

A Poetical Prisoner.

A REALITY.

The Kilkenny Moderator reports that at the Nengah Petty Sessions an ex-drapers assistant, named John Anthony Maher, formerly of Roseera, lately of Nenagh, and latest of Rathdowney, was brought up in custody, charged by Sub-Constable Jeremiah Regan with having stolen a silk umbrella from the house of Dr. Morton, Summer-hill, Nenagh, on Saturday, the 12th instant. The principal evidence for the prosecution was that of Nanny Ralph, a servant in the employment of Dr. Morton, who deposed that on the day in question the prisoner called at her master's house and asked if Dr. Morton was in. She replied that he was not, and asked if Mrs. Morton would do; she then went to acquaint her mistress of the presence of the man in the hall who wanted to see the doctor. On her (witness's) return to the hall she missed from the stand a silk umbrella, the property of a young lady then on a visit to Mrs. Morton. The umbrella now produced was the one taken from the hall.

The Chairman—Is that the man (prisoner) whom you saw in the hall? Witness—It is, sir. Prisoner, assuming a tragic air—"Lady look me straight in the face, I am but the wreck of a Royal race; Of fortune and friends they have bereft me; I'm John Anthony Maher, that's all that's now left me."

Evidence was given by a Mrs. Margaret Minogue to the effect that on the evening in question the prisoner came to her husband's house and asked her to buy the umbrella for 2s., but she said she did not want to buy it; he then said he was very hungry, that he wanted his dinner, and that she might have "the article" for 1s.; she gave him the shilling "through compassion, your worship's" though she had not known him before, neither did she ask him his name.

The Chairman expressed his surprise that a person of such apparent respectability as Mrs. Minogue should have purchased a valuable umbrella from such a man as the Prisoner for 1s.; to which the prisoner replied that she had no "forecast" in the matter.

Prisoner (who was "all impatience" to make a speech).—Well, gentlemen of the court, what do you charge me with? I went into a house to see a doctor; I was hungry, I was thirsty—(laughter);—nay, gentleman, I was delirious; in fact, 'twas our old familiar friend John Jameson, that did it all—through me—(much laughter);—I was but the "instrument"—(laughter);—if I took the umbrella—and we will assume, for argument sake, that I did—(great laughter)—I was quite unconscious of having done so; that, gentlemen, is the "head and front of my offending;" no, what's the odds—(great laughter)—I had 100l. a year in a draper's shop in Rathdowney; let me go back to my business there again and you shall never see me more.

Chairman.—There is no doubt but that you stole this umbrella, and the magistrates.

Prisoner.—Pardon me, your Worship, for one moment, while I address the Court. There was often ten times as much taken from me, and I never said a word about it. I lost a chain and locket that stood me in 19s. 4d.—first cost, gentleman, I assure you (laughter), and I have never seen or heard of them since. I wish I were dead. And who knows if life be not what we poor mortals call death, and death the thing that we call life? There's the problem for you gentlemen, which of you shall solve it?

Chairman.—Why did you leave Rathdowney?

Prisoner.—Thereby hangs a tale—"One evening in May, as the setting sun shone. The shop it was there, and John Anthony gone."

(laughter). Chairman.—I have here your photograph—

Prisoner.—(with well-feigned surprise)—What! mine, your worship? Did you ray my photo, my second self?(renewed laughter).

Chairman.—Yes, and it is an accurate likeness. Look at it (and his Worship confronted the prisoner with his photo, at foot of which was the date "17-1-75" and the prisoner's name in full).

Prisoner.—(looking at the picture with all the air of an art critic).—Well, your worship, I cannot compliment the artist, for it is not a speaking likeness (laughter). However, your worship, look on that picture, then on this (striking his breast), for you may ne're look on their like again (great laughter).

Chairman.—I have also, here a record of many previous convictions against you and by which I find that you were four times convicted of larceny, seven times for vagrancy—

Prisoner.—Oh! Mother o' Moses! (laughter).

Chairman.—Once as a public nuisance Prisoner.—(with a smirk).—You don't say so (laughter).

Chairman.—And twenty-one times for drunkenness—

Prisoner.—Shall I ever get drunk again? (renewed laughter).

Chairman.—In fact, we have such a good character of you in this record that we shall give you the benefit of it, and send you for trial on this charge to the next quarter sessions.

Prisoner.—Now I should like to know who was the recording angel that went to the trouble of jotting down all my little peccadilloes. What about all the good things I have ever done? (Laughter.) "Oh! if all my meritorious deeds were state! They'd more than overbalance all you have enumerated." Chairman—What will do now; you may go down. Prisoner—"Down to the dust from which I've sprung, Unwept, unhonored, and unsung."

(Great laughter.) Chairman—Constable, remove the prisoner. The case is now returned for trial to the next quarter sessions.

Prisoner—When will the next quarter sessions be held, your worship. Chairman—On the 14th of October next.

Prisoner—Holy Moses. (Laughter.) Then, John Anthony, my boy, after all your journeyings to and fro, and all the pleasant days and nights you've spent, I fear me very much that your sun has r't length set, and set forever. (Renewed laughter.)

The prisoner was then removed in custody.
