. O. H., Moncton, whilst bowing in humble submission to the Divine Will, tender to his sorrowing mother and family our sincere sympathy in their great affliction and earnestly pray that Almighty God will give them the grace to bear with patience the cross He has laid upon them; Further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to his bereaved mother and co-employees to the local papers, Charlotte Town P. E. I. papers, and the "Catholic Record" for publication.
