Spirit Communings.

Comes there not sweetly calling,
At twilight's mystic hour,
When the cool dews are falling
And night begins to lower,
With pleasant charms enthralling,
Some voice of saintly power—
Some angel voice that thrills us
With strange and vague unrest,
That sadly, gently fills us
With memories of the blest;
Then slowly, calmly stills us,
And soothes the aching breast?
When Fancy is subtly weaving
Her soft, magical chain,
When we of th' past are grieving
And living it o'er again—
When the world we are leaving
Behind with sorrow and pain—
When our sorrowful sinning
Away from us we cast—
When our souls we are winning
From the unloved past,
And sadly are beginning
To learn that life flies past?
Come there not slowly creeping,
From out the gathering night,
Forms the angels are keeping
That we may claim by right,
For whom we oft are weeping
When th' morn grows rosy bright?
Fair forms, not real but seeming,
Blue eyes that loving glance
In ours with glorious beaming,
So sweetly to enhance
The pleasant saintly dreaming
Of the vision trance?
Methinks 'tis thus those fair ones
Commune with us alway,
That thus those smiling near ones
Do guard us night and day,
That the spirits of the dear ones
Are ours forever and aye.
And while to us they're clinging,
In joy and peace and trust,
Sweetly to us they're singing
The notes of budding love,
In tones "like joy bells ringing,"
Echoed by choirs above
Here in the hour of gloaming,
'Lone on the rocky shore,
I list' to billows foaming,
With their turbulent roar,
And my wild thoughts are roaming
Till they rest evermore.
With her my heart holds dearest,
So young, so fair, so gay,
Who of all is the nearest,
Yet far, far, far away,
Whose name to me shines clearest,
When night has banished day.
And through the twilight beaming,
In sweetness and love,
Like glorious spirit seeming,
Borne by the peaceful dove,
Or pleasant, saintly dreaming
Fresh from the courts above.
I see her fair face peering
Into my tearful eyes,
A vision endearing
Hiding life's mysteries,
And the sweet vision wearing,
With glad unfeigned surprise,
To my arms springs so lightly,
And finds its welcome rest,
Knowing that there it rightly
Loving to linger best,
Shall now forever brightly
Reign queen within my breast.
And the golden haired treasure
My lips doth sweetly press
In an entrancing measure
Of kisses that ne'er grows less,
Till she who gives the pleasure
My heart shall ever bless.
'Tis thus the spirits cheer us,
Forever dear and true,
They never coyly fear us,
And soar beyond the blue,
But constant hover near us,
Pure as the gentle dew.

Snow-Raised Bread.

Sombody thinks he has discovered that snow, when incorporated with dough, performs the same office as baking powder or yeast. "I have this morning for breakfast," says the writer in the English Mechanic, "partaken of a snow-raised bread cake, made last evening as follows: The Cake when baked weighed about three-quarters of a pound. A large teaspoonful of fine, dry, clean snow was intimately stirred with a spoon into the dry flour, and to this was added a tablespoonful of caraway and a little butter and salt. Then sufficient cold water was added to make the dough of the proper usual consistence (simply stirred with a spoon, not kneaded by the warm hands), and it was immediately put into a quick oven and baked three-quarters of an hour. It turned out both light and palatable. "The reason," adds the writer, "appears to be this: the light mass of interlaced snow crystals holds imprisoned a large quantity of condensed atmospheric air, which, when the air is warmed by thawing very rapidly in the dough, expands enormously and acts the part of carbonic acid gas in either baking powder or yeast. I take the precise action to be, then, not due in any way to the snow itself, but simply to the expansion of the fixed air lodged between the interstices of the snow crystals by application of heat. This theory, if carefully followed out, may, perchance, give a clew to a simple and perfectly innocuous method of raising bread and pastry." And stop the discussion as to whether alumn in baking powder is deleterious to health or otherwise.—Scientific American.

Business Men Encouraging Temperance.

The first public meeting of the Business Men's Society, for the encouragement of moderation in the use of intoxicating liquors, was held on Friday night at Chickering Hall, New York—Mr. F. B. Thurber in the chair. The large hall was filled to the doors, many ladies being present. Among the prominent persons on the platform were Dr. Crosby, Peter Cooper, Thurlow Weed, Dr. Frothingham, L. W. Bates, Henry W. Baldwin and Walt T. Whitman, the poet. After several new songs—which had been specially prepared by the society—had been sung, the chairman opened the meeting with an address, in which he explained the objects of the society. The society proposes to administer three pledges as follows: First, a pledge of total abstinence; second, a pledge not to drink intoxicating beverages during business hours; third, a pledge not to partake of intoxicating beverages at the expense of any other person whatever, nor to invite another to partake during a specified time.

Presidential Forecastings.

The New York Times of the 10th inst. publishes extended reports from every State in the Union, gathered by 170 correspondents, on the Presidential question, showing Grant to be the favorite of the Republicans and Tilden of the Democrats. The Times claims that it is clearly apparent that the Grant movement originates with the masses, not with politicians, while Tilden is being forced upon the people against their will. Blaine seems to have seriously injured his standing among the Republican masses by his advocacy of the Anti-Chinese Bill. Out of 157 points from which advices have been received, Grant is the expressed choice of 130, Blaine of 10. Washburne, Garfield, Sherman, Conkling, Edmunds, and Chandler follow in the order named. The Democrats in 98 of the 157 districts prefer Tilden, 23 Thurman, 11 Bayard, Hendricks and Hancock bring up the rear.

The nature of the soil in Manitoba is such as to make good roads an impossibility during certain portions of the year. The Free Press says, "The first waves of a large immigration are already breaking upon Manitoba's shores and flowing off in a dozen different channels. The great majority of the new comers will travel west in search of future homes, and one and all will raise their voice in accents of horror at our roads. To a large majority of our Provincial readers the whole state of our transit facilities into the interior is a matter very indifferently understood. They know merely that at certain times of the year the roads are bad, that the increased traffic tells heavily on them, and that in certain districts heavy loads cannot go over."

The Death-rate of

Our country is getting to be fearfully alarming, the average of life being lessened every year, without any reasonable cause, death resulting generally from the most insignificant origin. At this season of the year, especially, a cold is such a common thing that in the hurry of every day life we are apt to overlook the dangers attending it and often find, too late, that a Fever or Lung trouble has already set in. Thousands lose their lives in this way every winter, while had Boschee's German Syrup been taken, a cure would have resulted, and a large bill from a doctor been avoided. For all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Boschee's German Syrup has proven itself to be the greatest discovery of its kind in medicine. Every Druggist in this country will tell you of its wonderful effect. Over 950,000 bottles sold last year without a single failure known.
