$16 Million Expansion Planned At Dalhousie

Nearly 750 Islanders have received their medical education at Dalhousie University, Arthur H. Peake, said yesterday as he announced the first public campaign for financial aid by the Maritime Provinces' only professional school.

Mr. Peake said over the years Dalhousie was a major factor in training Prince Edward Islanders for the professions. He noted that 85 per cent of all Maritime doctors were graduates of Dalhousie.

5,000 STUDENTS

The university, attempting to plan for an additional 1,000 students within the next five years, with a total enrollment of 5,000 by 1972 is unable to cope with the rapidly increasing demands on its facilities.

Mr. Peake noted that other Maritime colleges generally received financial help from the churches of the denominat ion under whose auspices they oper. ate. However, he said, Dalhousie is strictly non-denominational and is devoted simply to providing a higher education for all Maritimers, regardless of creed or color.

Founded by Lord Dalhousie early in the 19th century, the 'College By The Sea,' in representing no single denomination, truly "belongs to all Maritimers", Mr. Peake stated.

$16 MILLION NEEDED

In its drive for expansion, the university is reported to need approximately $16 million of which over $10 million is required for expansion to meet the educational needs of a Maritime area rapidly becoming more conscious of the necessity of doing things for itself. This feeling, Mr. Peake stated, was becoming more evident daily and was particularly shown in the organization of businessmen in the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council to further industrial expansion.

If this is to come, authorities feel, there must be a corresponding betterment in educational facilities to provide training of Maritimers to fit their new roles.

One example cited of Dalhousie's need is the fact that of the money sought $4,500,000 is required for medical facilities alone in the next five years. Part of this is created by the great expansion in a research program which is currently delving into many medical problems including a study of rheumatoid arthritis.

However, in this field Dr. C. B. Stewart, dean of medicine at the university, recently said his department was hampered more by lack of space in which to work than any other single factor. It is to make greater research efforts possible while offering more facilities to future students the expansion is planned.

S'side Board Of Trade Tours Telephone Plant

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

A three-part meeting of the Summerside Board of Trade last night with an attendance of about 30, heard an address on ARDA by Hartwell Daley, held a business session of the board, and toured the Island Telephone Company building. Members served lunch at the conclusion of the meeting.

In his address, Mr. Daley, P.E.I. director of research with ARDA, (Agricultural, Rehabilitation Development Act), described the work in this province, outlined the method by which communities can organize to participate in this program which will make $2,700,000 available for various projects in this province during the next three years, and told of the projects on which groups or communities are already working.

He said the scope of the program is almost unlimited, but warned that those wishing to participate must be prepared to give of their time and efforts before assistance will be made available, and pointed out that a desire for financial assistance under this act must be indicated from an organized group, board of trade, village commissioners, or organization and a thorough study must be made by the group of the potential of its community for the success of the project in which it is interested.

He said that 14 organizations are already embarked in various stages of the ARDA program, each involving groups from 60 to 300 people.

INTERIM PAYMENT

Mr. Daley said that the recent cheque for $15,000 received from the federal government under the ARDA program represented interim payments of five reforestation projects, five pond and dam projects, three professional surveys on peat moss, Irish moss, and instant mashed potatoes; purchase and development of Cedar Dunes Park at West Point; and staff assistance to the P.E.I. ARDA office.

During the business part of the meeting conducted under chairmanship of the board of trade president, Edgar Cannon, the views of the retail merchants committee who had been asked to make suggestions on traffic control on Water Street, were stated by Ross MacKenzie.

Earl Cannon was appointed by the board to represent it on an educational committee of the P.E.I. Board of Trade, which will study the problem of providing remedial courses for students who drop out of school before completing grade eight, the minimum requirement for enrollment in vocational training schools.

It was stated that 25 per cent of students attending school drop out of school before completing grade eight, and the meeting was told of an area in Prince Edward Island where only 40 per cent of the students passed the grade eight exams last year.

The board approved a Kensington board nomination of Edison Rayner to represent the Kensington board on the Maritime Board of Trade, and endorsed the previous nominations of Earl Cannon to represent the Summerside board, and that of Max Thompson as P.E.I. vice-president to the Maritime board.

ALBERTON RESOLUTION

The meeting last night also approved a resolution from the Alberton Board of Trade requesting the landing of fishery equipment (lobster traps) seized at sea by fisheries officers, and sale of this equipment by public auction. It was stated in the resolution that illegally set gear now found by patrol boats is destroyed on site and thrown back into the sea where it becomes entangled in the nets of seiners and draggers, and causes damage to the nets.

Mr. MacKenzie was appointed official delegate to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce meeting later this year in Ottawa, and president, Edgar Cannon was appointed as the Summerside representative to the Maritime Board of Trade meeting in Amherst in June.

TOUR PLANT

W. C. Auld, manager of the Island Telephone Company, of Charlottetown, welcomed the board of trade members to the telephone building. Also attending the meeting from the Charlottetown office of the company were E. G. Cameron, plant superintendent, and A. E. Holland, sales representative.

Earl Smith, maintenance foreman of the Summerside office, assisted by technicians Phil Murphy and David Barlow, took the board members on group tours of the three-storey building explaining the work of the telephone company and showing them the complex operation of the vast amount of electrical equipment used in providing telephone service.

Following the meeting lunch was served by Miss Clara Mountain, commercial representative at the Summerside office; Mrs. Elaine Ballem, chief operator; assisted by Mrs. Earl Smith. Mrs. Lucy Cameron, Miss Nora Stetson and Miss Winnifred Murphy.

4 Districts At Least Vote For School

Unofficial reports, indicating that Southport, Cross Roads, Sherwood and Parkdale voted Tuesday in favor of a regional high school unit in the Charlottetown area, were all that was available yesterday on the vote which was conducted in more than 50 school districts within a 15-18 mile radius of the city Tuesday night on the proposal to establish a high school unit here.

Malcolm MacKenzie, deputy minister and director of education, said nothing has been received at his office yet. He believes that by Friday some indication may be apparent, though it has been found in votes of this kind many districts simply do not send in returns at all.

Follow-up letters bring in some of them, and in some cases the department has to get the school supervisors to seek out the information.

If the proposal is to establish a regional high school unit with accommodation for grades nine and 10 being provided in the Provincial Vocational Institute for a couple of years, to be followed by the construction of a building which would house grades nine to 12 inclusive on ground adjacent to the vocational institute, it has been suggested by a committee which has been working on the project.

HISTORIC HOUSE WITH DISTINGUISHED GHOSTS

The house at 82 Bond Street once owned by William Lyon Mackenzie, leader of the Rebellion of 1837 in Upper Canada, has been completely restored by the city that once intended to hang the fiery Scotsman. In 1960, the year Toronto took charge, the custodians of the Mackenzie homestead reported to The Telegram that the house was haunted by its former distinguished proprietors. Later, the apparitions were again sighted by others. Curiosity led Weekend Magazine Staff Writer Clarke Wallace to the old home where he spent a night as a self-appointed unprejudiced ghost-watcher. He was accompanied by Weekend Magazine Staff Photographer Louis Jaques who furnished color photos of the restored homestead and its rattled caretakers for his article appearing in this week's issue.
