THE SEA SERPENT AT LABRA

That terrible creature the sea serpent, which has in its time frightened so many ancient mariners half out of their wits, as it presented itself to view, now in this much frequented sea and now in that, has lately put in an appearance in the Labrador waters. Hattie Harbor is the basin on the Labrador coast in which the great Ophidian awfully shocked Mr. Bendall, resident agent of a large fishing firm of St. John's, Newfoundland. Mr. Bendall was disporting himself in the briny waves on a fine day in July, when lo, he saw bearing down upon him a huge snaky creature, a hundred feet long, with savage looking head and a shaggy mane, and blazing terror-inspiring eyes. As this dreadful creature moved its immense dark brown body, tinged with green and purple, it filled the air with mournful moans and wide and far diffused its musky fragrance. Incontinently the terrified bather fled to the rocky shore, and thence surveyed the dreadful apparition. Safely ensconced behind his rocky breakwork, the trembling Bendall saw the awful monster of the deep lash the water into foam, and then plunge into the abyss with an unearthly shriek of probable disappointment at failing to capture the plump and tempting biper that watched him without peril from a distance.—St. John News.

A MYTHICAL LADY.

"A Young Reader" of Dickens' "Martin Chuzzlewit" wonders why Mrs. Gamp's mythical friend should be called "Mrs. Harris," and asks for an explanation. Perhaps some older readers, not learned in the amusing literature of the law, may be similarly puzzled. "Mrs. Harris," as the Ledger understands the matter, was the mother of John Doe, Richard Roe, John O'Noakes, Tom Styles and the other familiar but imaginary persons who figure in old law papers to represent real persons. All of them are lawyers' apprentices, so to speak. They were sham names, anciently introduced into legal forms, but now discontinued. John Doe and Richard Roe were perhaps best known in this country. Tom Styles and John O'Noakes went together in actions of ejectment. Butler, in Hudibras, writes:—

And, like blind Fortune, with a sleight,
Convey men's interest and right
From Styles' pocket into Noake's,
As easily as hocus pocus.

"Snooks," which name as a by-word remains still in use is in one form a corruption of Seven Oakes, though it also comes from the Noakes or Nokes above referred to. If Mrs. Gamp had referred to Snooks as her friend, the allusion would have been better understood in this country. In England, however, the reference to "Mrs. Harris," the mother of the four personages (she must have been married four times) was understood at once. And when Betsy Prig declared to Mrs. Gamp concerning Mrs. Harris, "I don't believe there's no such person," it was as if Betsy had denied the whole system of English legal practice, if not the whole intitution of the empire.

FRIGHTFUL RUSSIAN ATROCITIES.

The Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs has sent the appended circular to the Diplomatic agents of the Porte abroad, being a telegram from Suleiman Pasha, as follows:—

The conduct of the Russian army during the 11 days it occupied Eski Saghra shows that their first act on entering the town was to disarm the Mussulman population. The employed the Moldars of the place who, deceived as to the real object of their mission, were ordered to fetch Mussulman out of their houses, and as soon as the latter appeared they were massacred. Eleven hundred Mussulmans were thus put to death. A telegram from the Karmakour of Lovatz, reports that when the Russians entered that town, fifteen women and children fleeing from the invaders, were killed by the fire of the enemy's artillery. Others of these unfortunate prisoners, in order to escape outrage or death, had to abandon everything, even their children. Every Mussulman's house in Lovatz was pillaged by Cossacks and Bulgarians. After the recapture of the town by the imperial army the Russians carried devastation and carnage into the neighboring districts. The Russians and Bulgarians drove out all the Mussulman inhabitants of the village of Henste and burned all the men and some of the women. Seventy Mussulmans and the Imaum of Yulkem were shut up by the Bulgarians in barns, to which the latter in conjunction with Cossacks, set fire. An English military attache himself witnessed all these horrors. The Russians on entering these parts, disarmed all the Mussulmas of Eski Saghra, Kezanlik and the neighboring villages, and distributed the arms seized among the Bulgarians. The latter then drove down 400 Mussulmans from Moghli, in the district of Kezanlik, to the bank of the river Tundja and there massacred them. At Eski Saghra and its neighborhood, the Bulgarians continue to massacre the Mussulman population.

