LET'S EAT

Colorful Snack Tray Served On A Plane

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"It's always a thrill to me to travel by air," I remarked, as the plane rose above the clouds. "We left New York at ten this morning, and we'll be across the continent non-stop and in Los Angeles this afternoon!"

When almost done, top each serving with sliced canned pineapple split in halves to make thin pieces; brush lightly with butter. Place a soaked or cooked praline in the center of each and finish broiling. Serve on low mounds of mashed sweet potatoes.

The shrimp cocktail was garnished with lettuce; the broiled ham Hawaiian, topped with sliced pineapple and a prune, was arranged on a mound of mashed sweet potatoes. The Waldorf salad was garnished with grapes and served in bite sized pieces with an accompanying delightful rose-pink cream salad dressing.

MARY HAWORTH College Boy Has Two Girls Dear Mary Haworth: I am a college student, 20 years old. I live on campus, getting home four or five times a year. At home there are two young ladies of whom I am very fond. This causes somewhat of a problem each time I go home.

Afternoon Snack Tray: An hour before we arrived at Los Angeles, a choice of tea or coffee was served and a beautiful-looking snack tray was passed with fruit, cheese and crackers and Swiss chocolate, all wrapped in colored cellophane.

Dear R.F.: I notice your letter comes from a world famous academy for the training of officers that lovely freshmen there are traditionally assigned by upperclassmen to write tongue-in-cheek letters to my kind of column. So maybe this is a case in point.
