CLIMAX

WITNESS

CLIMAX

Before Rev.'s decision was announced, Rev. William F. Flack, B. A. Assen, in Winnipeg who has served as Eichmann's spiritual adviser, had made the Rev. Flack's name known to the court.