After a fight with the enemy, Suleiman Pasha entered Eski Saghra. Several cannons fell into our hands. The Russians met with considerable losses. The atrocities committed by the Cossacks and Bulgarians still continue.

News of the World.

CANADA.

Mr. W. S. Coen, youngest partner in the firm of McNab, Marsh & Coen, of Toronto has decamped. He is a defaulter in a large amount. He was a fast young man.

Four hundred and thirty-nine foundlings have been left up to date at Grey Nunnery, Montreal. Of this number 329 were of French origin.

When the New Brunswick legislature meets shortly, it is proposed to pass a measure regulating the rebuilding of St. John. To evade its probable provisions, feverish activity now prevails in the building of wooden structures in the fire district. People are getting their buildings up before the proposed law can be enacted feeling confident that they will not be compelled to tear them down, ex post facto legislation not being usual. Wooden and brick-cased houses for shops and residences are springing up with magical rapidity, and advancing towards completion with a speed rivaling that displayed in the building of railway cities on the western plains. People will be "penny wise and pound foolish" to the end of time; and nothing but cast-iron legislation, in such an important matter as protection against fire, will force wisdom on them.

A DELEGATE.—A young man who represented himself as a delegate from the Halifax Relief Committee, put in an appearance at a house in St. John, where he was dined and wined, on condition of his giving in return a cooking stove. The next morning the delegate disappeared, and the family who entertained him want no more relief delegates from Halifax. He was a fraud.—Hz. Herald.

UNITED STATES.

Peaches are now so plentiful in the vicinity of Columbia, S. C., that they are fed to hogs.

During a late thunder storm at Antrim, N. H., some persons who were driving put up their horse and wagon in a shed, which was soon after struck by lightning. On visiting their property they found the harness stripped from the horse and torn to shreds; the thrills broken and the horse turned from the wagon, but uninjured.

The town of Gayville, Dakota Territory, was almost destroyed by fire, only one or two houses being saved. The fire originated in Narnie's restaurant and there being no water for fire purposes it spread rapidly, and in three hours destroyed about 200 houses. Total loss $60,000; no insurance.

Herbert Blanchard, the Savoy (Mass.) murder, is a very bad egg. He began by threatening his schoolmaster, married at seventeen and hammered his girl wife till she got a divorce, was hunted out of California as a thief, enlisted in the Mexican army, and deserted, leaving a wife and child, went to France to complete his criminal education, and returned to Savoy to do murder and qualify himself for the gal-lows.

News comes from San Francisco of a murder committed there by one Daly on the 7th ult. Daly and another man called Kusanda were stock brokers and partners. A man called Hanks struck Kusanda. Daly espoused the quarrel of the latter. A fight took place, and the parties separated. On a subsequent occasion, and after another battle, Daly approached Hanks with a cane. The latter, supposing it was his intention to flog him, shot his opponent, who died shortly after. A verdict of murder was returned by the coroner's jury, but Hanks anticipated the result by committing suicide. He left a letter in which was the following sentence: "The coolest act of my life. Had to take of my boots to pull the trigger with my toe!"

EUROPEAN.

In Servia all lawyers are excluded from the Assembly.

It is stated that two hundred Cuban Insurgents killed thirty Spanish soldiers near Santi Spiritus, recently.

Bismarck is moving, and something of interest is likely to turn up. He is a sort of Deus ex machine, and rarely moves for nothing.

Bismarck does not let up on Count Von Arnim. Lately the Count asked leave to cross German territory to go to Carisbad, in Bohemia, but was curtly refused.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has offered a free pardon to any one, not the actual firer of the shot, who will give information that may lead to detection of the murderer of Mr. Young, of Castlereagh, the magistrate lately shot in his own avenue. The reward offered of £1,500 failed to discover any clue.

Field Marshal Count Moltke, it is said, was asked by a princely personage the other day whether he would not prestage a speedy and complete victory by the Russians and the entire subjugation of Turkey. "Certainly," said the Count; "the Russians will vanquish Turkey as soon as their commander-in-chief is found to possess the four 'G's' which are necessary to every general." "And which four 'G's' do you mean?" asked the Count's questioner. Moltke replied, "Geld, Geduld, Genie and Gluck [money, patience, genius and good luck.]"
